under the direction of Fredi Peccerelli.¹⁷⁸⁸⁵ Ravnice 2 was exhumed in July and August 2001 by members of the BiHCMP and the ICMP, and monitored by members of the Tribunal.¹⁷⁸⁸⁶ The remains found at both Ravnice 1 and 2 were examined by a team of pathologists under the direction of John Clark.¹⁷⁸⁸⁷

5270. The Chamber did not receive eye-witness evidence as to the burial of bodies at Ravnice. The only evidence received by the Chamber with respect to the exhumation of the Ravnice gravesite comes from Dean Manning, who was present at the gravesite during the exhumation process carried out by Peccerelli and his team, and from Clark, who referred to the exhumation process in his pathology report.¹⁷⁸⁸⁸

5271. According to Clark, the Ravnice gravesite was very different to the gravesites at Glogova, in that a number of bodies lay scattered on the surface rather than buried in the ground.¹⁷⁸⁸⁹ The bodies appear to have been dumped down a steep wooded embankment from the roadway, across a wide area.¹⁷⁸⁹⁰ After the first group of bodies was covered with soil, another dump occurred; there was no attempt to cover these additional bodies with dirt so they were left on the surface of the slope.¹⁷⁸⁹¹ Many of these bodies were caught at the base of trees and on a fence running along the slope.¹⁷⁸⁹²

5272. Clark further explained that the remains found in the gravesite were broken up with parts missing, and individual body parts were much more numerous than whole bodies.¹⁷⁸⁹³ Civilian clothing was present on most of the bodies, along with personal belongings, and no bodies were found with military attire.¹⁷⁸⁹⁴ No ligatures or blindfolds were found.¹⁷⁸⁹⁵ Because the bodies were exposed to the open air, they had been skeletonised, with no soft tissue surviving, and their bones showed weathering and decay.¹⁷⁸⁹⁶

5273. Based on the pathology examination, Clark concluded that all of the victims exhumed at Ravnice were male.¹⁷⁸⁹⁷ At least 14 of these individuals were 17 years old or younger.¹⁷⁸⁹⁸ In relation to the cause and manner of death, Clark stated that the vast majority of the victims presented multiple gunshot injuries to the head, trunk, and legs, primarily from high velocity rifles, and there was no convincing evidence of serious injuries from shrapnel from grenades or other projectiles.¹⁷⁸⁹⁹ Clark was not able to make a finding on the distance from which the shots were fired.¹⁷⁹⁰⁰

5274. Items from the Kravica Warehouse were collected from the Ravnice gravesites which, according to Manning, indicated a linkage between the gravesite and the Kravica Warehouse.¹⁷⁹⁰¹ Furthermore, personal identification documents found at the warehouse were linked to two individuals who were identified by DNA analysis in Ravnice 2.¹⁷⁹⁰²

5275. As of 13 January 2012, DNA analysis led to the identification of 32 victims from Ravnice 1 and 174 victims from Ravnice 2 as persons listed as missing following the take-over of Srebrenica.¹⁷⁹⁰³

5276. Despite the fact that there is no eyewitness evidence as to the burials at Ravnice, the Chamber finds, in light of the location of the gravesite and the forensic evidence admitted in this case, that this gravesite is linked to the killings at the Kravica Warehouse on 13 July 1995. However, P6705 demonstrates that nearly one third of the bodies found in Ravnice 1 and nearly one fifth of the bodies found in Ravnice 2, totalling 43 individuals, were reported as having been last seen alive on and after 14 July 1995.¹⁷⁹⁰⁴ This evidence strongly suggests that some bodies found in the Ravnice gravesites were brought from a site or sites other than the Kravica Warehouse.¹⁷⁹⁰⁵ Considering this, the Chamber cannot find beyond reasonable doubt the exact number of Kravica

Warehouse victims found in Ravnice 1 and Ravnice 2. The Chamber will discuss the number of Kravica-related victims in the Ravnice gravesites at the end of this section.¹⁷⁹⁰⁶

(7) Total number of Kravica Warehouse victims

5277. According to Janc, as of 13 January 2012, DNA analysis led to the identification 1,374 victims listed as persons missing following the take-over of Srebrenica, who are connected to the various gravesites associated with the killings at the Kravica Warehouse.¹⁷⁹⁰⁷ While Janc considered that most of these 1,374 victims can be connected to the Kravica Warehouse killing incident, he found it impossible to provide an exact number.¹⁷⁹⁰⁸ Accordingly, the Prosecution acknowledges in its final brief that some of these 1,374 victims were not killed at the Kravica Warehouse, but estimates that at least 1,200 individuals of those detained at the Sandići Meadow on 13 July 1995 were killed at the warehouse.¹⁷⁹⁰⁹

5278. The Chamber heard conflicting evidence as to the number of Bosnian Muslim men held inside the Kravica Warehouse before the execution took place. For example, KDZ063 estimated that there were between 2,500 and 3,000 men in the warehouse after the last detainee came in.¹⁷⁹¹⁰ KDZ071 testified hearing from other men detained at the warehouse that there were 2,000 men inside.¹⁷⁹¹¹ By contrast, Franc Kos testified that there could not have been more than 150 people inside the Kravica Warehouse.¹⁷⁹¹² Further, Adjudicated Fact 1705 refers to between 1,000 and 1,500 Bosnian Muslim men being bussed or marched to the Kravica Warehouse after their

The Chamber notes Dunjić's challenges to Janc's total number of victims identified as killed during the incident at the Kravica Warehouse, and his claims that this number is not accurate and reliable. ¹⁷⁹⁰⁹ Prosecution Final Brief, Appendix D, paras. 64, 171. The Chamber considers that the Prosecution arrived at this number by subtracting the approximately 180 individuals brought to Glogova from other sites from the total number of victims identified in all Kravica-related graves.

detention at the Sandići Meadow;¹⁷⁹¹³ and Adjudicated Fact 1709 refers to approximately 1,000 Bosnian Muslim men being executed at the Kravica Warehouse.¹⁷⁹¹⁴

5279. Given the connections between Glogova and the secondary gravesites,¹⁷⁹¹⁵ as well as the uniqueness of the Ravnice gravesites,¹⁷⁹¹⁶ the Chamber will discuss the total number of Kravica Warehouse victims found in these gravesites separately in the following paragraphs.

(a) Glogova and secondary gravesites

5280. According to Janc, as of 13 January 2012, DNA analysis led to the identification of 1,168 individuals found in Glogova and the related secondary gravesites as persons missing following the take-over of Srebrenica.¹⁷⁹¹⁷ However, as discussed above, the Chamber has heard evidence that bodies from incidents or sites other than the Kravica Warehouse were also brought to Glogova—namely, approximately 80 victims executed in Bratunac, plus approximately 100 bodies brought from other locations—and were subject to reburial in secondary graves.¹⁷⁹¹⁸

5281. Additionally, as noted above, P6705 shows that just over one fifth—or 235—of the victims whose bodies were found in Glogova and the related secondary gravesites were reported as having been seen alive on or after 14 July 1995.¹⁷⁹¹⁹ The Chamber finds it unlikely that these victims were killed at the Kravica Warehouse incident, in light of the fact that the killings at the Kravica Warehouse took place on 13 July 1995.

5282. While the Chamber considers that some of these 235 individuals who were reported to have been seen alive on or after 14 July 1995 likely overlap with the approximately 180 individuals who were brought to Glogova from sites or incidents other than the Kravica Warehouse, the degree to which the two groups overlap cannot be determined beyond reasonable doubt. Therefore, in order to reach the minimum number of Kravica Warehouse victims found in Glogova and the related secondary gravesites, the Chamber has deducted both groups from the total of 1,168 bodies, leading to a minimum of 753 victims.¹⁷⁹²⁰ Further, the maximum number of possible Kravica Warehouse victims found in Glogova and the related secondary gravesites can be reached by deducting those 235 individuals who were reported to have been seen last on or after 14 July 1995, as well as the approximately 80 individuals killed at the Vuk Karadžić School, from the total of 1,168 bodies, leading to a maximum total of 853 victims.¹⁷⁹²¹

See also paras. 5257–5258, 5507.

5283. Therefore, the Chamber finds that a minimum of 753 individuals and a maximum of 853 individuals found in Glogova and the related secondary gravesites were executed at the Kravica Warehouse incident.

(b) Ravnice gravesites

5284. As noted above, some bodies found in the Ravnice gravesites were brought from a site or sites other than the Kravica Warehouse, making it impossible for the Chamber to find the exact number of Kravica Warehouse victims found in Ravnice 1 and 2.¹⁷⁹²² However, the Chamber is satisfied that at least the two individuals recovered from Ravnice whose identification documents were found at the Kravica Warehouse were executed therein.¹⁷⁹²³ Furthermore, in finding the maximum number of Kravica Warehouse victims found in Ravnice 1 and 2, the Chamber has excluded those 43 individuals who were reported as having been seen alive on or after 14 July,¹⁷⁹²⁴ leading to a maximum of 163 victims.

5285. Consequently, the Chamber finds that a minimum of 2 individuals and a maximum of 163 individuals found in the Ravnice gravesites were executed at the Kravica Warehouse incident.

¹⁷⁹²⁰ Based on the witness testimony presented above, and the dates of disappearance of the bodies found in Glogova and the related secondary graves, the Chamber considers that the number of bodies brought to Glogova from other sites or incidents cannot have exceeded 415 individuals, equivalent to the 235 individuals reported as having been seen last alive on or after 14 July 1995 plus those approximately 180 individuals who the Prosecution itself accepts to have been brought from other sites or incidents. See paras. 5257, 5259.

¹⁷⁹²¹ The Chamber considers that it is possible that the approximately 100 individuals brought to Glogova from Konjević Polje, Potočari, and the Bratunac–Konjević Polje Road, including the 12 individuals who are recorded as having been returned from Serbia and whose remains were also found at Glogova, are included in the group of individuals who were reported seen alive on or after 14 July 1995, while the approximately 80 bodies of individuals killed at the Vuk Karadžić School cannot have been, since most of those killings took place during the nights of 12 and 13 July. See para. 5258. Thus, while the maximum possible number of Kravica Warehouse victims excludes only the 235 individuals seen on or after 14 July, the Chamber must also exclude the approximately 80 individuals killed at the Vuk Karadžić School from the total.

¹⁷⁹²⁴ While 206 individuals in total were exhumed from the Ravnice gravesites, 43 of these individuals were listed in P6705 as having disappeared after 13 July, and therefore cannot be considered as having been executed at the Kravica Warehouse incident. See para. 5276. While it is not certain that the remaining 163 individuals were all executed at the Kravica Warehouse, the Chamber finds that an indeterminable proportion—and possibly the entirety—of this group were executed at the Kravica Warehouse.

(c) Conclusion

5286. For all these reasons, the Chamber finds that, on 13 July 1995, between 755 and 1,016 Bosnian Muslim men were killed by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces at the Kravica Warehouse.

(D) Sandići Meadow

5287. The Indictment refers to the killing on 13 July 1995, after dark, of approximately 15 Bosnian Muslim men who were detained at Sandići Meadow and summarily executed in an area near Sandići.¹⁷⁹²⁵

5288. In the early evening on 13 July 1995, most of the Bosnian Muslim men who had previously been detained at the Sandići Meadow had been taken away, but 10 to 15 men were left behind.¹⁷⁹²⁶ Several members of the Jahorina Recruits asked the Deputy Commander of the 1st Company's 4th Platoon, a man by the name of "Aleksa", when the next bus would come to pick up the detainees.¹⁷⁹²⁷ Aleksa told the recruits that no more buses would come, and that they had to "get rid of them, shoot them".¹⁷⁹²⁸

5289. KDZ084 and two of his colleagues refused to comply with the order.¹⁷⁹²⁹ However, the remaining two agreed to shoot the Bosnian Muslim men together with a few other recruits who later volunteered, and took the detainees away.¹⁷⁹³⁰ Aleksa and the recruits who had volunteered to kill the detainees subsequently returned to the road near the Sandići Meadow where KDZ084 had remained.¹⁷⁹³¹ KDZ084 did not witness the execution but rather heard the shots.¹⁷⁹³² However,

KDZ084 talked to one of his colleagues who volunteered to kill the detainees, who told him that some had been killed while going up towards the meadow, with a shot in the head, and that the rest were executed with a burst of fire.¹⁷⁹³³

5290. The BiHCMP exhumed a gravesite near the Sandići Meadow between 14 and 21 June 2004.¹⁷⁹³⁴ 17 individuals who had been reported missing after the fall of Srebrenica were identified, based upon DNA analysis, from the human remains located at the gravesite.¹⁷⁹³⁵ However, given the lack of evidence as to the location of the gravesite and the manner in which the 17 individuals were killed, the Chamber is unable to find the connection of this mass grave to the killings at the Sandići Meadow, as charged in the Indictment.

5291. Nevertheless, based on the account of KDZ084, the Chamber finds that, on 13 July 1995, approximately 10 to 15 Bosnian Muslim men from Srebrenica were killed at the Sandići Meadow by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces.

(A) Detention of Bosnian Muslim men

5292. As stated above, starting on the afternoon of 12 July and throughout 13 July 1995, the Bosnian Muslim men who had been separated from the women, children, and the elderly and detained in the White House at Potočari were transported to Bratunac town.¹⁷⁹³⁶ On 13 July, Bosnian Muslim men from the column who were held at the various detention sites along the Forces and did not return.¹⁷⁹⁶⁰ On at least one occasion, members of the Bosnian Serb Forces brought beaten up detainees back into the hangar behind the Vuk Karadžić School and threatened the other detainees that this would be their fate too.¹⁷⁹⁶¹ Some men had to hold detainees who were badly beaten due to the lack of space.¹⁷⁹⁶² At the Vuk Karadžić School detainees had to be escorted to the toilet, and were beaten with rifle butts as they made their way there.¹⁷⁹⁶³ Later, the detainees were too afraid to go to the toilet, so they urinated where they were.¹⁷⁹⁶⁴

(B) Killings

(1) Vuk Karadžić School

5297. The Indictment refers to the killing of 50 or more Bosnian Muslim men inside and outside the Vuk Karadžić School and in the surrounding area, from approximately 10 p.m. on 12 July until the morning of 15 July 1995.¹⁷⁹⁶⁵

5298. Beginning on or about 10 p.m. on the night of 12 July 1995, members of the Bosnian Serb Forces entered the hangar behind the Vuk Karadžić School with flashlights, calling out for detainees from various villages to identify themselves.¹⁷⁹⁶⁶ Few detainees responded.¹⁷⁹⁶⁷ Members of the Bosnian Serb Forces then selected people at random with their flashlights, and ordered them to get up and leave.¹⁷⁹⁶⁸ When these detainees asked if they needed to take a bag with them, they were told that they would not need anything anymore.¹⁷⁹⁶⁹ Blunt blows, screaming, moaning, and the sound of throats being slit could be heard coming from outside the hangar.¹⁷⁹⁷⁰

According to KDZ039, who was detained inside, approximately 40 men were selected and removed from the hangar in this way during that first night.¹⁷⁹⁷¹ Most of the detainees taken out of the hangar did not return.¹⁷⁹⁷² However, on a few occasions, wounded detainees were brought back and some of them died overnight.¹⁷⁹⁷³

5299. On the morning of 13 July, detainees were made to carry those who had died overnight out of the hangar.¹⁷⁹⁷⁴ Ten detainees were then forced to load the bodies onto trucks and these men never returned.¹⁷⁹⁷⁵ That morning, detainees returning from the toilet next to the hangar were taken aside and killed.¹⁷⁹⁷⁶ On the way to the toilet, KDZ039 observed members of the Bosnian Serb Forces beating a detainee to death with an iron bar and an axe.¹⁷⁹⁷⁷ In the afternoon, a second group of trucks arrived to take away the dead bodies.¹⁷⁹⁷⁸ Again, ten detainees were ordered to load the bodies, and they were never seen again.¹⁷⁹⁷⁹

5300. The situation at the Vuk Karadžić School was no better than that of the hangar. Detainees were also frequently removed from the school by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces and did not return.¹⁷⁹⁸⁰ The sound of detainees groaning and screaming outside the school was constant.¹⁷⁹⁸¹ While Ahmo Hasić was detained at the school, he saw six or seven men taken out of his room; they never returned.¹⁷⁹⁸² At one point, a detainee was brutally beaten by a policeman on the head and shoulders—first with a hose and then with an automatic rifle—until he was covered in blood.¹⁷⁹⁸³ The detainee was then called outside by the same policeman; thereafter, screams and moans were heard and the detainee never returned.¹⁷⁹⁸⁴

5301. During the night of 13 July, detainees were also removed from the buses parked outside the Vuk Karadžić School by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces and taken to the school building.¹⁷⁹⁸⁵ Detainees on the buses heard screaming and gunfire, and many of the men who were taken off the buses did not return.¹⁷⁹⁸⁶ A Bosnian Serb man named “Ilija” boarded the buses and called out the names of detainees.¹⁷⁹⁸⁷ With the assistance of two unknown individuals, Ilija took detainees from the buses to the school on several occasions that night; those men were not seen again.¹⁷⁹⁸⁸

5302. Members of the Bratunac public utility company and the Bratunac Civilian Protection unit were involved in the collection of bodies from the Vuk Karadžić School and surrounding area, starting on 14 July.¹⁷⁹⁸⁹ Between 40 and 50 bodies were scattered across multiple classrooms on the ground and first floors.¹⁷⁹⁹⁰ Classrooms were riddled with bullet holes, and blood everywhere.¹⁷⁹⁹¹ Đukanović estimated that he and his colleagues collected between 23 and 28 bodies from the Vuk Karadžić School, and between 27 and 33 bodies from the surrounding area.¹⁷⁹⁹² The bodies collected from the Vuk Karadžić School and surrounding area were loaded on to trucks and transported to the Glogova gravesites.¹⁷⁹⁹³ Following the collection and transportation of the bodies, between 20 and 30 women were assigned by the Bratunac municipality to clean the Vuk Karadžić School.¹⁷⁹⁹⁴

5303. Based on the above, the Chamber finds that at least 50 Bosnian Muslim men were killed by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces between 12 and 14 July 1995 inside the Vuk Karadžić School and in the surrounding area.

(2) Killing of mentally challenged man

5304. The Indictment refers to the killing on the evening of 13 July 1995 of a mentally challenged Bosnian Muslim man who was taken off a bus parked in front of the entrance of the Vuk Karadžić School in Bratunac and summarily executed.¹⁷⁹⁹⁵

5305. During the night of 13 July 1995, a mentally challenged man detained in one of the buses parked outside the Vuk Karadžić School fell asleep despite being told by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces not to do so.¹⁷⁹⁹⁶ A military policeman boarded the bus and hit him on the shoulder.¹⁷⁹⁹⁷ The man was woken suddenly and accidentally hit the policeman.¹⁷⁹⁹⁸ The policeman cursed the man, while two other military policemen dragged him off the bus in the direction of the school.¹⁷⁹⁹⁹ After the man was removed from the bus, Mevludin Orić, who was also on the bus, heard a short burst of gunfire, a scream, and someone saying “drag him into the school”.¹⁸⁰⁰⁰ The man was not seen again.¹⁸⁰⁰¹

f. Zvornik

i. Introduction

5307. As the Chamber has previously described, Zvornik is a municipality in eastern BiH, located on the Drina River, which marks the boundary between BiH and Serbia.¹⁸⁰⁰²

5308. In July 1995, the area of responsibility of the Zvornik Brigade stretched along the west bank of the Drina River, from the mouth of the Drinjaca tributary in the south, to Pilica in the north.¹⁸⁰⁰³

It covered the most northern part of the Drina Corps' defence, including Kozluk, Zvornik, and Snagovo.¹⁸⁰⁰⁴ The Chamber recalls that the Zvornik Brigade headquarters, known as the Standard Barracks, was situated in Karakaj, about two kilometres north of Zvornik, along the Konjević Polje–Zvornik–Bijeljina Road, which followed the Drina River.¹⁸⁰⁰⁵ The Zvornik Brigade IKM was located in the village of Kitovnice, approximately 15 kilometres from the Standard Barracks, in the direction of Orahovac.¹⁸⁰⁰⁶

ii. Lead-up to the events in Zvornik

(1) Preparations in Bratunac between 13 and 14 July

5309. On the evening of 13 July at approximately 7 p.m., Drago Nikolić called Dragan Obrenović at the Standard Barracks and told him that Popović had just telephoned to inform him that a large number of Bosnian Muslims who were being detained in Bratunac would be transferred to Zvornik to be shot.¹⁸⁰⁰⁷ Drago Nikolić then reported that Popović had said the order came from Mladić, and that “everyone, including Pandurević was aware of [it].”¹⁸⁰⁰⁸ Popović told Drago Nikolić that he would send someone to brief him in person and give him additional information.¹⁸⁰⁰⁹ Drago Nikolić then asked Obrenović to be relieved from his duties at the IKM, and requested the assistance of the Zvornik Brigade MP Company to be able to carry out the task given to him.¹⁸⁰¹⁰ Obrenović agreed to relieve Nikolić and to send five military policemen and Miomir Jasikovac, the Commander of the Zvornik Brigade MP Company,¹⁸⁰¹¹ in order to assist him.¹⁸⁰¹² Jasikovac arrived at the Standard Barracks at approximately 8 p.m., and was ordered by Obrenović to gather five or six of his men and await further orders from Drago Nikolić.¹⁸⁰¹³

5310. Momir Nikolić testified that he met with Beara in Bratunac town on the evening of 13 July, and was ordered to meet with Drago Nikolić and convey the decision that detainees in Bratunac were to be transferred to the Zvornik Brigade area of responsibility, and that Drago had to prepare facilities and security for the transfer and detention of these men.¹⁸⁰¹⁴ Momir Nikolić understood from this exchange that the detainees would be executed in Zvornik municipality.¹⁸⁰¹⁵ As instructed, Momir Nikolić then drove to Zvornik and conveyed the order to Drago Nikolić.¹⁸⁰¹⁶ Drago Nikolić replied that he would inform his command.¹⁸⁰¹⁷ Momir Nikolić returned to Bratunac town at around midnight and reported to Beara at the Hotel Fontana.¹⁸⁰¹⁸

5311. At 8:10 p.m., Deronjić spoke to the Accused via an intermediary and informed him that there were 2,000 detainees in Bratunac and that more were expected to arrive during the night.¹⁸⁰¹⁹ The conversation unfolded as follows:

: I'm waiting for a call to President Karadžić. Is he there?
B: Yes.
: Hello! Just a minute, the duty officer will answer now, Mr. President.
B: Hello! I have Deronjić on line.
: Deronjić, speak up.
D: Hello! Yes. I can hear you.
: Deronjić, the President is asking how many thousands?
D: About two for the time being.
: Two, Mr. President. (heard in the background)
D: But there'll be more during the night.

5312. Soon after reporting to Beara at Hotel Fontana, Momir Nikolić drove him to the Bratunac SDS Office to meet with Deronjić and Vasić.¹⁸⁰²¹ At the meeting, Beara and Deronjić argued about where to kill the detainees; it was already openly agreed that the detainees would be executed.¹⁸⁰²² Despite Beara's orders earlier that day to prepare facilities and security for the transfer of detainees to Zvornik, Beara insisted that he had instructions from "his boss" that the detainees should remain in Bratunac.¹⁸⁰²³ Deronjić replied that he did not want anyone to be killed in Bratunac and that he had received instructions from the Accused that all of the Bosnian Muslim men being detained in Bratunac should be transferred to Zvornik.¹⁸⁰²⁴ Eventually, Beara and Deronjić reached an agreement to transfer the detainees to the area of responsibility of the Zvornik Brigade in the

See also P4374 (Witness statement of Milenko Katanić dated 11 October 2011), paras. 84 (stating that Deronjić told him he had a very unpleasant conversation with Beara regarding the Bosnian Muslim prisoners and the location where they would be imprisoned) and 93 (stating that Deronjić told him that Beara was searching for a location "probably to kill the prisoners" in Bratunac and that the Accused assisted Deronjić by lending his support to the idea of relocating the detainees so that they were not killed in Bratunac). Momir Nikolić testified that after driving Beara to the Bratunac SDS office, he waited in the reception area next to Deronjić's office where he could hear the entire meeting. Momir Nikolić, T. 24676–24677 (14 February 2012). The Accused challenges Momir Nikolić's evidence on this meeting as unreliable and unacceptable without corroboration. See Defence Final Brief, paras. 3039–3040. Having assessed Momir Nikolić's evidence, the Chamber is satisfied of the truthfulness and reliability of his account of the meeting between Beara, Vasić, and Deronjić.

¹⁸⁰²³ Momir Nikolić, T. 24677, 24679–24680 (14 February 2012). Momir Nikolić acknowledged that Beara's conduct in this meeting was contrary to his earlier order to inform Drago Nikolić that detainees were to be transferred to Zvornik, but testified that "especially on the 13th, [decisions] changed rapidly. So first you would receive one order and half an hour later the order was amended, you would receive a different order, and that was the situation that prevailed in Bratunac at the time, and in particular on the 13th when there were many problems". following days.¹⁸⁰²⁵ After the meeting, Momir Nikolić went to the Bratunac Brigade Command and informed Blagojević and other personnel of the plan.¹⁸⁰²⁶

(2) Transportation of detainees from Bratunac to Zvornik

5313. The transportation of detainees from the Bratunac area to Zvornik began on the night of 13 July.¹⁸⁰²⁷ The Bosnian Muslim men detained at the hangar behind the Vuk Karadžić School were forced to board six buses which departed in the direction of Zvornik.¹⁸⁰²⁸ Momir Nikolić saw buses “full of people” heading in the direction of Zvornik at around midnight.¹⁸⁰²⁹

5314. Early on the morning of 14 July, Beara and Popović drove to the Standard Barracks to meet with Drago Nikolić.¹⁸⁰³⁰ After the meeting, Beara ordered Popović to organise a convoy to transport the detainees from Bratunac to the buildings in Zvornik which had been designated for their detention.¹⁸⁰³¹ Drago Nikolić ordered his driver, Milorad Birčaković, to drive him to Hotel Vidikovac, located two kilometres from Zvornik.¹⁸⁰³² Meanwhile, Popović and Beara returned to the Bratunac Brigade Command where Beara ordered Momir Nikolić to help form the convoy.¹⁸⁰³³

5315. Soon after, Popović started forming the convoy with Momir Nikolić’s assistance.¹⁸⁰³⁴ Two members of the Bratunac Brigade MP were ordered to assist with the escort of detainees to Zvornik, by driving an APC that had been seized from DutchBat and parking it at the edge of Bratunac town.¹⁸⁰³⁵ Throughout the morning, vehicles from various sites in and around Bratunac town were driven towards the edge of town where the APC was waiting.¹⁸⁰³⁶ Detainees on some vehicles waited for several hours for the entire convoy to assemble.¹⁸⁰³⁷ By the end of this process, a column was formed which consisted of between 30 and 50 buses and some trucks, and was approximately one to one and a half kilometres in length.¹⁸⁰³⁸

5316. The convoy left Bratunac for Zvornik around noon, heading in the direction of Konjević Polje, with Popović in the Golf leading the way, followed by the APC.¹⁸⁰³⁹ The convoy was escorted by the same members of the Bratunac Brigade MP and MUP who had guarded the detention facilities in Bratunac in the preceding days, as well as by other members of the Bosnian Serb Forces.¹⁸⁰⁴⁰ It took between an hour and an hour and a half for the first part of the convoy to reach Hotel Vidikovac.¹⁸⁰⁴¹ At this time, Drago Nikolić, Birčaković, and Mane Đurić were at the hotel.¹⁸⁰⁴² Shortly after the convoy arrived, Drago Nikolić ordered Birčaković to board the first bus.¹⁸⁰⁴³ Escorted by Popović, the first part of the convoy went on to the Orahovac School.¹⁸⁰⁴⁴

The Chamber notes that the Prosecution relies on Birčaković’s evidence and several other witnesses in relation to the time that the convoy left Bratunac and subsequently reached the Hotel Vidikovac. See Prosecution Final Brief, Appendix D, p. 34, fns. 376, 382. Given the significant body of credible evidence suggesting that the convoy reached the Hotel Vidikovac in the early afternoon, the Chamber finds that the events which Birčaković refers to occurred later in the day. This inaccuracy aside, the Chamber is satisfied that Birčaković’s evidence was reliable and of probative value, and therefore had no difficulty in relying upon it.

iii. Detentions and Killings

(1) Orahovac School and field near Orahovac

(a) Introduction

5317. The Indictment refers to the killing on or about 14 July 1995 of two Bosnian Muslim detainees who were held at the school in Orahovac; the two detainees were removed from the school and summarily executed by rifle fire.¹⁸⁰⁴⁸ The Indictment also refers to the killing on 14 July 1995 of approximately 1,000 Bosnian Muslim men who were detained at the school in Orahovac, blindfolded, transported to a nearby field by truck, and summarily executed. According to the Indictment, the bodies of the victims were buried in mass graves at the execution site on 14 and 15 July 1995.¹⁸⁰⁴⁹

Popović et al.*), T. 1193, 1227. However, having compared Hasić’s evidence with the totality of evidence received by the Chamber in relation to this killing incident, as discussed in Section C.I.f.iii.4: Kula School and Pilica Cultural Centre, the Chamber considers that Hasić arrived at Kula School on 14 July. The Chamber heard evidence that the vehicles heading to Kula School stopped near Pilica for between an hour and an hour and a half; while they were stopped, a Bosnian Muslim detainee who had been standing in the aisle of one of the buses appeared to lie down; when he did not move again, the other detainees discovered that he had died, and his body was put on the side of the road. Ahmo Hasić, P354 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 1191–1192, 1291. Another detainee got permission to leave the bus in order to urinate and, when he attempted to flee, the Serb soldiers “cut him down with a burst of gunfire”. Ahmo Hasić, P354 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 1191–1192, 1272–1274. Hasić testified that he did not see the man being killed, but was told by other detainees standing in front of the bus that he was killed. Ahmo Hasić, P354 (Transcript from *Prosecutor v. 5318. The village of Orahovac is located northwest of Zvornik,¹⁸⁰⁵⁰ within the area of responsibility of the 4th Battalion of the Zvornik Brigade.¹⁸⁰⁵¹ The Orahovac School, also known as Grbavci School,¹⁸⁰⁵² is located near Orahovac, on the main road towards Križeviči, approximately 12 kilometres away from the Standard Barracks in Karakaj.¹⁸⁰⁵³ The Orahovac School complex is composed of a main building, a gymnasium connected to the main building by a corridor, and a large playground located between the gymnasium and the main road.¹⁸⁰⁵⁴

(b) Detention at the Orahovac School and killing of two men

5319. A detachment of the Zvornik Brigade MP Company was sent to the Orahovac School on the night of 13 July; its members were told by Jasikovac that they were to provide security for detainees who were expected to arrive at the school.¹⁸⁰⁵⁵ Once at the school, the detachment followed Jasikovac's orders, and started making the necessary preparations.¹⁸⁰⁵⁶ At some point on 14 July, other members of the Zvornik Brigade—including members of the 4th Battalion—were also present at the school.¹⁸⁰⁵⁷

The Prosecution claims that the Zvornik Brigade MP attendance roster for 14 July 1995 was altered to conceal the presence and involvement of MPs in the murder operation at Orahovac. See Prosecution Final Brief, Appendix D, confidential, fn. 400; Richard Butler, T. 27562–27564 (18 April 2012). According to the Prosecution, this is consistent with other alterations made with respect to other execution sites. See Prosecution Final Brief, Appendix D, confidential, fn. 499 (referring to the altering of the roster for 15 July to conceal the presence of MP members at Ročević School). See also fn. 18368. The Chamber has reviewed the relevant entries of the duty roster and has found indicia of an apparent alteration. Thus, in light of the evidence demonstrating that members of the Zvornik Brigade's MP Company were present at the Orahovac School on 14 July, and the fact that attempts were also made to conceal the unit's presence at the Ročević School on 15 July, the Chamber finds that the attendance roster was indeed altered in an attempt to conceal the presence of members of the Zvornik Brigade MP Company at the Orahovac School on 14 July 1995.

5322. At some point, a crowd of about 100 hostile locals gathered near the school and made comments that all of the detainees ought to be killed.¹⁸⁰⁶⁷ Members of the Zvornik Brigade had to control the crowd.¹⁸⁰⁶⁸

5323. Once all the detainees had entered, they filled the entire gymnasium.¹⁸⁰⁶⁹ The Chamber received evidence that anywhere between 500 and 2,500 Bosnian Muslim men were detained at the Orahovac School.¹⁸⁰⁷⁰ The approximate age range of the detainees at the gymnasium was 15 to 70 years old, but there were also four 10 to 14 years old boys.¹⁸⁰⁷¹

5324. The detainees were ordered to sit with their knees touching their chests, and were told that they would be shot if they did not comply.¹⁸⁰⁷² There was not enough space for everyone to sit, so some men had to sit on others' laps.¹⁸⁰⁷³ The detainees were sitting so tightly packed that they could not move.¹⁸⁰⁷⁴ With an outside temperature "well in its 30s",¹⁸⁰⁷⁵ it was stuffy in the gymnasium and the detainees started to suffocate and faint.¹⁸⁰⁷⁶ The detainees were not given any men as "young lads [...] holding rifles in their hands", adding that when someone addressed them as soldiers they said that they were not soldiers but "Karadžić's Chetniks, Young Chetniks". food, but the four boys were allowed to fetch water, although it was not sufficient for everyone.¹⁸⁰⁷⁷

A bucket served as a toilet.¹⁸⁰⁷⁸

5325. At one point, a man stood up and complained to the soldiers guarding the gymnasium, stating that he was suffocating and did not want to stay there any longer.¹⁸⁰⁷⁹ The soldiers told the man to come out and cool off a bit, ordering the detainees around him to push him out.¹⁸⁰⁸⁰ As the man went through the entrance door, the soldiers shot and killed him, dragging his body away.¹⁸⁰⁸¹ Later, another man commented that the detainees should not be killed; he was then taken out by one of the soldiers guarding the entrance.¹⁸⁰⁸² As the man was taken out, a rifle shot was heard, followed by moaning and another shot; then there was silence.¹⁸⁰⁸³ Two dead bodies were later seen in the playground of the school.¹⁸⁰⁸⁴

5326. People dressed in civilian clothes,¹⁸⁰⁸⁵ followed later by VRS officers, arrived at the school.¹⁸⁰⁸⁶ By the early afternoon,¹⁸⁰⁸⁷ a number of soldiers had gathered on the road in front of the school and in the school's playground.¹⁸⁰⁸⁸ Drago Nikolić and Sreten Milošević were standing in the schoolyard by the main gate in front of the gymnasium.¹⁸⁰⁸⁹ Jasikovac,¹⁸⁰⁹⁰ Popović,¹⁸⁰⁹¹

Trbić,¹⁸⁰⁹² Beara,¹⁸⁰⁹³ as well as Lazar Ristić—the Commander of the Zvornik Brigade’s 4th Battalion—¹⁸⁰⁹⁴ were also present at the school premises on the afternoon of 14 July 1995.¹⁸⁰⁹⁵

5327. By the afternoon,¹⁸⁰⁹⁶ one of the officers ordered everyone to “shut up” following which he began instructing the detainees to move out of the gymnasium.¹⁸⁰⁹⁷ The detainees were told to prepare to be taken to Batković Camp,¹⁸⁰⁹⁸ and were instructed to face the wall.¹⁸⁰⁹⁹ After the detainees were lined up, which took 10 to 15 minutes,¹⁸¹⁰⁰ they were taken in groups to a small locker room adjacent to the gymnasium, where five or six armed soldiers in camouflage uniform, including a woman, were standing.¹⁸¹⁰¹ The detainees were either blindfolded by another detainee or were given strips of cloth about 15 centimetres wide with which they had to cover their eyes procedure was repeated until the gymnasium was emptied and it was almost dark.¹⁸¹¹³ After the first few trips, Jasikovac ordered Birčaković to follow the trucks in a red Opel Rekord until reaching a water point further down the main road; thereafter he had to return to the school while the trucks turned left and continued up a macadam road.¹⁸¹¹⁴

5330. Having left at one point earlier that afternoon, Drago Nikolić returned to the Orahovac School just before night fall.¹⁸¹¹⁵ When Ristić went to the school that evening and tried to take away the soldiers sent earlier that day as reinforcements, he was stopped by Drago Nikolić, who said that if the men stayed they would be issued with new uniforms.¹⁸¹¹⁶ Drago Nikolić had also been asking for volunteers to take part in the execution of detainees, and a member of the 4th Battalion volunteered.¹⁸¹¹⁷

(c) The killings at the field near Orahovac

5331. From the Orahovac School the detainees were taken to two meadows located approximately 800 metres away.¹⁸¹¹⁸ The first meadow was reached by going through an underpass under a railroad track (“First Meadow”); the second one was located closer to the main road leading to the Orahovac School, approximately 300 metres away from the First Meadow (“Second Meadow”).¹⁸¹¹⁹

5332. Upon arriving at the meadows, the detainees were ordered to jump off the trucks and line up in rows.¹⁸¹²⁰ As soon as the trucks departed, bursts of automatic gun fire erupted.¹⁸¹²¹ Soldiers also fired at the bodies once they had fallen to the ground to “finish them off”.¹⁸¹²² Further, they cursed the wounded and let them suffer in agony for a while before killing them.¹⁸¹²³ The soldiers also shot at survivors who tried to escape.¹⁸¹²⁴ Detainees continued to be brought in trucks, ordered to line up, and shot.¹⁸¹²⁵ The process continued for approximately two hours until it was dark.¹⁸¹²⁶ Once the First Meadow was full of bodies, the soldiers moved to the Second Meadow, where they continued with the killings.¹⁸¹²⁷

5333. Throughout this time, the detainees at the Orahovac School, as well as the soldiers guarding them, could hear bursts of fire coming from the direction in which the trucks had departed; shortly after, the empty trucks would return to the school.¹⁸¹²⁸ Following one of these trips, members of the Zvornik Brigade who were escorting the trucks were overheard saying that the detainees had been executed.¹⁸¹²⁹

5334. A small boy survived the execution and was taken to a hospital for treatment by a member of the Zvornik Brigade.¹⁸¹³⁰ Additionally, Mevludin Orić, KDZ039, and KDZ064 all testified as to how they survived the executions. After falling in and out of consciousness, Orić got out from under the dead bodies.¹⁸¹³¹ KDZ039 also managed to get out from under the dead bodies and reached a bush from where he continued watching the killings.¹⁸¹³² Similarly, KDZ064 managed to crawl and climb onto the railway track.¹⁸¹³³ All escaped the site and reached Bosnian Muslim-held territory days later.¹⁸¹³⁴

5335. The Chamber finds that members of the Zvornik Brigade, including at least one member of the 4th Battalion,¹⁸¹³⁵ participated in the execution of the detainees previously held at the Orahovac School on 14 July 1995.¹⁸¹³⁶ The Chamber also received evidence that Drago Nikolić had personally taken part in the executions at the Orahovac School.¹⁸¹³⁷

(d) Burials

5336. Sometime before noon on 14 July, Cvijetin Ristanović—a member of the Zvornik Brigade Engineering Company¹⁸¹³⁸—was ordered by Dragan Jokić—the Chief of Engineering of the Zvornik Brigade¹⁸¹³⁹—to take a backhoe excavator “G-700” to Orahovac.¹⁸¹⁴⁰ Ristanović and a colleague loaded the excavator onto a truck with a trailer, drove to the Orahovac School where they paused briefly, and continued to the water point less than one kilometre away, where they were ordered to stop and wait.¹⁸¹⁴¹ Approximately an hour later, Ristanović was ordered to unload the excavator.¹⁸¹⁴² Slavko Bogičević—a member of the command of the Zvornik Brigade Engineering Company¹⁸¹⁴³—then ordered Ristanović to take the excavator to a meadow behind the Živnice–Zvornik railroad underpass, and to dig a pit in an area marked with four wooden poles.¹⁸¹⁴⁴ Soldiers were standing around the meadow.¹⁸¹⁴⁵ At about 2 p.m., a request from the Zvornik Brigade arrived to release machine operators to assist Popović and Drago Nikolić in the work they were carrying out at the Orahovac School.¹⁸¹⁴⁶

¹⁸¹⁴⁶ [REDACTED]. The message was sent to Milan Marić, a desk officer in the operations department of the Zvornik Brigade staff, who was acting—following appointment by Obrenović—as commander of the company deployed in Snagovo at the time. [REDACTED].

5337. While digging the pit, Ristanović was ordered to stop the machine, go back towards the underpass, and stand facing away from the pit, at which point he heard one truck approaching, followed by shouts and bursts of gunfire.¹⁸¹⁴⁷ When Ristanović was allowed to return to continue digging, he saw corpses of men wearing civilian clothes, as well as blindfolds.¹⁸¹⁴⁸ Ristanović was interrupted on at least one other occasion by the arrival of trucks and soldiers carrying out the executions.¹⁸¹⁴⁹ Sometime in the afternoon, before Ristanović had finished digging the pit, Milovan Miladinović—another member of the Zvornik Brigade Engineering Company—arrived to relieve him and to continue with the digging.¹⁸¹⁵⁰ Ristanović stayed in the area until that night when he and Miladinović were picked up and returned to Zvornik, leaving the excavator at the site.¹⁸¹⁵¹

5338. On 15 July, before noon, Ristanović and Damjan Lazarević—Commander of the Roads and Bridges Platoon of the Zvornik Brigade Engineering Company¹⁸¹⁵²—as well as two or three other soldiers, returned to Orahovac to continue with the digging.¹⁸¹⁵³ Ristanović continued using the backhoe excavator and began digging where a second pit had been marked, closer to the road, but soon after was ordered to move to a third, unmarked area, after a water hose burst in the second location, forcing him to stop the digging.¹⁸¹⁵⁴ Meanwhile, a ULT 200 was used by members of the Zvornik public utility company/Civilian Protection¹⁸¹⁵⁵ to load bodies and take them to the pits dug by the backhoe excavator.¹⁸¹⁵⁶ After finishing digging the gravesite in the afternoon, Ristanović

5339. Towards the end of September 1995, and as part of the reburial operation to conceal the Srebrenica killings which will be discussed in detail below,¹⁸¹⁵⁹ the bodies initially buried at Orahovac were transported away from the site and reburied in the Hodžići Road secondary gravesites, as demonstrated by the forensic evidence discussed in the paragraphs immediately below.

5340. Aerial images reveal that the Lažete gravesites—which were composed of the smaller Lažete 1 and larger Lažete 2¹⁸¹⁶⁰—were dug between 5 and 27 July 1995, and that they were disturbed again between 7 and 27 September 1995.¹⁸¹⁶¹ The Lažete gravesites—which are primary but disturbed—are situated close to the village of Orahovac, approximately 800 metres from the Orahovac School.¹⁸¹⁶² They are grass covered fields located west of a paved road that runs between

5348. As of 13 January 2012, DNA analysis led to the identification of 189 victims from the three sub-gravesites in Lažete 2 as persons listed as missing following the take-over of Srebrenica.¹⁸¹⁹⁷ Four of these individuals were those identified by KDZ039 as being in the same TAM truck as him on the way to the execution site.¹⁸¹⁹⁸

(iii) Hodžići Road secondary gravesites

5349. There are seven known secondary gravesites along the Hodžići road.¹⁸¹⁹⁹ While examination and probing at Hodžići Road 1, 2, 6, and 7 was conducted by a Tribunal team of experts, the exhumation of these gravesites was handed over to the BiH Government and conducted between October 2004 and October 2006.¹⁸²⁰⁰ A Tribunal team of experts, led by Richard Wright, conducted the examination and exhumation of Hodžići Road 3 through 5 in June and July 1998.¹⁸²⁰¹ The remains from Hodžići Road 3 through 5 were then examined by a team of pathologists under the direction of Christopher Lawrence.¹⁸²⁰²

The Chamber notes that the apparent discrepancy between this fact and the evidence admitted in the present case referring to the identification of 189 individuals can be explained by the fact that in 2001—the year in which the Krstić Trial Judgement was issued—the identification process of victims was ongoing.

Further, forensic analysis demonstrated that soil native to the two Lažete gravesites was found in the Hodžići Road secondary graves,¹⁸²¹¹ blindfolds identical to those found in the two Lažete gravesites and in a “rubbish” site on the grounds of the Orahovac School were found in the Hodžići Road secondary gravesites,¹⁸²¹² and pieces of a black water hose discovered during the exhumation of the Lažete gravesites were also found in Hodžići Road 5.¹⁸²¹³ These factors jointly lead to the conclusion that bodies from the Lažete 1 and 2 gravesites were removed and reburied at the Hodžići Road secondary gravesites.

5353. As of 13 January 2012, DNA analysis led to identification of 533 victims from the Hodžići Road gravesites as persons listed as missing following the take-over of Srebrenica: 90 from Hodžići Road 1; 102 from Hodžići Road 2; 40 from Hodžići Road 3; 69 from Hodžići Road 4; 54 from Hodžići Road 5; 67 from Hodžići Road 6; and 111 from Hodžići Road 7.¹⁸²¹⁶

(f) Conclusion

5354. For all the reasons discussed above, the Chamber finds that on 14 July 1995, at least two of the Bosnian Muslim men being detained at the Orahovac School were removed from the gymnasium and summarily executed by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces. The Chamber also finds that the remainder of the at least 839¹⁸²¹⁷ Bosnian Muslim men being detained at the Orahovac School were killed in a field nearby by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces.

(a) Introduction

5355. The Indictment refers to the killing on or about 14 July 1995 of some of the approximately 1,000 Bosnian Muslim men detained at Petkovci School.¹⁸²¹⁸ The Indictment also refers to the killing on or about the evening of 14 July and the morning of 15 July 1995, in an area below the Dam near Petkovci, of the surviving portion of the approximately 1,000 Bosnian Muslim men who were detained at Petkovci School.¹⁸²¹⁹

5356. The village of Petkovci is located approximately seven kilometres west from the turn-off on the main Zvornik–Bijeljina road.¹⁸²²⁰ Petkovci fell within the area of responsibility of the 6th

¹⁸²¹⁷ The Chamber has reached this number by adding the 119 individuals identified from remains in Lažete 1, the 189 individuals identified from remains in the three Lažete 2 sub-gravesites, and the 533 individuals identified from remains in the six Hodžići Road gravesites, and subtracted the two individuals who were killed at the Orahovac School and whose remains may have ended in either of these gravesites. See paras. 5343, 5348, 5353.

(b) Detention and killings at the Petkovci School

5357. On the morning of 14 July, Marko Milošević—the Deputy Commander of the 6th Battalion—received a phone call from Dragan Jokić—the Duty Officer of the Zvornik Brigade—informing him that Bosnian Muslim detainees would be brought to the Petkovci School and that “security” would be in place.¹⁸²²⁴ Captain Ostoja Stanišić, the 6th Battalion’s Commander, who was not at the Battalion’s Command at the time, was notified of the call by Milošević later that day.¹⁸²²⁵

5358. In the afternoon, buses and trucks carrying approximately 1,000 Bosnian Muslim males who had been previously detained in various sites in and around Bratunac arrived at the Petkovci School.¹⁸²²⁶ As the trucks arrived, they pulled over in the playground in front of the school, where many other empty trucks and buses were also parked.¹⁸²²⁷ There, sporadic shooting, as well as cursing and yelling, could be heard.¹⁸²²⁸ Some of the detainees were forced to remain inside the truck in front of the school for about one hour in unbearable conditions.¹⁸²²⁹

5359. As the detainees got off the trucks, they were ordered to put their hands behind their heads, to sing Serb nationalistic songs, and to walk one by one down some steps until they reached the front of the building; all the while the soldiers were cursing them.¹⁸²³⁰ The detainees were also hit and kicked as they ran towards the building.¹⁸²³¹

5360. Once inside the school, the detainees were ordered to climb the stairs to the first floor and, as they did so, they were made to repeat after a Bosnian Serb soldier: “[t]his is Serbian land and will always remain so” and “Srebrenica has always been Serbian and will continue to be that.”¹⁸²³² The detainees were then ordered to follow a corridor to the left,¹⁸²³³ and to enter the various classrooms.¹⁸²³⁴ KDZ045 was put in “classroom number 3”,¹⁸²³⁵ while KDZ069 was placed in one of the last two classrooms.¹⁸²³⁶ Other detainees were ordered to enter the classrooms on the ground floor.¹⁸²³⁷

5361. As KDZ045 entered the classroom, he saw two men who were so badly beaten that he initially thought they were dead.¹⁸²³⁸ The classrooms became overcrowded, and the conditions inside were very difficult.¹⁸²³⁹ The detainees were not allowed to go to the toilet, so almost everyone was soaked with urine.¹⁸²⁴⁰ Despite being very thirsty, the detainees were given very little water.¹⁸²⁴¹ The rooms were very stuffy and the detainees could not breathe properly, but they were not allowed to open or look out any windows.¹⁸²⁴² A detainee's attempt to open a window was followed by a burst of gunfire, which broke the glass panes and wounded five or six men.¹⁸²⁴³ Further, as one detainee tried to look out the window, he was shot and wounded.¹⁸²⁴⁴

5362. On occasion, soldiers would barge into the classrooms and would demand money from the detainees, threatening to kill them if a certain sum had not been collected in 15 or 20 minutes.¹⁸²⁴⁵ Some detainees gave the money they had managed to hide before; the soldiers then left.¹⁸²⁴⁶ Soldiers also walked into the classrooms and asked whether any detainees were from certain villages close to Srebrenica; those who raised their hands in reply were ordered out of the classroom and never returned.¹⁸²⁴⁷ The detainees who remained inside heard the sounds of beating and moaning in the hallway.¹⁸²⁴⁸ Further, a relative of KDZ045 who left the classroom in search of water, never returned.¹⁸²⁴⁹

5363. Between 6 and 7 p.m., Ostoja Stanišić received a call from Dragan Jokić instructing him to notify Beara that he was to report to his command.¹⁸²⁵⁰ Jokić told Stanišić that Beara would be somewhere around the Petkovci School.¹⁸²⁵¹ Stanišić sent Marko Milošević on foot to Petkovci School to convey the order to Beara.¹⁸²⁵² Milošević found Beara—who was with Drago Nikolić at the time—at an intersection close to the school, relayed the message, and returned to the Battalion's Command about 30 minutes later.¹⁸²⁵³

5364. Starting at dusk, there was shooting around the Petkovci School.¹⁸²⁵⁴ Soldiers called detainees out the classrooms in groups, after which bursts of gunfire were heard.¹⁸²⁵⁵ This lasted until around midnight.¹⁸²⁵⁶

5365. At some point after midnight, the detainees were taken out of the classrooms in groups of four, and ordered by soldiers to take off their clothes from the waist up, as well as their shoes and socks, and to empty their pockets.¹⁸²⁵⁷ A pile of clothing, footwear, IDs, and documents lay on the corridor's floor.¹⁸²⁵⁸ Soldiers then tied the detainees' hands behind their backs and pushed them into a dark classroom, where other partly undressed men were also tied up.¹⁸²⁵⁹ The detainees were then ordered to exit the school and to get on the back of military trucks.¹⁸²⁶⁰ As the detainees exited the school they saw dead bodies lying in the hallway of the school and outside of the school.¹⁸²⁶¹

5366. The detainees boarded the trucks until the trucks were full to the point where the detainees could no longer sit, despite being ordered to do so.¹⁸²⁶² Soldiers shot a burst of fire at the detainees' feet, wounding some of them and forcing others to fall on each other.¹⁸²⁶³ The trucks left the Petkovci School and drove for approximately ten minutes along an asphalt road; they then continued on a bumpy macadam road until they reached a field next to the Petkovci Dam.¹⁸²⁶⁴ As soon as the trucks stopped, the detainees could hear yelling and bursts of fire close by.¹⁸²⁶⁵

5367. The Zvornik Brigade vehicle log for two TAM trucks records ten journeys in total on 15 July, between Petkovci and the Petkovci Dam.¹⁸²⁶⁶ The Chamber therefore finds that drivers and trucks from the 6th Battalion of the Zvornik Brigade were used to transport the detainees from the Petkovci School to the execution site near the Petkovci Dam.

5368. The detainees were ordered to get off the trucks, five to ten at a time,¹⁸²⁶⁷ while those who remained inside screamed and asked for water.¹⁸²⁶⁸ As KDZ045 disembarked into a field lit by floodlights, he saw that it was covered with dead bodies, their hands bound, and their faces to the ground.¹⁸²⁶⁹ KDZ069 jumped off the truck.¹⁸²⁷⁰ Detainees were ordered to find a spot and to form a row, after which soldiers wearing black balaclavas covering their faces started shooting at the detainees' backs from a distance of seven to ten metres.¹⁸²⁷¹ The men fell on top of the bodies of those who had been killed before them.¹⁸²⁷² Both KDZ045 and KDZ069 were wounded and pretended to be dead.¹⁸²⁷³ As they lay on the ground, they continued to observe other detainees being killed around them.¹⁸²⁷⁴ KDZ045 drifted in and out of consciousness, as a man had fallen on him and he did not have much air to breath.¹⁸²⁷⁵

5369. After the shooting of the detainees was completed, the soldiers checked the bodies to make sure the men were indeed dead.¹⁸²⁷⁶ One of the soldiers kicked KDZ045 and presumed him dead.¹⁸²⁷⁷ A soldier shot an injured man lying next to KDZ069 in the head.¹⁸²⁷⁸ Soldiers also made derogatory comments about some of the victims.¹⁸²⁷⁹

5370. After lying still for hours amongst the dead, KDZ045 and KDZ069 managed to escape the execution site together and reach a nearby ditch.¹⁸²⁸⁰ In the ditch, KDZ045 helped bandage KDZ069's wound with his own T-shirt.¹⁸²⁸¹ Heavy fire could still be heard.¹⁸²⁸² KDZ045 and KDZ069 stayed in the ditch until dawn; they then decided to leave the area through the nearby forest.¹⁸²⁸³ In the evening of 15 July, the two men managed to reach a macadam road which led them to a burned down village; from there KDZ045 saw the ongoing burial operation at the execution site.¹⁸²⁸⁴ The men then headed in the direction of Karakaj, by following the TV transmitter.¹⁸²⁸⁵ They wandered through Bosnian Serb villages for four days, passing unnoticed through the lines of the Bosnian Serb troops, until they reached Bosnian Muslim-held territory on 18 July 1995.¹⁸²⁸⁶

(d) Burials

5371. In the early hours of 15 July, a Caterpillar bulldozer and a ULT 160 loader belonging to the Engineering Company of the Zvornik Brigade collected bodies from the execution site—10 to 15 at a time—and deposited them onto a tractor with a trailer.¹⁸²⁸⁷ When full, the tractor departed in the direction of the Petkovci Dam, returning 15 to 20 minutes later to be refilled.¹⁸²⁸⁸ Throughout this process, floodlights illuminated the execution site.¹⁸²⁸⁹ Shots were also heard during that time.¹⁸²⁹⁰

5372. Also on that day, pursuant to a request from the Petkovci villagers, Stanišić authorised the use of a TAM truck which belonged to the 6th Battalion to assist with the clean up of bodies from Petkovci School.¹⁸²⁹¹

5373. Towards the end of September 1995, and as part of the reburial operation to conceal the Srebrenica killings which will be discussed in detail below,¹⁸²⁹² the bodies initially buried at the gravesite adjacent to the Petkovci Dam were reburied in the Liplje secondary gravesites, as demonstrated by the forensic evidence discussed in the paragraphs immediately below.

(e) Forensic evidence

(i) Primary gravesite

5374. A primary gravesite adjacent to the Petkovci Dam was exhumed between 15 and 25 April 1998, by a Tribunal exhumation team under the direction of Richard Wright.¹⁸²⁹³ The remains found therein were subsequently examined by a team of pathologists under the direction of Christopher Lawrence.¹⁸²⁹⁴

5375. Aerial images indicate that the gravesite was first excavated between 5 and 27 July 1995, and that the site was later disturbed between 7 and 27 September 1995.¹⁸²⁹⁵ This gravesite contained grossly disarticulated body parts; the disarticulation was thought to have been caused by the mechanical removal of the bodies during the robbing process.¹⁸²⁹⁶

5376. Remains of at least 46 individuals were recovered from the gravesite.¹⁸²⁹⁷ Because of the separation of the body parts within the gravesite, 91 body bags were collected.¹⁸²⁹⁸ Due to the substantial damage on the remains and their high degree of decomposition, experts were only able to determine the sex of 15 of the bodies, all of which were male.¹⁸²⁹⁹ While the cause of death for the majority of remains could not be determined, gunshot wounds identified in remains of nine body bags were deemed “sufficient” or “probably sufficient to cause death”.¹⁸³⁰⁰ Further, the analysis of 464 skull fragments and 211 shell casings recovered from the surface of the gravesite, was consistent with a number of individuals being shot in the head.¹⁸³⁰¹ Finally, one twine ligature was found.¹⁸³⁰²

5377. As of 13 January 2012, DNA analysis led to the identification of 19 bodies from the gravesite adjacent to the Petkovci Dam as persons listed as missing following the take-over of Srebrenica.¹⁸³⁰³

(ii) Liplje secondary gravesites

5378. Four secondary mass gravesites along the Liplje Road—Liplje 1, 2, 3, and 4—were discovered between 1996 and 1998 by a Tribunal team of experts.¹⁸³⁰⁴ A fifth gravesite—Liplje

7—was identified at a later date by the BiHCMP.¹⁸³⁰⁵ Liplje 2 was completely exhumed in August 1995 by a Tribunal team under the direction of Richard Wright.¹⁸³⁰⁶ The remains found at Liplje 2 were then examined by a team of pathologists under the direction of Christopher Lawrence.¹⁸³⁰⁷ While the preliminary examination of Liplje 1, 3, and 4 was conducted by a team of Tribunal experts, the responsibility for exhuming the gravesites—as well as Liplje 7—was that of the BiHCMP.¹⁸³⁰⁸

5379. The Chamber notes that out of all the secondary gravesites associated with the primary gravesite, it only received forensic evidence in relation to Liplje 2. Liplje 2 was situated approximately 14 kilometres south of the Petkovci Dam.¹⁸³⁰⁹ Aerial images reveal that Liplje 2 was created between 7 September and 2 October 1995.¹⁸³¹⁰ The forensic evidence reviewed by the Chamber in relation to Liplje 2 shows that all of the bodies where sex could be determined were male.¹⁸³¹¹ Only four relatively intact bodies were located at Liplje 2; of these, one had died from gunshot wounds, one from possible gunshot wounds, and two had an undetermined cause of death.¹⁸³¹² While the extensive post mortem tampering with the bodies and the normal process of decomposition precluded the experts from being able to provide a cause of death for the remaining body parts analysed,¹⁸³¹³ injuries in some body parts were consistent with gunshot wounds.¹⁸³¹⁴ Further, while no definite blindfolds were located, 23 ligatures were found.¹⁸³¹⁵

5380. Forensic analysis showed that the bodies removed from the gravesite adjacent to the Petkovci Dam were reburied at Liplje 2.¹⁸³¹⁶ Specifically, the gravesite contained unweathered limestone boulders and lumps of green clay, which were characteristic of the robbed gravesite adjacent to the Petkovci Dam.¹⁸³¹⁷ Further, a twine ligature found in Liplje 2 was similar to another found at the gravesite adjacent to the Petkovci Dam.¹⁸³¹⁸ Moreover, DNA-based connections were found between the gravesite adjacent to the Petkovci Dam and the five Liplje secondary

The Chamber notes Dušan Dunjić’s extensive challenges to the pathology report for the Liplje 4 gravesite with respect to the findings therein in relation to the cause of death. See D3893 (Dušan Dunjić’s expert report entitled “Forensic Analysis of Reports on the Locations of Mass Graves in the Area of Eastern Bosnia and Documentation Relating to Exhumations in the Srebrenica Area”, 27 August 2009), pp. 103–125. The Chamber first notes that the original pathology report for Liplje 4 is not in evidence. In any event, while it may have been impossible to determine with certainty the cause of death for each of the remains retrieved from Liplje 4 due to their high degree of decomposition, the Chamber is satisfied that the remains therein had been moved from the gravesite adjacent to the Petkovci Dam. See P4772 (Dušan Janc’s report entitled “Update to the summary of Forensic Evidence - Exhumation of the Graves and Surface Remains Recoveries related to Srebrenica - January 2012”, 13 January 2012), e-court pp. 49, 82, 84. See para. 5512. Therefore the Chamber is satisfied that the remains retrieved from Liplje 4 are linked to this Scheduled Incident and to the events described in this section.

gravesites.¹⁸³¹⁹ DNA-based connections were also found between the various Liplje secondary gravesites themselves.¹⁸³²⁰

5381. As of 13 January 2012, DNA analysis led to the identification of 796 victims from the Liplje gravesites as persons listed as missing following the take-over of Srebrenica: 159 in Liplje 1; 175 in Liplje 2; 57 in Liplje 3; 289 in Liplje 4, and 116 in Liplje 7.¹⁸³²¹

(f) Conclusion

5382. For all these reasons, the Chamber finds that, on 14 and 15 July 1995, at least 815 Bosnian Muslim men detained at the Petkovci School were killed by the Bosnian Serb Forces. Some were summarily executed by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces while being detained at Petkovci School. The rest were killed in a field nearby the Petkovci Dam.

(a) Introduction

5383. The Indictment refers to the killing on or about 14 or 15 July 1995 at Ročević School of some of the approximately 1,000 Bosnian Muslim men detained therein.¹⁸³²² The Indictment also refers to the killing on 15 July 1995 of the surviving portion of the approximately 1,000 Bosnian ¹⁸³¹⁹ The specific connections are as follows: four individuals with remains in both the Petkovci Dam and Liplje 1; five individuals with remains in both the Petkovci Dam and Liplje 2; four individuals with remains in both the Petkovci Dam and Liplje 3; 15 individuals with remains in both the Petkovci Dam and Liplje 4; and 7 individuals with remains in both the Petkovci Dam and Liplje 7. The Chamber notes Dunjić's claim that there is no evidence that all bodies from the Liplje gravesites are connected to the killings at the Petkovci Dam. D3893 (Dušan Dunjić's expert report entitled "Forensic Analysis of Reports on the Locations of Mass Graves in the Area of Eastern Bosnia and Documentation Relating to Exhumations in the Srebrenica Area", 27 August 2009), p. 117. Having considered the totality of evidence, the Chamber accepts Janc's report and the findings therein, and finds that the bodies from the Liplje gravesites are linked to this Scheduled Incident and to the events described in this section.

¹⁸³²⁰ The specific connections are as follows: 11 individuals with remains in both Liplje 1 and Liplje 2; 12 individuals with remains in both Liplje 1 and Liplje 3; two individuals with remains in both Liplje 1 and Liplje 4; one individual with remains in both Liplje 2 and Liplje 4; 12 individuals with remains in both Liplje 2 and Liplje 7; 13 individuals with remains in both Liplje 3 and Liplje 4; and one individual with remains in both Liplje 4 and Liplje 7. Muslim men who had been detained at Ročević School, at a site on the bank of the Drina River near Kozluk.¹⁸³²³

5384. The village of Kozluk is located off the western bank of the Drina River, less than ten kilometres north of Karakaj along the main Zvornik–Bijeljina Road.¹⁸³²⁴ The Ročević School is situated just off the main Zvornik–Bijeljina Road, in the village of Ročević, approximately seven kilometres further north from Kozluk.¹⁸³²⁵ In 1995, the Command of the 2nd Battalion of the Zvornik Brigade was located in Malešić, approximately 15 kilometres from Ročević.¹⁸³²⁶

(b) Detention and killings at the Ročević School

5385. On 14 July 1995, buses carrying Bosnian Muslim males who had been previously detained in various sites in and around Bratunac, arrived at the Ročević School.¹⁸³²⁷ When Popović arrived at the school in the afternoon, he found Bosnian Muslim detainees inside the school's gymnasium.¹⁸³²⁸

5386. On the evening of 14 July,¹⁸³²⁹ five to seven members of the Bratunac Brigade MP set off from Bratunac towards Ročević School.¹⁸³³⁰ Upon arriving, they encountered other members of the ¹⁸³²⁸ D3993 (Witness statement of Vujadin Popović dated 2 November 2013), para. 52. The Chamber also received evidence that Beara visited the various sites in Zvornik where Bosnian Muslims were being detained on 14 July. See P4563 (Statement by KDZ122), p. 2 (under seal) (referring to the presence of Beara in Zvornik on 14 July 1995); P4585 (Zvornik Brigade Duty Officers logbook, 29 May–27 July 1995), e-court p. 45 (an entry for 14 July 1995 at 15:00 hours noting that “Colonel Beara is coming in order to Orovoc Petkovci Ročević Pilica”). The Chamber refers to its assessment of Beara's testimony regarding his whereabouts on 13 and 14 July discussed in fn. 17583.

¹⁸³²⁹ Mile Janjić, P372 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 17948, 17998–17999. Janjić testified that he was not sure whether he left for Zvornik on 14 or 15 July 1995. Mile Janjić, P372 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 17948, 17961, 17990–17991. However, in light of the evidence described below showing that the Bosnian Muslim detainees had already been transported to the execution site and subsequently killed by the evening of 15 July, the Chamber considers that he and his colleagues went to Ročević on 14 July 1995. See paras. 5313, 5316.

Bratunac Brigade¹⁸³³¹ who had been tasked with guarding the Bosnian Muslims detained inside the school building and the adjacent gymnasium.¹⁸³³²

5387. Between 8 and 9 p.m. on 14 July,¹⁸³³³ Srećko Aćimović—the Commander of the Zvornik Brigade’s 2nd Battalion¹⁸³³⁴—was informed by the priest and the president of the Ročević local commune that detainees were being held at the Ročević School and were being killed.¹⁸³³⁵ Aćimović headed to the school immediately and, upon entering the school yard, heard detainees inside the gymnasium screaming for water and asking to go to the bathroom.¹⁸³³⁶ Aćimović also encountered soldiers unknown to him behaving erratically, seemingly under the influence of ¹⁸³³¹ Mile Janjić, P372 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 17951–17952, 17954. Janjić testified that upon arriving at Ročević School he saw a group of between 10 to 15 soldiers who were members of the “Zenica company”, which was part of the Bratunac Brigade. Mile Janjić, P372 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 17951. These men were members of both the 1st and the 2nd Battalions of the Bratunac Brigade, but they were referred to as “the Zenica people” because they had come from Zenica in 1992. Mile Janjić, P372 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 17952. Janjić testified that Mirko Janković was also present at Ročević School. Mile Janjić, P372 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 17951, 17968. See Momir Nikolić, T. 24570–24571 (13 February 2012). See also Dragan Jović, P365 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 18053, 18083 (referring to the presence of members of the MP at Ročević School on 15 July, who did not belong to the Zvornik Brigade, but who might have been part of the Bratunac Brigade).

The members of the Bratunac Brigade MP left in the direction of Bratunac less than half an hour after first arriving at Ročević School, leaving the other soldiers behind. Mile Janjić, P372 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 17955–17956, 17998–17999. Janković also left around the same time in an unknown direction, driving a UN APC. Mile Janjić, P372 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 17956, 17989–17990.

¹⁸³³³ Aćimović testified that he was not certain that the events described took place on 14 July but that it was mid-July. Srećko Aćimović, P343 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 13123–13124. However, in light of the totality of Aćimović’s evidence and the timeline of the events described by other witnesses in relation to this killing incident, the Chamber considers that it was indeed 14 July 1995. The Chamber admitted Aćimović’s prior testimony in the Popović et al. case pursuant to Rule 92 bis. The Chamber has analysed Aćimović’s testimony in its totality and in the context of other evidence before it. While the Chamber found internal inconsistencies within Aćimović’s testimony, as well as between portions of his testimony and other evidence before it, see e.g. fns. 18343, 18367, these inconsistencies, in the Chamber’s view, arise from his efforts to downplay his own responsibility and involvement in the events at Ročević on 14 and 15 July 1995. The Chamber also finds that Aćimović was not always forthright in his account of events, but this also arises from his efforts to downplay his own responsibility and involvement in the events described in the following paragraphs. The Chamber has taken all of this into consideration and has decided to rely on the uncontested aspects of Aćimović’s evidence, as well as on aspects which are corroborated by other accepted evidence, as it has found such evidence to be reliable and of probative value.

narcotics or alcohol.¹⁸³³⁷ Aćimović left approximately half an hour later to inform the Zvornik Brigade about the situation at Ročević School.¹⁸³³⁸

5388. Sometime between 1 and 2 a.m. on 15 July, an encrypted telegram from the Zvornik Brigade Command was received over the phone, with the order to dispatch a platoon of soldiers from the 2nd Battalion to the Ročević School “for the execution of the prisoners”.¹⁸³³⁹ Once the telegram had been decoded, Aćimović discussed it with two close associates in the 2nd Battalion, namely Vujo Lazarević—the Assistant Battalion Commander for Morale and Religious Affairs—and Mitar Lazarević—the Officer for General Services—, and together decided that no personnel would be assigned to the task.¹⁸³⁴⁰ He then sent a response telegram to the Zvornik Brigade, indicating that the 2nd Battalion did not have any personnel available to execute the detainees.¹⁸³⁴¹

5389. According to Aćimović, a second telegram was received with the same content approximately 45 minutes to an hour later.¹⁸³⁴² Aćimović again consulted with his associates, Vujo and Mitar Lazarević, and decided to disobey the order, sending yet another response telegram to the Zvornik Brigade.¹⁸³⁴³ Approximately ten minutes later, at around 2.30 a.m., Aćimović received a phone call from Drago Nikolić telling him that the order “had come from above” and that it had to be carried out.¹⁸³⁴⁴ Aćimović refused, yet again, to assign the task to anyone.¹⁸³⁴⁵ Nikolić insisted that Aćimović was to dispatch his men by 7 a.m., around which time they would speak again.¹⁸³⁴⁶ Around 7 or 8 a.m., Drago Nikolić called again and asked Aćimović whether the order had been executed,¹⁸³⁴⁷ adding that, if Aćimović was unable to put a group of men together, Aćimović and his associates should carry out the executions themselves.¹⁸³⁴⁸ Aćimović was then ordered by an angry Drago Nikolić to meet him at the Ročević School at 9 or 10 a.m.¹⁸³⁴⁹

Mitar Lazarević, P363 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 13405. The Chamber notes the conflicting evidence between Aćimović and Mitar Lazarević in this regard but finds that these inconsistencies are not sufficient to cast doubt upon the existence of instructions originating from the Zvornik Brigade.

5390. Aćimović drove to the Ročević School between 9 and 10 a.m. but Drago Nikolić was not there.¹⁸³⁵⁰ Between 15 and 20 VRS MP soldiers were in front of the gymnasium and behind the school.¹⁸³⁵¹ Aćimović also saw at least a dozen bodies lying on the ground.¹⁸³⁵² Aćimović met Popović in front of the school, and together they walked to an office inside the school.¹⁸³⁵³ Popović shouted at Aćimović, asking why he had not brought any soldiers as ordered.¹⁸³⁵⁴ Popović continued putting pressure on Aćimović to get men, and threatened that he would be held responsible for not following the order.¹⁸³⁵⁵ Popović then called the Zvornik Brigade Duty Officer and asked that vehicles, as well as either Trbić or Jasikovac, be sent to Ročević urgently.¹⁸³⁵⁶

5391. Veljko Ivanović—a driver for the 2nd Battalion¹⁸³⁵⁷—was ordered by Mitar Lazarević to be on duty and to work out of the Standard Barracks for as long as necessary after the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁸³⁵⁸ At around 11:15 a.m. on 15 July, while at the Standard Barracks, an order from Aćimović was conveyed to Ivanović to take three crates of ammunition for automatic rifles to Ročević School.¹⁸³⁵⁹ Ivanović set out towards Ročević driving a Mercedes T 170 belonging to the 2nd Battalion, and arrived soon after.¹⁸³⁶⁰ According to Aćimović, Popović became angry when only a single truck arrived.¹⁸³⁶¹ Popović then stated that the detainees would have to be killed “somewhere nearby, near the school, and that they should all be killed in Ročević”.¹⁸³⁶² He ordered Aćimović to call the drivers of six or seven civilian trucks and to bring them to the school.¹⁸³⁶³ Fifteen to 20 minutes later, when Djoko Nikolić—another driver for the 2nd Battalion—arrived in a TAM 2001 truck which could only accommodate about 15 people, Popović again became upset.¹⁸³⁶⁴ According to Aćimović, Dragan Jović—a member of the 2nd Battalion who was present at the school at the time—then offered to secure another vehicle.¹⁸³⁶⁵ Jović testified, however, that it was Aćimović who ordered him to find volunteers to execute the detainees, and to fetch a civilian truck.¹⁸³⁶⁶ Aćimović went to the schoolyard to see whether he could find anybody willing to take part in the killings.¹⁸³⁶⁷

5392. At around 11 a.m. Jasikovac arrived at the Ročević School together with other members of the Zvornik Brigade MP.¹⁸³⁶⁸ Other members of the Zvornik Brigade were also present at the school.¹⁸³⁶⁹ Jasikovac ordered his men to secure the facility and the detainees held there.¹⁸³⁷⁰ Some members of the Zvornik Brigade MP were also ordered to secure the entrance of the school in order to prevent angry Bosnian Serb civilians threatening to harm the detainees from approaching them.¹⁸³⁷¹ By this time, approximately 1,000 detainees were being held at the school, and a couple of bodies of Bosnian Muslim detainees could still be seen lying outside.¹⁸³⁷²

5393. Around noon on 15 July 1995, KDZ496—who was 15 years old at the time and was wearing civilian clothes¹⁸³⁷³—went towards the asphalt road near his home in Zvornik municipality; there, he encountered a member of the 2nd Battalion who told him to go with him by car to Ročević where Bosnian Muslim men were being held prisoners.¹⁸³⁷⁴ KDZ496 arrived at the Ročević School between 12 and 1 p.m.,¹⁸³⁷⁵ was brought before Popović and Aćimović by one of

T. 18056–18057, 18060–18061, 18083–18084. The Chamber considers that these inconsistencies are largely due to both Jović and Aćimović's interest in distancing themselves from the events at Ročević on 15 July 1995, and in minimising their own contributions to such events. While the specific role played by Aćimović and Jović is secondary to the events surrounding this Scheduled Incident in light of the case against the Accused, the Chamber finds that both Aćimović and Jović were involved, in one way or another, in securing vehicles and/or volunteers. This involvement has warranted the Chamber's more cautious approach to both witnesses' testimony on other points.

The Prosecution claims that the Zvornik Brigade MP attendance roster for 15 July 1995 was altered to conceal the presence and involvement of MPs in the murder operation at Ročević School. See Prosecution Final Brief, Appendix D, confidential, fn. 499. The Chamber has found that the attendance roster was altered to conceal the presence of members of the Zvornik Brigade's MP Company at Orahovac on 14 July 1995. See fn. 18055. The Chamber is equally satisfied that efforts were made to conceal the presence of the unit at Ročević School on 15 July 1995.

(c) The killings at the Drina River near Kozluk

5395. The transportation of the detainees from the Ročević School by members of the 2nd Battalion—including Jović, Ivanović, Djoko Nikolić, and at least two other soldiers—began at around 2 or 3 p.m., and continued over the course of the afternoon.¹⁸³⁸⁰

5396. Aćimović ordered Ivanović to reverse the Mercedes T 170 truck close to the door of the school, and planks were placed to serve as a ramp.¹⁸³⁸¹ The three crates of ammunition that Ivanović had brought earlier from the Standard Barracks were placed inside a passenger vehicle.¹⁸³⁸² The loading of Bosnian Muslim detainees from the school onto the Mercedes truck then began.¹⁸³⁸³ The first group of detainees were blindfolded, with their hands and legs bound, but as they were unable to walk along the narrow planks, the ligatures and blindfolds were ultimately removed.¹⁸³⁸⁴ During the whole process, the detainees appeared “half dead” and exhausted; none of them pleaded for their lives.¹⁸³⁸⁵

5397. Once the loading of the first batch of detainees was completed, Ivanović and Jović set off in the direction of the execution site,¹⁸³⁸⁶ which was adjacent to the Drina River near the village of Kozluk, less than four kilometres away from Ročević School.¹⁸³⁸⁷ KDZ496 and three to four members of the MP—all of them armed—were also at the back of the truck.¹⁸³⁸⁸ The trucks travelled six kilometres from the school to Kozluk and a further three kilometres to the execution site on a very poorly maintained road.¹⁸³⁸⁹ The trip between Ročević and Kozluk took approximately 20 minutes.¹⁸³⁹⁰

5398. The trucks progressed as close as possible to the execution site and then reversed into a pre-dug hole.¹⁸³⁹¹ The detainees were then ordered to jump off the truck and into the hole.¹⁸³⁹² Shooters formed two parallel lines on each side of the hole.¹⁸³⁹³ All of the shooters wore multi-coloured uniforms and balaclavas, while some also wore white belts.¹⁸³⁹⁴ The detainees were shot from both sides as they exited the truck into the pit.¹⁸³⁹⁵ The shooting was carried out in a disorganised and confused fashion to the point that it appeared as if the shooters might end up shooting each other.¹⁸³⁹⁶ Wounded detainees tried to flee by going into the Drina River and grabbing the shrubbery, all the while coming under fire.¹⁸³⁹⁷ A young boy begged for his life to be spared, but was nevertheless killed.¹⁸³⁹⁸

5401. Lazarević arrived at the execution site at approximately 8 a.m.¹⁸⁴⁰⁵ He was driven in a TAM 75 truck until the truck could go no further; thereafter he continued on foot.¹⁸⁴⁰⁶ Upon arriving, there was a strong stench emanating from the bodies decomposing in gravel pits, approximately 20 to 30 metres away from the Drina River.¹⁸⁴⁰⁷ Pieces of white and green broken glass, which Lazarević believed came from the nearby Vitinka factory, could also be seen in one of the pits.¹⁸⁴⁰⁸ Three or four masked men wearing uniforms, whom Lazarević did not recognise, were standing in the field.¹⁸⁴⁰⁹

5402. Mitrović started burying the bodies using the small skip, but the machine was not big enough to complete the task.¹⁸⁴¹⁰ Rade Bošković, a civilian, was called in to finish the task with a ULT 220 which belonged to the stone quarry in Josanica.¹⁸⁴¹¹ Mitrović and Lazarević left, leaving Bošković behind to complete the task.¹⁸⁴¹²

5403. Between 7 and 27 September 1995, and as part of the reburial operation to conceal the Srebrenica killings which will be discussed in detail below,¹⁸⁴¹³ the bodies initially buried at Kozluk were exhumed, transported, and reburied at some of the Čančari Road secondary gravesites, as demonstrated by the forensic evidence discussed in the paragraphs immediately below.

(i) Kozluk primary gravesite

5404. Aerial images reveal that the Kozluk grave was first dug between 5 and 17 July 1995, and that it was disturbed between 7 and 27 September 1995.¹⁸⁴¹⁴ The Kozluk gravesite is located adjacent to the Drina River near the town of Kozluk, less than four kilometres away from the Ročević School.¹⁸⁴¹⁵ The site is approached by a road that passes the Vitinka soft drink bottling factory, and turns into a track as it reaches an area of rubbish dumping and gravel extraction alongside the Drina River.¹⁸⁴¹⁶

5405. The Kozluk gravesite was exhumed by a Tribunal exhumation team from 24 June to 6 August 1999 under the direction of Richard Wright.¹⁸⁴¹⁷ The remains found at the gravesite were then examined by a team of pathologists under the direction of John Clark.¹⁸⁴¹⁸ The Kozluk gravesite contained three areas of disposal of human remains: Kozluk 1, located to the north; Kozluk 2, located to the east; and Kozluk 3, located to the southwest.¹⁸⁴¹⁹ Kozluk 2 and 3 were found to be areas of both execution and burial.¹⁸⁴²⁰ The Kozluk gravesite showed evidence of robbing or removal of bodies, evidenced by dismembered body parts found at the surface of the 5406. All the individuals for whom sex could be determined were male.¹⁸⁴²³ While it was established that the majority of victims were over 25 years old, the age of the victims ranged from 8 to 85.¹⁸⁴²⁴ All the victims were found wearing civilian clothing.¹⁸⁴²⁵ Further, 55 blindfolds and 168 ligatures were recovered at the gravesite.¹⁸⁴²⁶ 89% of the complete bodies, i.e. 260 out of 292, showed evidence of gunshot injury.¹⁸⁴²⁷ The final cause of death for 237 bodies was attributed to gunshot injury, with a further 55 cases left as unascertained.¹⁸⁴²⁸ Additionally, 548 shell cases, 368

(ii) Čančari Road secondary gravesites

5408. The Čančari Road is an eight kilometre dirt road running through the middle of the Čančari valley, approximately seven kilometres south of Zvornik and about 20 kilometres south of Kozluk.¹⁸⁴³¹ There are at least 13 known secondary mass graves along the Čančari Road.¹⁸⁴³² As will be explained below,¹⁸⁴³³ only Čančari Road 1, 2, 3, 7, and 13 have been linked to the Kozluk primary gravesite.¹⁸⁴³⁴

5409. A Tribunal team of experts, led by Richard Wright, conducted the exhumation of Čančari Road 3 in May and June 1998.¹⁸⁴³⁵ The remains found therein were examined by a team of pathologists under the direction of Christopher Lawrence.¹⁸⁴³⁶ While examination and probing of Čančari Road 1 was conducted by a Tribunal team of experts, the exhumation was handed over to the BiH Government in 2001.¹⁸⁴³⁷ Čančari Road 2, 7, and 13 were exhumed by the BiHCMP in 2002.¹⁸⁴³⁸

5410. Aerial images show that Čančari Road 1, 2, 3, and 7 were each first excavated between 7 and 27 September 1995 and were filled in prior to 2 October 1995.¹⁸⁴³⁹ The Chamber notes that out of all the secondary gravesites associated with the Kozluk gravesite, it only received forensic evidence in relation to Čančari Road 3. Remains of at least 160 individuals, including 35 relatively intact bodies, were recovered from Čančari Road 3.¹⁸⁴⁴⁰ The forensic evidence shows that all of the victims at Čančari Road 3 whose sex could be determined were male.¹⁸⁴⁴¹ It was established that the majority of the victims had a mean age of over 25.¹⁸⁴⁴² Furthermore, eight blindfolds and 37 ligatures were found at the gravesite.¹⁸⁴⁴³ The cause of death for 29 of the 35 complete bodies was 5411. Forensic analysis showed that the Čančari Road 3 gravesite is secondary to the Kozluk gravesite.¹⁸⁴⁴⁶ First, thousands of pieces of broken green bottles along with a pile of unused labels bearing the name of the Vitinka soft drink bottling factory at Kozluk were found at both the Čančari Road 3 and Kozluk gravesites.¹⁸⁴⁴⁷ Further, an analysis of soil, materials, and shell cases found at both sites led to the conclusion that bodies from the Kozluk gravesite were removed and reburied at the Čančari Road 3 gravesite.¹⁸⁴⁴⁸ Moreover, DNA-based connections were found between the Kozluk gravesite and the secondary gravesites of Čančari Road 1, 2, 3, 7, and 13.¹⁸⁴⁴⁹

(f) Conclusion

5413. For all these reasons, the Chamber finds that, on 14 and 15 July 1995, at least 815 Bosnian Muslim men detained at the Ročević School were killed by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces. Some were killed by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces while being detained at Ročević School. The rest were killed at a site on the bank of the Drina River near Kozluk.

(a) Kula School

5414. The Indictment refers to the killing at Kula School on or about 14 or 15 July 1995 of some of the approximately 1,200 Bosnian Muslim men detained at the school.¹⁸⁴⁵¹ The Indictment also refers to the killing on 16 July 1995 of the surviving portion of the Bosnian Muslim men.¹⁸⁴⁵²

the summary of Forensic Evidence - Exhumation of the Graves and Surface Remains Recoveries related to Srebrenica - January 2012”, 13 January 2012), e-court p. 48, 82. The Chamber notes that Čančari Road 7 contained the remains of one individual whose DNA was also found in the Čančari Road 11 gravesite. P4772 (Dušan Janc’s report entitled “Update to the summary of Forensic Evidence - Exhumation of the Graves and Surface Remains Recoveries related to Srebrenica - January 2012”, 13 January 2012), e-court pp. 49, 82; Dušan Janc, T 26968–26969 (27 March 2012). The Chamber finds that there are many plausible reasons for this, including the way in which the transportation of remains to secondary gravesites was conducted, and is satisfied with Janc’s conclusions that Čančari Road 7 is associated with the Kozluk primary gravesite and not with the Branjevo Military Farm gravesite. See P4772 (Dušan Janc’s report entitled “Update to the summary of Forensic Evidence - Exhumation of the Graves and Surface Remains Recoveries related to Srebrenica - January 2012”, 13 January 2012), e-court p. 41. The Chamber further notes Dušan Dunjić’s challenge to the DNA-based connections between the primary and secondary gravesites, in particular, that it was “concluded groundlessly” on the basis of 310 DNA links that 4,049 bodies originated from numerous primary mass graves, including Kozluk. D3894 (Dušan Dunjić’s expert report entitled “Forensic Analysis of Documents Pertaining to Exhumations, Autopsies and Identification of Bodies in the Srebrenica Area”, 26 August 2012), p. 24. See also Defence Final Brief, paras. 2607–2608. The Chamber further notes that Dušan Dunjić argued that there was a possibility that certain Čančari Road gravesites could in fact be primary in relation to each other. D3893 (Dušan Dunjić’s expert report entitled “Forensic Analysis of Reports on the Locations of Mass Graves in the Area of Eastern Bosnia and Documentation Relating to Exhumations in the Srebrenica Area”, 27 August 2009), pp. 16–17. The Chamber will deal with this challenge in detail below. See paras. 5595–5599. However, having assessed the totality of evidence on this issue, the Chamber accepts Janc’s report and the findings therein.

According to the Indictment, the men were transported by bus to the Branjevo Military Farm and summarily executed; the victims were subsequently buried in a nearby mass grave.¹⁸⁴⁵³

(i) Detention at Kula School

5415. The Kula School—also known as the Nikola Tesla Primary School or Pilica School—is located in Kula, a hamlet in the village of Pilica.¹⁸⁴⁵⁴ The village of Pilica is situated approximately 20 kilometres north of Karakaj along the main Zvornik–Bijeljina Road.¹⁸⁴⁵⁵

5416. Early in the morning of 14 July 1995, the 1st Battalion of the Zvornik Brigade received a telegram from the Brigade’s Command with the instruction to prepare the gymnasium at the Kula School for the arrival of between 100 and 200 men from Srebrenica.¹⁸⁴⁵⁶ The telegram further stated that, once the detainees had arrived at the school, members of the 1st Battalion were to secure access to the building.¹⁸⁴⁵⁷ As a result, a group of 12 members of the 1st Battalion, under the command of Security Officer Slavko Perić, a.k.a. “Captain Muderiz”, proceeded to the school.¹⁸⁴⁵⁸ Upon arriving, the group split into three smaller groups: one was deployed near the main entrance to control access to the school; another was posted in the schoolyard to secure the auxiliary entrance; and the last was sent inside the school to make arrangements for the arrival of the detainees.¹⁸⁴⁵⁹

5417. In the afternoon, several busloads of Bosnian Muslim men who had previously been detained in Bratunac, arrived at the Kula School, guarded by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces who were not from the 1st Battalion.¹⁸⁴⁶⁰ The detainees included some elderly men, up to about 80 years old, as well as 15 or 16 year old boys.¹⁸⁴⁶¹

5418. Upon arrival, members of the Bosnian Serb Forces ordered the detainees to disembark, to put their hands behind their heads, and to walk one by one towards the gymnasium.¹⁸⁴⁶² Detainees entered the school in waves.¹⁸⁴⁶³ When the gymnasium could not hold any more men, detainees were left standing in the corridors and stairway while others remained on the buses outside.¹⁸⁴⁶⁴ These detainees were subsequently taken to the classrooms on the first floor of the school.¹⁸⁴⁶⁵

5419. Conditions at the Kula School were very poor. The gymnasium and the classrooms became overcrowded and were so tightly packed that no one could move.¹⁸⁴⁶⁶ With an outside temperature of about 30°C, the school began to mist up.¹⁸⁴⁶⁷ A strong stench emanated from the gymnasium, as there were no windows open and thus no ventilation.¹⁸⁴⁶⁸ The members of the Bosnian Serb Forces who were guarding the detainees from the entrance of the gymnasium found the stench so unbearable that they kept asking to change guards frequently.¹⁸⁴⁶⁹ Some of the detainees collapsed,¹⁸⁴⁷⁰ and two or three detainees died in the crowded gymnasium overnight.¹⁸⁴⁷¹

5420. There was no medical treatment available at the school.¹⁸⁴⁷² Detainees were given food, but it was not enough for everyone.¹⁸⁴⁷³ Several detainees were allowed to fetch water from a nearby

Ahmo Hasić, P353 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 1288 (under seal). Having assessed Hasić’s evidence as a whole, and in particular in light of other evidence indicating that the section of the Pilica Cultural Centre where the detainees were held had one floor, the Chamber finds that Hasić was detained at Kula School. water point, while being escorted by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces.¹⁸⁴⁷⁴ A detainee was shot as he attempted to escape while fetching water.¹⁸⁴⁷⁵ While the detainees were given water, it was not sufficient.¹⁸⁴⁷⁶ Some of the detainees inside the gymnasium and classrooms requested to be let out in order to get water and use the toilet.¹⁸⁴⁷⁷ The detainees were not always allowed and, when they were, some of them were hit with rifle butts by soldiers.¹⁸⁴⁷⁸ Out of fear, many of the detainees urinated where they were.¹⁸⁴⁷⁹

5421. On 15 July, additional members of the 1st Battalion were sent by Perić to the school; this brought the total number of soldiers at the school at that time to between 40 and 50.¹⁸⁴⁸⁰ A man who was addressed as a “lieutenant-colonel or colonel” and wore a camouflage uniform also visited the school that day,¹⁸⁴⁸¹ as did Jasikovac.¹⁸⁴⁸² Rajko Babić, a member of the 1st Battalion, asked the lieutenant-colonel or colonel if any of the detainees would stay at the school but was told: “No, they can’t stay, they ha[ve] to be taken away, all of them. I don’t want to talk to you anymore.”¹⁸⁴⁸³ Babić interpreted the comment made by the lieutenant-colonel or colonel to mean that all of the Bosnian Muslim detainees would be killed.¹⁸⁴⁸⁴

5422. Throughout this time, many detainees were taken out of the school by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces.¹⁸⁴⁸⁵ Screaming and moaning could then be heard, followed by bursts of gunfire, after which the screaming stopped.¹⁸⁴⁸⁶ Only some detainees returned.¹⁸⁴⁸⁷ This went on constantly, day and night.¹⁸⁴⁸⁸ Detainees did not dare look out of the windows to see what was happening because whenever someone tried to do so, the guards would shoot a burst of gunfire.¹⁸⁴⁸⁹ The bodies of detainees killed by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces while trying to escape during the night could be seen lying around the school.¹⁸⁴⁹⁰

5423. Members of the Bosnian Serb Forces took jewellery, watches, and money from the detainees.¹⁸⁴⁹¹ Soldiers also requested 10,000 German marks from each detainee and warned them that if they did not manage to collect that sum they would all be killed; the soldiers returned twice for money but the detainees had none left.¹⁸⁴⁹²

(ii) Transportation of detainees from the Kula School

5424. On the morning of 16 July, Radivoje Lakić—the Commander of the 1st Battalion's Works Platoon¹⁸⁴⁹³—ordered some of its members to go to the Kula School.¹⁸⁴⁹⁴ When they arrived, they were told by unknown soldiers to stand guard while detainees were put on buses.¹⁸⁴⁹⁵

5425. Members of the Bosnian Serb Forces told the detainees that those who had the money to pay for transportation could go to Sarajevo.¹⁸⁴⁹⁶ Once those who had money left, the rest of the detainees were told that they would be taken to Tuzla.¹⁸⁴⁹⁷ Soon after, detainees began to be taken out of the school in groups of eight.¹⁸⁴⁹⁸ As one of the detainees was exiting the school, he saw the body of a dead man lying at the bottom of the stairs in a pool of blood.¹⁸⁴⁹⁹ Two long sheets were brought by the soldiers and ripped into strips, so that detainees tied other detainees' hands behind their backs.¹⁸⁵⁰⁰ Some detainees were also blindfolded.¹⁸⁵⁰¹ The detainees were then escorted by about ten soldiers to buses lined up outside the school.¹⁸⁵⁰² During this process, the soldiers swore at the detainees and hit them with their rifle butts.¹⁸⁵⁰³ Once the buses were filled they were driven along the same road previously used to get to the school.¹⁸⁵⁰⁴ The detainees were told again that they were going to Tuzla.¹⁸⁵⁰⁵

5426. Popović testified that, at approximately 10 a.m. that day, while at the Zvornik Brigade Command, Trbić told him that Beara had gone with some people to Pilica and had asked for Popović to join him at the Kula School.¹⁸⁵⁰⁶ When Popović arrived at the school, the boarding of the detainees onto the buses was ongoing and he found Beara in front of a house next to the ¹⁸⁵¹¹ An intercepted conversation from 16 July at 1:58 p.m. between the duty officer of the Drina Corps Command and Trbić—then Zvornik Brigade duty officer—records the latter transmitting an urgent request from Popović for 500 litres of diesel fuel. 5429. At approximately 10 a.m., the two vehicles arrived at the Branjevo Military Farm,¹⁸⁵²² which was under the direct authority and control of the 1st Battalion of the Zvornik Brigade.¹⁸⁵²³ The Branjevo Military Farm is located near the village of Pilica, and is approached by going 700 to 800 metres through a dirt road leading off the Bijeljina–Zvornik Road from the direction of the Kula School.¹⁸⁵²⁴

5430. Once the group arrived at the Branjevo Military Farm and, following a conversation between the lieutenant-colonel and an officer “in military uniform” already present at the farm,¹⁸⁵²⁵ the members of the detachment were told by Brano Gojković—a member of the detachment—and the lieutenant-colonel that buses carrying civilians from Srebrenica would start arriving in a few minutes, and that these people were to be killed that day because they were war criminals.¹⁸⁵²⁶ The lieutenant-colonel and the two military policemen then left the Branjevo Military Farm.¹⁸⁵²⁷

5431. Shortly thereafter, buses filled with Bosnian Muslim detainees previously held at the Kula School began arriving at the Branjevo Military Farm.¹⁸⁵²⁸ One or two soldiers escorted the detainees on each of the buses and sat next to the driver.¹⁸⁵²⁹ After departing from the school, the buses travelled for approximately two and a half kilometres up a hill.¹⁸⁵³⁰ The buses stopped at a meadow which was littered with a “large number of dead bodies”; gunfire could be heard.¹⁸⁵³¹ When the doors opened, Bosnian Serb soldiers gathered around the buses and started cursing the detainees, the detainees’ mothers, and Haris Silajdžić’s mother.¹⁸⁵³² The soldiers ordered the detainees to disembark until the buses were half empty.¹⁸⁵³³

5432. A group of soldiers led columns of ten detainees approximately 100 to 200 metres away from the buses towards the meadow.¹⁸⁵³⁴ On their way, the detainees saw bodies lying on the ground.¹⁸⁵³⁵ Soldiers asked detainees for money and beat them when they said they did not have any.¹⁸⁵³⁶ Upon reaching the meadow, the detainees—some of whom were blindfolded and had their hands tied behind their backs—passed by those who had been killed earlier until they were told to stop and turn around so that they faced away from the eight members of the detachment, the killings; however, the machine gun had already been used on two groups of detainees and it had only wounded the men, leaving them to beg for someone to kill them.¹⁸⁵⁴⁶

5435. In the early afternoon, a group of about ten soldiers from Bratunac, most of whom wore VRS uniforms, arrived at the Branjevo Military Farm to replace members of the 10th Sabotage Detachment and continue with the killings.¹⁸⁵⁴⁷ When these soldiers recognised detainees from Srebrenica, they beat and humiliated them before killing them.¹⁸⁵⁴⁸ These soldiers also yelled insults at the soldiers of the 10th Sabotage Detachment, accusing them of being cowards and traitors for not finishing the assignment.¹⁸⁵⁴⁹

5436. While the soldiers from Bratunac were killing the detainees in the last group brought from the Kula School, the lieutenant-colonel who had earlier ordered the members of the 10th Sabotage Detachment to carry out the executions returned to the Branjevo Military Farm, together with the two military policemen.¹⁸⁵⁵⁰ The lieutenant-colonel told the soldiers present at the farm that there were 500 Bosnian Muslim men from Srebrenica detained at the Pilica Cultural Centre who were trying to escape and needed to be executed.¹⁸⁵⁵¹ When the members of the 10th Sabotage Detachment refused to carry out the order, the soldiers from Bratunac volunteered and left for Pilica with the lieutenant-colonel and the two military policemen.¹⁸⁵⁵² Upon instructions from the lieutenant-colonel, the members of the 10th Sabotage Detachment packed their things and headed

5437. Hasić lay in the meadow while columns of men were killed, but managed to escape by running over dead bodies and reaching shrubbery approximately 20 metres from where he lay; there, he encountered four other survivors.¹⁸⁵⁵⁴ The five men waited until it was dark before escaping through the nearby forest.¹⁸⁵⁵⁵ KDZ333 spent the night of 16 July in the meadow and managed to escape the next morning.¹⁸⁵⁵⁶ KDZ333 ran into Hasić, with whom he travelled for a few days.¹⁸⁵⁵⁷ Tired and hungry, KDZ333 and Hasić decided to surrender approximately a week later to two Bosnian Serb military policemen in a mini bus.¹⁸⁵⁵⁸ They were both taken to Karakaj

Popović et al.*), T. 1206. The Prosecution claims that these four men were killed after being captured and taken to the Zvornik Brigade headquarters. See Prosecution Final Brief, Appendix D, paras. 139–140. Indeed, the Chamber received evidence that in the days following the fall of Srebrenica, two VRS soldiers from the village of Lokanj, namely Neško Đokić and his son Slobodan, were arrested for having given food and clothing to four Bosnian Muslims, and for trying to help them cross to Bosnian Muslim-held territory. After receiving instructions from Đokić and his son as to how to reach Bosnian Muslim-held territory, the four men—namely Fuad Đozić, Almir Halilović, Sakib Kivirić, and Emin Mustafić—got lost and surrendered. P186 (Statement of Sakib Kivirić to Zvornik Military Police, 23 July 1995); P187 (Statement of Emin Mustafić to Zvornik Military Police, 23 July 1995); P188 (Statement of Fuad Đozić to Zvornik Military Police, 26 July 1995); P189 (Statement of Almir Halilović to Zvornik Military Police, 23 July 1995). The men were ultimately taken to the Standard Barracks, where they were forced to identify Đokić and his son, and their statements were taken. Nebojša Jeremić, P348 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 10430, 10439; P190 (Record of identification of Slobodan and Neško Đokić, 25 July 1995). Đozić, Halilović, Kivirić, and Mustafić were later killed. KDZ122, T. 26308 (14 March 2012) (closed session). These killings, however, are not charged in the Indictment. While their remains have not been found, they are listed as missing after the fall of Srebrenica. See P6705 (Ewa Tabeau’s expert report entitled “Srebrenica Missing: Persons Reported Missing and Dead after the Take-Over of the Srebrenica Enclave by the Bosnian Serb Army on 11 July 1995”, 9 April 2009), e-court pp. 50, 64, 109, 147. Based amongst other things on the description provided by Hasić and the place where they ran into Đokić and his son, the Chamber finds that these four men were indeed survivors of the executions at the Branjevo Military Farm.

where a military truck with some 20 to 30 other Bosnian Muslim men captured in the vicinity of Zvornik awaited them.¹⁸⁵⁵⁹ KDZ333 and Hasić were handcuffed, placed on the truck with other detainees, and driven to Batković Camp, where they arrived on 26 July 1995.¹⁸⁵⁶⁰ KDZ333 and Hasić were exchanged in late December 1995.¹⁸⁵⁶¹

(b) Killings at the Pilica Cultural Centre

5438. The Indictment refers to the killing on 16 July 1995 of approximately 500 Bosnian Muslim men inside the Pilica Cultural Centre; the victims were subsequently buried in a mass grave at the Branjevo Military Farm.¹⁸⁵⁶²

5439. The Pilica Cultural Centre¹⁸⁵⁶³ is a building located next to the Zvornik–Bijeljina Road, which was within the Drina Corps' area of responsibility at the time of the Indictment.¹⁸⁵⁶⁴ It has a main hall and a separate cabin on the first floor, accessible through a door located next to the centre's main entrance.¹⁸⁵⁶⁵

5440. Popović testified that after visiting the Kula School in the morning of 16 July, he left in the direction of Pilica looking for Beara.¹⁸⁵⁶⁶ Popović found Beara at the café across the Pilica Cultural Centre.¹⁸⁵⁶⁷ Soon after, Erdemović, Kos, and the other members of the 10th Sabotage Detachment arrived at the café after leaving the Branjevo Military Farm.¹⁸⁵⁶⁸ Upon arriving, Erdemović noticed a police check-point between the café and the Pilica Cultural Centre, which was manned by two or three policemen in blue camouflage uniforms carrying automatic rifles and pistols.¹⁸⁵⁶⁹ Kos also saw a heavy presence of MP, civilian police, and other soldiers standing around the centre.¹⁸⁵⁷⁰ Both Erdemović and Kos saw several dead bodies in front of the cultural centre; Erdemović also heard firing and explosions coming from that direction.¹⁸⁵⁷¹ Kos further testified to having seen dead bodies when he looked inside the Pilica Cultural Centre.¹⁸⁵⁷²

5441. A few minutes later, the group of soldiers, who had arrived earlier that day from Bratunac and who had also taken part in the Branjevo Military Farm executions, entered the café, sat down, ordered drinks, and said that “everything was finished”.¹⁸⁵⁷³ Beara, who was by then very drunk, stood up and gave a speech thanking the soldiers for what they had done, stating: “Soldiers, you have done a great job and the state will be grateful to you.”¹⁸⁵⁷⁴ In an intercepted conversation at 9:16 p.m. that day, Popović indicated that he had “finished the job [...] finished everything” and would return to the Command the following day.¹⁸⁵⁷⁵

5442. Forensic examination of the Pilica Cultural Centre conducted in September 1996 and October 1998, revealed the presence of human blood, bones, and tissue adhering to the walls and floor, as well as extensive damage caused by arms and grenades.¹⁸⁵⁷⁶ Gunshot markings were found on the wall behind the stage, indicating that detainees were put on the stage before being executed and appear to have been shot at by soldiers positioned on the balcony overlooking the stage.¹⁸⁵⁷⁷ Further, shell casings were found scattered on the first floor, stairs, and next to the stage, as well as on the ground outside of the building.¹⁸⁵⁷⁸

(c) Burials of detainees killed at the Branjevo Military Farm and the Pilica Cultural Centre

5443. On the morning of 17 July 1995, while at the Engineering Company’s headquarters, Damjan Lazarević was ordered by Bogičević and Sekonojić to go to the Branjevo Military Farm, where a pit was to be dug to bury the bodies of those killed.¹⁸⁵⁷⁹ Lazarević was informed that people from the Zvornik public utility company would assist in loading the bodies.¹⁸⁵⁸⁰ Cvijetin Ristanović was then ordered by Lazarević to load the “BGH–700” excavator onto a Labudica trailer and to prepare to go to the farm.¹⁸⁵⁸¹

5444. Lazarević and a driver drove in a small vehicle and arrived at the Branjevo Military Farm between 8 and 9 a.m.¹⁸⁵⁸² Upon arrival they encountered a group of elderly civilians who worked on the farm.¹⁸⁵⁸³ Ristanović and a driver followed in a Mercedes 2626 truck, which pulled the trailer carrying the BGH–700.¹⁸⁵⁸⁴ When he arrived, Ristanović was ordered by Lazarević to dig a hole.¹⁸⁵⁸⁵ Ristanović saw bodies lying in a meadow, approximately 100 metres from where he was working.¹⁸⁵⁸⁶ Shortly after, Veljko Kovačević—a worker for the Birac Holding company—arrived in a yellow ULT–220 loader and parked in the meadow next to the bodies.¹⁸⁵⁸⁷

A group of elderly civilians from the public utilities company was sent, together with two to three members of the “R” or “Rear” Battalion of the Zvornik Brigade, to the Branjevo Military Farm to assist in the burial operation.¹⁸⁵⁸⁸ Once Ristanović finished digging the grave, the group started manually loading the bodies into the bucket of the ULT–220, which was then used to transfer the bodies to the gravesite.¹⁸⁵⁸⁹ Lazarević stayed at the farm until the final stages of the burial process, before leaving between 7 and 8 p.m.¹⁸⁵⁹⁰

5446. That same day, while the burial operation at the Branjevo Military Farm was ongoing, Milenko Tomić—a driver of the R Battalion—received a travel order from Radislav Pantić to drive a truck to Pilica and then onwards to Kula in order to pick up military personnel.¹⁸⁵⁹¹ Tomić set off in a TAM 130 truck from the Metalno company.¹⁸⁵⁹² At Pilica, Tomić was pulled over by a soldier who instructed him to park his vehicle next to the door of the Pilica Cultural Centre.¹⁸⁵⁹³

5447. Twelve members of the 1st Battalion’s Work Platoon—who had earlier that day been ordered by Lakić to go to the Pilica Cultural Centre—loaded the bodies onto two yellow tipper trucks.¹⁸⁵⁹⁴ Lakić supervised the entire loading operation, which was concluded at approximately

5448. Tomić made two separate trips transporting bodies from the Pilica Cultural Centre to the Branjevo Military Farm.¹⁸⁵⁹⁷ On the second trip back to Pilica, Tomić was stopped at an intersection and told by another soldier that he was no longer needed.¹⁸⁵⁹⁸

5449. As evidenced through a series of intercepts admitted by the Chamber, Popović supervised the burial operation of the Bosnian Muslim detainees killed at the Branjevo Military Farm and at the Pilica Cultural Centre.¹⁸⁵⁹⁹

(d) Reburials

5450. On 10 August 1995, Madeleine Albright—then US Ambassador to the UN—informed the Security Council that classified aerial photographs taken by the US government of disturbed earth indicated mass graves connected with the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁸⁶⁰⁰

5451. Towards the end of September 1995, as part of the reburial operation to conceal the Srebrenica killings which will be discussed in detail below, the bodies initially buried at the Branjevo Military Farm were reburied in some of the Čančari Road secondary gravesites, as

¹⁸⁵⁹⁹ An intercepted conversation from 12:42 p.m. on 17 July records Krstić—or someone using the code name “Zlatar 1”—attempting to reach Popović, but he was informed that Popović was in Zvornik and would be back in the late afternoon. demonstrated by the forensic evidence discussed below.¹⁸⁶⁰¹ On 21 March 1996, the US government released to the public a number of aerial photographs that showed a large number of bodies lying on the field near the Branjevo Military Farm on 17 July 1995.¹⁸⁶⁰² Following Albright's visit to the Branjevo Military Farm gravesite on 22 March 1996, the Accused told Mladić that: "[A] big show was put on for Albright, she expected they would find 1200 Muslim bodies at Pilica, but they found some five bodies."¹⁸⁶⁰³ A day later, the Accused issued an order for the creation of a mixed military and civilian commission for the exhumation of bodies in the area of Pilica.¹⁸⁶⁰⁴

(c) Forensic evidence

5452. As discussed above, the victims who had been previously detained at the Kula School and subsequently killed at the Branjevo Military Farm, as well as the victims who were killed at the Pilica Cultural Centre, were all buried at the Branjevo Military Farm primary gravesite and, as will be further discussed, were subsequently reburied at the Čančari Road secondary gravesites.¹⁸⁶⁰⁵ Given that the forensic evidence for the bodies found at these gravesites cannot be distinguished, the Chamber has combined its analysis in the following paragraphs.

(i) The Branjevo Military Farm primary gravesite

5453. Aerial images reveal that the Branjevo Military Farm gravesite—also known as the Pilica gravesite¹⁸⁶⁰⁶—was first created between 5 and 17 July 1995, and was disturbed between 21 and

27 September 1995.¹⁸⁶⁰⁷ The gravesite is adjacent to the Branjevo Military Farm complex at the periphery of a large, cultivated field, approximately 150 metres from the gravel driveway leading to the farm.¹⁸⁶⁰⁸

5454. The gravesite was exhumed between 10 and 24 September 1996 by a Tribunal exhumation team under the direction of William Haglund.¹⁸⁶⁰⁹ The remains found at the gravesite were then examined under the direction of Robert Kirschner.¹⁸⁶¹⁰ William Haglund prepared a report on both the exhumation of the gravesite and the results of the post-mortem examination of the remains found therein.¹⁸⁶¹¹

5455. The Branjevo Military Farm gravesite is an approximately three metre deep grave, consisting of a trench extending 28 by 10 metres.¹⁸⁶¹² The gravesite showed evidence of robbing and disturbance evidenced, first, by aerial images and the discovery of partial bodies and, further, by soil samples from the surface of the gravesite.¹⁸⁶¹³

5457. As of 13 January 2012, DNA analysis has led to the identification of 138 individuals in the Branjevo Military Farm grave as persons listed as missing following the take-over of Srebrenica.¹⁸⁶²⁰

(ii) Čančari Road secondary gravesites

5458. Of the 13 known secondary mass graves along the Čančari Road,¹⁸⁶²¹ only Čančari Road 4 to 6 and 8 to 12 have been linked to the Branjevo Military Farm primary gravesite.¹⁸⁶²²

5459. A Tribunal team of experts, led by Richard Wright, conducted the exhumation of Čančari Road 12 between 10 and 25 May 1998.¹⁸⁶²³ The remains found therein were then examined by a team of pathologists under the direction of Christopher Lawrence.¹⁸⁶²⁴ While the examination and probing of Čančari Road 4, 6, 8, 9, and 10 were conducted by a Tribunal team of experts under the direction of Richard Wright, the exhumation of these gravesites was handed over to the BiH

The Chamber notes that Tribunal experts previously associated Čančari Road 4, 5, and 6 with the Kozluk killing site based on the discovery of green glass at these gravesites; however, DNA analysis later confirmed that these secondary gravesites are associated with the Branjevo Military Farm primary gravesite. As stated above, while Čančari Road 7 contains the remains of an individual whose DNA was also found in Čančari Road 11, the Chamber considers that this gravesite is not associated with the Branjevo Military Farm gravesite but with the Kozluk primary gravesite. See para. 5411, fn. 18449.

5460. Aerial images show that Čančari Road 4, 5, 6, 8, 9, 10, 11, and 12 were each first excavated between approximately 7 and 27 September 1995 and were filled in prior to 2 October 1995.¹⁸⁶²⁷ The Chamber notes that out of all the secondary gravesites associated with the Branjevo Military Farm gravesite, it only received forensic evidence in relation to Čančari Road 12. Remains of at least 177 individuals, including 43 intact bodies, were recovered from Čančari Road 12.¹⁸⁶²⁸ The forensic evidence reviewed by the Chamber shows that all of the victims at Čančari Road 12 whose sex could be determined were male.¹⁸⁶²⁹ While the majority of the victims were older than 25, five individuals were between 8 and 13 years old.¹⁸⁶³⁰ Furthermore, at least six blindfolds and 16 ligatures were found at the gravesite.¹⁸⁶³¹ The cause of death for 39 of the 43 complete bodies was a result of gunshot wounds; the four remaining had an undetermined cause of death.¹⁸⁶³² While

5461. Forensic analysis showed that Čančari Road 12 is a secondary gravesite associated with the Branjevo Military Farm gravesite.¹⁸⁶³⁴ First, the filling of Čančari Road 12 included lumps of evidently foreign soil and vegetation, including stubble from a cereal field; these were consistent with the evidence that the Branjevo Military Farm had been a primary grave.¹⁸⁶³⁵ Second, DNA-based connections were found between the Branjevo Military Farm primary gravesite and the secondary gravesites of Čančari Road 4, 5, 6, 8, 9, 10, 11, and 12.¹⁸⁶³⁶ As of 13 January 2012, DNA analysis has led to the identification of 1,597 victims from the Čančari Road gravesites associated with the Branjevo Military Farm primary gravesite, as persons listed as missing following the take-over of Srebrenica: 180 from Čančari Road 4; 290 from Čančari Road 5; 183

¹⁸⁶³⁶ The specific connections are as follows: one individual with remains in both Branjevo Military Farm and Čančari Road 4; two between Branjevo Military Farm and Čančari Road 8; 28 between Branjevo Military Farm and Čančari Road 9; six between Branjevo Military Farm and Čančari Road 11; and four between Branjevo Military Farm and Čančari Road 12. P4772 (Dušan Janc’s report entitled “Update to the summary of Forensic Evidence - Exhumation of the Graves and Surface Remains Recoveries related to Srebrenica - January 2012”, 13 January 2012), e-court p. 48; Dušan Janc, T. 26968–26970 (27 March 2012). The Chamber notes Dušan Dunjić’s challenge to the DNA-based connections between the primary and secondary gravesites and, in particular, that it was “concluded groundlessly” on the basis of 310 DNA links that 4049 bodies originated from numerous primary mass graves including Branjevo Military Farm. D3894 (Dušan Dunjić’s expert report entitled “Forensic Analysis of Documents Pertaining to Exhumations, Autopsies and Identification of Bodies in the Srebrenica Area”, 26 August 2012), p. 24. See also Defence Final Brief, paras. 2607–2608. The Chamber further notes that Dušan Dunjić argued that there was a possibility that certain Čančari Road gravesites could in fact be primary in relation to each other. D3893 (Dušan Dunjić’s expert report entitled “Forensic Analysis of Reports on the Locations of Mass Graves in the Area of Eastern Bosnia and Documentation Relating to Exhumations in the Srebrenica Area”, 27 August 2009), pp. 16–17. However, having assessed the totality of evidence on this issue, the Chamber accepts Janc’s report and the findings therein.

from Čančari Road 6; 49 from Čančari Road 8; 209 from Čančari Road 9; 378 from Čančari Road 10; 140 from Čančari Road 11; and 168 from Čančari Road 12.¹⁸⁶³⁷

5462. The Chamber notes Dušan Dunjić's challenge that in the event of the DNA of an individual being found in multiple gravesites, such individual may not be counted in both gravesites, as is the case with respect to Čančari Road 7 and Čančari Road 11.¹⁸⁶³⁸ The Chamber notes, however, that in calculating the total number of identified individuals for the Branjevo Military Farm primary gravesite and its associated secondary gravesites, Janc did not include any of the individuals identified from the Čančari Road 7 gravesite, as those individuals were instead counted towards the total number of Kozluk victims.¹⁸⁶³⁹ Thus, having assessed the totality of evidence on this issue, the Chamber accepts Janc's report and the findings therein, particularly the fact that Čančari Road 7 is associated with the primary gravesite in Kozluk.

(f) Conclusion

5463. DNA analysis has led to the identification of 1,735 individuals found at the Branjevo Military Farm gravesite and its associated Čančari Road secondary gravesites as persons missing following the take-over of Srebrenica.¹⁸⁶⁴⁰ This number is consistent with other evidence before the Chamber: Ahmo Hasić estimated that there were 1,000 to 1,500 people who had been killed at the Branjevo Military Farm,¹⁸⁶⁴¹ and Erdemović estimated that between 1,000 and 1,200 Bosnian Muslim detainees were killed there.¹⁸⁶⁴² In relation to the killings at the Pilica Cultural Centre, Bogdanović estimated that there were approximately 500 there.¹⁸⁶⁴³

5464. On the basis of this evidence, the Chamber finds that on 15 and 16 July 1995, at least 1,735 Bosnian Muslims men were killed at the Kula School, the Branjevo Military Farm, and the Pilica Cultural Centre by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces, including members of the 10th Sabotage Detachment and VRS soldiers from Bratunac. Some of these Bosnian Muslims men were killed at the Kula School, about 1,200 were killed at the Branjevo Military Farm, and about 500 were killed at the Pilica Cultural Centre.

g. The aftermath of the fall of Srebrenica

i. Opening a corridor for the passage of the column

5465. In the morning of 13 July 1995, groups from the column of Bosnian Muslim men entered the Bratunac area and engaged in combat with members of the Bosnian Serb Forces.¹⁸⁶⁴⁴ By that day, the Bosnian Serb Forces believed that parts of the column, led by Zulfo Tursunović and Ibrahim Mandžić, were preparing to break through to Tuzla.¹⁸⁶⁴⁵ In the early hours of 14 July, members of the column attacked Bosnian Serb positions in Milići as they moved towards Tuzla.¹⁸⁶⁴⁶ The Zvornik Brigade had been expecting and preparing for the arrival of the column to the Zvornik area.¹⁸⁶⁴⁷ Obrenović, acting commander of the Zvornik Brigade in the absence of Pandurević, was organising the logistics for the defence.¹⁸⁶⁴⁸

Military Farm). According to Kos, eight buses full of detainees, each of which could fit approximately 50 people, arrived at the farm that day; the eighth bus, however, was only half full. D3927 (Witness statement of Franc Kos dated 26 July 2013), pp. 16, 22–23; Franc Kos, T. 42386–42387 (1 August 2013). The Chamber notes, however, that during a prior interview with a Prosecution investigator, Kos estimated that the Detachment members had killed detainees from 11 buses who had come from Kula School, and that the Bratunac soldiers shot detainees from the buses that arrived thereafter; he asserted that therefore, the total number of detainees killed at the Branjevo Military Farm was between 600 and 700. See Franc Kos, T. 42368–42370 (31 July 2013), T. 42389–42392 (1 August 2013). Kos attempted to refute Erdemović’s testimony that 1,200 people had been killed at Branjevo Military Farm, arguing that each soldier had only one combat set, made up of five ammunition clips consisting a 30 bullets each, and that none of the soldiers were given an additional charge; according to Kos, he did not fire his complete combat set of 150 bullets and he only fired four ammunition clips. D3927 (Witness statement of Franc Kos dated 26 July 2013), pp. 22–24; Franc Kos, T. 42360–42362 (31 July 2013), T. 42384–42387 (1 August 2013). In light of all the evidence before it, the Chamber does not accept the estimate provided by Kos as to the number of victims killed at the Branjevo Military Farm.

As anticipated, later on 14 July, members of the column attacked positions of the Zvornik Brigade.¹⁸⁶⁴⁹ As a result, part of the column passed through the Bosnian Serb lines at Zvornik and continued towards Tuzla.¹⁸⁶⁵⁰ During this breakthrough, Bosnian Muslim men captured Zoran Janković, Commander of the Doboј PJP Platoon, as well as six other MUP and VRS members.¹⁸⁶⁵¹ Around 8:20 p.m., a column about two or three kilometres long was observed in the areas of Jošanica and Liplje.¹⁸⁶⁵² That night, Obrenović requested the command of the Drina Corps to provide reinforcements.¹⁸⁶⁵³ At 10:27 p.m., Jokić informed Miletić about problems with the column, and Miletić asked Jokić to check with Vasić, as “everything available should be gathered [...] [e]veryone who can carry a rifle should go up”.¹⁸⁶⁵⁴ Jokić explained that: “there is a large group going this way [...] we’re having some problems [...] they promised me some reinforcements, but they’re nowhere to be seen...” and added that “Obrenović is really engaged to the hilt... we are all engaged to the hilt... believe me... this package really did for us... we’ve been reporting about the number of people since this morning, so... so there.”¹⁸⁶⁵⁵

8:55 a.m., Pandurević was informed about the movement of the column and the situation in the area where the 4th, 6th, and 7th Battalions of the Zvornik Brigade were deployed.¹⁸⁶⁵⁷ Between 9 and 10 a.m., Pandurević was informed again about the size of the column and of actions being carried out against it.¹⁸⁶⁵⁸ Based on Pandurević's request for reinforcements, the 1st Krajina Corps Company was dispatched to assist the Zvornik Brigade in actions against the column.¹⁸⁶⁵⁹

5468. During the course of the day, Obrenović met with Vasić at the Standard Barracks and discussed opening a corridor to allow the column to pass.¹⁸⁶⁶⁰ Obrenović tried to contact Pandurević to authorise the plan, but Pandurević could not be reached as he was on his way back to Zvornik.¹⁸⁶⁶¹ Obrenović contacted Miletić at the Main Staff instead and asked for his approval to open a corridor.¹⁸⁶⁶² Miletić denied the request and advised Obrenović that the column should be destroyed.¹⁸⁶⁶³ Vasić then sought approval from an advisor at the MUP but was also denied permission.¹⁸⁶⁶⁴ Obrenović subsequently contacted Krstić and was told that he should not worry about the fall of Zvornik because Pandurević and the Drina Wolves were en route.¹⁸⁶⁶⁵ Krstić issued an order for the return of part of the Zvornik Brigade forces and the Podrinje Special Forces Detachment to their zones of responsibility in order to prevent the consequences of a possible attack on Zvornik and the link-up of Bosnian Muslim units from Srebrenica and Tuzla.¹⁸⁶⁶⁶ Krstić then ordered Zvornik Brigade and MUP forces already present in Zvornik to take all measures to block and, if possible, break up and capture Bosnian Muslim forces until the arrival of the reinforcements.¹⁸⁶⁶⁷

5469. Pandurević arrived at the Standard Barracks before noon on 15 July.¹⁸⁶⁶⁸ He was initially opposed to the idea of opening a corridor and ordered Obrenović to continue fighting the column.¹⁸⁶⁶⁹ Pandurević made an offer to the Bosnian Muslim forces that if the armed members of the column surrendered, civilians in the column would be released; however, they refused, asking that the civilian and armed members of the column be released together.¹⁸⁶⁷⁰ Pandurević requested reinforcements, and additional units of the Bosnian Serb Forces were transferred to the Zvornik Brigade's area of responsibility to assist in actions against the column.¹⁸⁶⁷¹ At approximately 11 p.m., Vasić reported to the Accused, among others, that additional forces were urgently needed to comb the terrain and destroy the column due to the danger it posed to the Zvornik area.¹⁸⁶⁷²

5470. On the morning of 16 July, units of the Zvornik Brigade continued to suffer heavy losses while fighting the column, and thousands of Bosnian Muslims broke through the Bosnian Serb lines in the Baljkovica sector.¹⁸⁶⁷³ At 7:06 a.m., while at the IKM, Pandurević informed an unidentified person that there had been fighting all morning.¹⁸⁶⁷⁴ During this conversation, Pandurević said that most of the enemy forces were surrounded in the Baljkovica sector, and that "when the mass poured forward" deep in the rear of the Zvornik Brigade-held territory, the VRS troops fled, enabling the enemy forces to take two self-propelled guns.¹⁸⁶⁷⁵ Pandurević claimed that all of the members of the column were armed, and explained he had some wounded men "down there" and was not able to get them out.¹⁸⁶⁷⁶ The unidentified person informed Pandurević that help would be arriving and that he should use it as he saw fit.¹⁸⁶⁷⁷ Combat activity ceased from both sides between 10 and 11 a.m.¹⁸⁶⁷⁸ Negotiations were held between Pandurević and Šemso Muminović, a member of the column and an officer of the Muslim Forces in Srebrenica, on the passage of the column through Bosnian Serb-held territory in Zvornik municipality.¹⁸⁶⁷⁹ At 1 p.m., an agreement was reached to open a kilometre-wide corridor to allow the column to pass through.¹⁸⁶⁸⁰ In return, the Bosnian Muslims agreed to release Janković and other members of the Bosnian Serb Forces being held.¹⁸⁶⁸¹ The corridor was opened at approximately 2 p.m. and remained open first for approximately 24 hours, followed later by an additional two hours.¹⁸⁶⁸² A column about one or two kilometre long, composed of several thousand armed and unarmed Bosnian Muslims, passed through during this time.¹⁸⁶⁸³

5471. On 16 July, at 1:55 p.m., Pandurević notified the Drina Corps command that a corridor had been opened to allow the civilians through but that Bosnian Serb Forces were still fighting the Muslim Forces in Srebrenica.¹⁸⁶⁸⁴ At approximately 3:30 p.m., a conversation between an unknown interlocutor (X) from the Main Staff and the Zvornik Brigade duty officer was intercepted, in which X stated that he was calling from “the main boss [...] the main head of state” and told the duty officer to “have Vinko tell you what happened and send it right away [...] dictate what has been done and have him send it right away to the Main Staff”.¹⁸⁶⁸⁵ Two minutes later, at 3:32 p.m., the Zvornik Brigade duty officer reported that Pandurević was in the field and could not be contacted.¹⁸⁶⁸⁶ At 4:02 p.m., Krstić was also urgently looking for Pandurević but was also told that Pandurević could not be reached.¹⁸⁶⁸⁷

5472. Some time before 4:15 p.m., the Accused was informed by Karišik that Pandurević had arranged for the opening of the corridor.¹⁸⁶⁸⁸ At approximately 4:20 p.m., Krstić ordered Popović to meet Pandurević in the field to report on the situation regarding the corridor.¹⁸⁶⁸⁹ Soon after, Popović met Pandurević who provided him with his combat report and Popović reported back to the Drina Corps Command.¹⁸⁶⁹⁰ At 6:10 p.m., Pandurević sent an interim combat report to the command of the Drina Corps advising of his decision to open the corridor and that he considered the Krivaja 95 operation incomplete “as long as a single enemy soldier or civilian remains behind the front line”.¹⁸⁶⁹¹ Additional reinforcements were sent to the Zvornik area that evening.¹⁸⁶⁹²

¹⁸⁶⁸⁵ P5076 (Intercept of conversation between a VRS Main Staff member and Palma duty officer, 16 July 1995), p. 1. Obradović confirmed that the phrase “main head of state” referred to the Accused. Ljubomir Obradović, T. 25309–25311 (27 February 2012).

The Main Staff duty officer further told Mladić that he had asked “the duty officer” to urgently connect him with Pandurević, and not to do anything without authorisation until he received the answer of the Main Staff, adding that the column contained both combatants and civilians. D4885 (Intercept of conversation between Main Staff duty officer and Ratko Mladić, 16 July 1995). The Chamber recalls the Accused’s case that he was informed by Karišik on 16 July 1995 that Pandurević agreed to the opening of a corridor. See the Accused’s line of questioning during cross-examination of Joseph Kingori, T. 22942 (13 January 2012) and during cross-examination of KDZ122, T. 26265 (14 March 2012) (closed session). The Chamber notes that Karišik denied that he informed the Accused about the opening of the corridor on 16 July 1995 because technical capacities at the time would have prevented him from communicating with the Accused, and he was not responsible for reporting to the Accused about Srebrenica at any time. Milenko Karišik, T. 40654, 40656–40658 (2 July 2013). The Chamber notes, however, that Karišik managed to contact the MUP in Pale that same afternoon. P5222 (Report of RS MUP, 16 July 1995). The Chamber therefore rejects Karišik’s evidence denying that he informed the Accused of the corridor. The information about opening the corridor was conveyed from the Zvornik CJB to the MUP command staff in Pale, which in turn conveyed it to the Ilidža CJB. P5222 (Report of RS MUP, 16 July 1995).

5473. At 6:15 a.m. on 17 July, Krstić called the Zvornik Brigade asking for news on the Zvornik area.¹⁸⁶⁹³ After being told by Trbić that everything was under control and that there were no problems, Krstić asked: “have you killed the Turks up there?”¹⁸⁶⁹⁴ Trbić replied: “Well, I guess you got the report. What more can I tell you? [...] Basically, we did.”¹⁸⁶⁹⁵ Krstić then asked to be put through to Pandurević who informed Krstić that there were no changes with respect to the report he had previously sent, adding that “we’ll probably finish this today”.¹⁸⁶⁹⁶ At 8:59 a.m., upon being asked by Cerović for a follow-up to the interim combat report about the column sent the day before by Pandurević, Trbić replied that it was not done yet.¹⁸⁶⁹⁷ An intercepted conversation from 9:50 a.m. between two unknown individuals, recorded a discussion on the operations against the column, stating that: “There are many of them. They started a breakthrough yesterday and our men tried to block. They blocked them off and opened fire on them, but it’s a living mass [...] [and] you just can’t kill them all, there are so many of them.”¹⁸⁶⁹⁸

5474. Pandurević was not punished for opening the corridor, although he came under scrutiny by the Main Staff; on 17 July, Mladić sent Colonels Trkulja, Stanković, and Sladojević from the Main Staff to investigate why the corridor had been opened and they questioned whether the Bosnian Serb Forces could have put up a stronger resistance rather than open the corridor.¹⁸⁶⁹⁹ Around that same day, the Accused was interviewed by David Frost and adamantly denied that 15,000 men were missing from Srebrenica, assuring him that the Bosnian Serb Forces had opened their lines to allow many of the missing men from Srebrenica through to Bosnian Muslim-held territory.¹⁸⁷⁰⁰ However, at the 52nd RS Assembly Session held on 6 August 1995, the Accused expressed regret where Cerović was informed that 30 men from Blagojević’s brigade had arrived at 9 p.m., that 30 men from Doboje had arrived around 5 p.m., and that 100 men had arrived from Banja Luka at 5:25 p.m.).

ii. Continued searches through the terrain

5475. From 17 July until at least 2 August 1995, Bosnian Serb Forces carried out extensive searches of the Bratunac and Zvornik areas to destroy straggling parts of the column.¹⁸⁷⁰² Additional forces were deployed by the VRS and MUP on 17 July for this purpose.¹⁸⁷⁰³ In an order issued by Mladić that day, subordinate units of the Zvornik Brigade, the Bratunac Brigade, and the Milići Brigade, among others, were assigned to comb the Zvornik and Bratunac areas with the aim to “block, crush and destroy lagging Muslim forces”.¹⁸⁷⁰⁴ Mladić’s order appointed Keserović commander of the units deployed.¹⁸⁷⁰⁵ Similarly, an order issued by Goran Šarić—Commander of the SBP—that same day to create two combat groups of MUP units for the purpose of fully

Despite the language in the order, Keserović claimed that he told Mladić that the order was a “militarily unacceptable assignment” and that there were several reasons why it should not be executed; Mladić ultimately agreed that Keserović should not take over command of the units, but should still go to the area where the operation was to be carried out to gather information about the operation. Dragomir Keserović, T. 42037–42038, 42040–42041 (25 July 2013). According to Keserović, Blagojević continued with the ordered task. Dragomir Keserović, T. 42038–42039 (25 July 2013). The Chamber notes that an intercepted conversation from 11:15 p.m. on 17 July records two unidentified individuals wherein one asks the other if Keserović has set out already and the second replies “he must have gone first forward over there to Momir Nikolić.” P5390 (Intercept of conversation between two unidentified persons, 17 July 1995). In that same conversation, one of the individuals says that he spoke earlier to Miletić who told him that Keserović had come to “solve these issues”. P5390 (Intercept of conversation between two unidentified persons, 17 July 1995). The Chamber finds that despite Keserović’s efforts to downplay his involvement in the sweeping operation in the Bratunac area, this intercept shows that he was sent to the area by Miletić and the Main Staff.

mopping up the terrain, put Borovčanin in charge of those forces.¹⁸⁷⁰⁶ By the evening of 17 July, about 200 Bosnian Muslims had surrendered, including four children.¹⁸⁷⁰⁷

5476. On 18 July, Pandurević noted that increased combat activity may be expected in the Zvornik Brigade area.¹⁸⁷⁰⁸ That same day, in response to the shooting of a Bosnian Serb soldier, Pandurević ordered that prisoners should not be taken.¹⁸⁷⁰⁹ However, he changed the order three days later, stating that all detainees should be processed according to normal procedures, and Bosnian Serb Forces began to take prisoners again.¹⁸⁷¹⁰ Nevertheless, on or about 23 July, Bosnian Muslim men who were being treated at the Standard Barracks clinic were taken away by members of either the Zvornik Brigade or Drina Corps MP, and executed.¹⁸⁷¹¹ On 2 August 1995, Krstić ordered Obrenović to kill all individuals captured during the searches of the terrain.¹⁸⁷¹² However, the Chamber received evidence that at least some of the persons being detained by the Zvornik Brigade at that time were being sent to the Drina Corps command and then to Batković Camp.¹⁸⁷¹³

iii. Killings

(A) Snagovo

5477. The Indictment refers to the killing, on or about 22 July 1995, of six Bosnian Muslim men who were captured upon becoming separated from the column of men retreating from the Srebrenica enclave, and were executed in the woods near the town of Snagovo.¹⁸⁷¹⁴ Snagovo is located along the eastern border of BiH in Zvornik municipality, approximately 25 kilometres northwest of Srebrenica.¹⁸⁷¹⁵

5478. On or about 14 July 1995,¹⁸⁷¹⁶ an approximately 14 member unit of the Ugljevik PJP was assembled at the Ugljevik SJB to receive orders.¹⁸⁷¹⁷ The unit was ordered by Dragan Kulić—Commander of the Ugljevik SJB—to proceed from Ugljevik to the Snagovo area to “clear or cleanse the terrain”, adding that “not even a fly could get out”.¹⁸⁷¹⁸ KDZ365, [REDACTED], had heard rumours about the fall of the Srebrenica enclave, and interpreted Kulić’s orders as ones to kill Bosnian Muslims fleeing through the woods and heading towards Tuzla.¹⁸⁷¹⁹

5479. The Ugljevik PJP unit proceeded to a crossroads near Snagovo where it spent the night, and received further orders from Zlatko Nedić, from the Bijeljina CJB, to “mop up [the] terrain”.¹⁸⁷²⁰ Over the next five days, the Ugljevik PJP unit carried out a series of patrols through the surrounding wooded areas, searching the terrain.¹⁸⁷²¹ On the fourth or fifth day, a group of three unarmed Bosnian Muslim males emerged from the woods and immediately surrendered to the Ugljevik PJP unit.¹⁸⁷²² Two of the Bosnian Muslim males were between 35 and 40 years old; the third presented himself as 16 years old.¹⁸⁷²³

5480. Approximately ten minutes after the surrender of the three Bosnian Muslim males, a group of approximately 20 other police officers from other stations gathered, all wearing uniforms similar

The fact that a unit of the Bijeljina PJP was present in Zvornik municipality after the fall of Srebrenica is documented in the evidence admitted in this case, but no single piece refers to the name of the specific company. See e.g. P316 (Report of Zvornik CJB to MUP of RS, 15 July 1995) (referring to “[t]wo PJP companies from Bijeljina” fighting along the Zlijebac-Zlatne Vode-Kula Grade-Maričići line); P4960 (Combat report signed by Ljubiša Borovčanin, 10–20 July 1995), p. 3 (referring to two companies of the Bijeljina Special Police Unit fighting against enemy columns along the Kula Grad-Marčići axis).

The Chamber notes the discussion during the Popović et al. case as to the various instances where KDZ365 testified about the events in Snagovo in 1995, and the fact that he changed his evidence with respect to the order given by Kulić. See KDZ365, P325 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 4134–4141, 4144–4145, 4148–4150, 4236 (under seal). However, the Chamber is satisfied with KDZ365’s explanation and accepts this portion of his evidence.

KDZ365 testified that Kulić’s words “meant clearing, cleansing, or mopping up. Actually, killing. What else? He did not use the word “killing,” but that’s what we understood. What else could it have been? [...] Everybody understood, but nobody dared say it out loud and admit how they understood this, because we had heard what was going on in the Srebrenica sector.” KDZ365, P326 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 4097–4098 (under seal). However, in cross-examination, KDZ365 testified that “it could refer to anything. It could refer to one thing or another thing. to those of the Ugljevik PJP unit.¹⁸⁷²⁴ One individual from this group stepped up and shot the two older Bosnian Muslims in the head.¹⁸⁷²⁵ A member of the Ugljevik PJP hid the 16 year old boy behind his back; the boy was spared despite being seen by the group of officers.¹⁸⁷²⁶ The group of police officers left after approximately ten minutes and “disappeared”.¹⁸⁷²⁷

5481. The Chamber finds that, following the fall of Srebrenica, members of the Bosnian Serb Forces killed two Bosnian Muslim males from Srebrenica near the town of Snagovo.

(B) Bišina

5482. The Indictment refers to the killing on 23 July 1995 of over 30 Bosnian Muslim men in Bišina, some of whom were previously detained in the Sušica camp.¹⁸⁷²⁸ Bišina is located in eastern BiH in Šekovići municipality, approximately 70 kilometres northwest of the town of Srebrenica.¹⁸⁷²⁹

5483. On the morning of 23 July 1995, a Drina Corps soldier was ordered by Momo Amović—Chief of the Drina Corps Administrative Section—to drive a minibus to Dragaševac, collect some men, and deliver them to the Birač Brigade.¹⁸⁷³⁰ As instructed, he retrieved approximately five soldiers from the 10th Sabotage Detachment in Dragaševac.¹⁸⁷³¹ On the way back, the soldiers told him to proceed to Bišina instead.¹⁸⁷³²

5484. Meanwhile, three members of the Drina Corps MP Battalion were ordered by their Commander, Ratko Vujović, to drive a truck to pick up Bosnian Muslim detainees from Sušica Camp for a prisoner exchange.¹⁸⁷³³ Upon retrieving these detainees, they were joined by another truck and passenger vehicle and set out for Šekovići in a convoy.¹⁸⁷³⁴

5485. The convoy stopped near a restaurant between Tišća and Šekovići, where a few more detainees were loaded onto one of the trucks.¹⁸⁷³⁵ At this point, the minibus transporting the 10th Sabotage Detachment soldiers joined the convoy, which proceeded in a column to Bišina.¹⁸⁷³⁶

5486. Led by Popović's vehicle, this larger convoy—consisting of two trucks, one additional passenger vehicle, and the minibus—stopped in Bišina near the Command of one of the Birač Brigade's battalions.¹⁸⁷³⁷ One of the soldiers from the 10th Sabotage Detachment ordered the three members of the Drina Corps MP Battalion to provide security around the trucks.¹⁸⁷³⁸ Popović had a brief conversation with the five soldiers,¹⁸⁷³⁹ who proceeded to remove five detainees from the trucks, march them approximately 30 metres away, and shoot them.¹⁸⁷⁴⁰ This process was repeated a number of times.¹⁸⁷⁴¹ Popović saw approximately thirty bodies scattered all around.¹⁸⁷⁴² One of the three MP Battalion members asked Popović, the most senior officer present, what had happened; Popović did not respond and had tears in his eyes.¹⁸⁷⁴³

5487. An excavator subsequently arrived at the site and dug a hole.¹⁸⁷⁴⁴ Upon Popović's request, two of the MP Battalion members assisted in placing the bodies into the hole.¹⁸⁷⁴⁵

5488. The Chamber notes that Popović testified in this case that he was only present at Bišina after the killings took place, denying the Prosecution's allegation that he was in charge of the killings there.¹⁸⁷⁴⁶ Popović also asserted that had he participated in the killings, he would have relocated the bodies later to hide them, but that he did not.¹⁸⁷⁴⁷ However, the Chamber finds Popović's testimony unconvincing in light of other accepted evidence before it. The evidence clearly demonstrates that Popović was present at the time of the killings, when one of the MP Battalion members saw and spoke to him.¹⁸⁷⁴⁸ Furthermore, the vehicle log for the minibus used to transport the 10th Sabotage Detachment soldiers on 23 July 1995 contains Popović's name and signature.¹⁸⁷⁴⁹ The Chamber further notes that intercepted conversations from 24 July 1995 indicate that Popović knew the whereabouts of Himzo Mujić—one of the victims identified from a grave in Bišina¹⁸⁷⁵⁰—and what happened to him.¹⁸⁷⁵¹ The Chamber therefore concludes that Popović was present at the scene and oversaw the killings at Bišina.

5489. Between 20 May and 7 June 2006, the BiHCMP exhumed a grave in the area of Bišina.¹⁸⁷⁵² Based upon DNA analysis, 39 individuals were positively identified as persons listed as missing following the take-over of Srebrenica,¹⁸⁷⁵³ 18 of whom had their wrists ligature-bound, and four of whom were blindfolded.¹⁸⁷⁵⁴ One of the bodies in the mass grave was identified by the ICMP as Himzo Mujić.¹⁸⁷⁵⁵

See also P4642 (ICMP list of identified Srebrenica victims, 15 December 2011) (under seal), entailing ID numbers BIŠ01ŠEK038 and BIŠ01ŠEK040B (z max 2). The Chamber notes that mortal remains with ID numbers BIŠ01ŠEK038 and BIŠ01ŠEK040B (z max 2) were identified as those of Himzo Mujić and those with ID numbers BIŠ01ŠEK040B (F) and BIŠ01ŠEK040B (z max 1) were identified as those of Ramo Ahmetović. In this respect, defence witness Dušan Dunjić challenges the identifications of these victims based on exhumation and autopsy records. In particular, Dunjić notes that one of the two DNA samples from the Bišina gravesite which were used to confirm the identity of Himzo Mujić–BIŠ01ŠEK040B (z max 2)—was, according to ICMP data, part of the separate, complete body–BIŠ01ŠEK040B—of Ramo Ahmetović. Dunjić suggests that this sample could not possibly belong to Mujić and, accordingly, the matching profiles of Mujić and Ahmetović are inconsistent and flawed. D3896 (Dušan Dunjić’s expert report entitled “Forensic Analysis of Exhumation Reports from the Bišina Site and Documents Relating to the Update to the Summary of Forensic Evidence from Graves in the Srebrenica Area”, April 2009), pp. 3–6; D3893 (Dušan Dunjić’s expert report entitled “Forensic Analysis of Reports on the Locations of Mass Graves in the Area of Eastern Bosnia and Documentation Relating to Exhumations in the Srebrenica Area”, 27 August 2009), pp. 101–102. The Chamber is not persuaded by this analysis. Thomas Parsons has explained that individual ICMP samples do not always correspond with complete bodies. In Parsons’ opinion, the pathologist recorded the number 040 with respect to both samples as there was some doubt as to whether the entire body came from a single person, and the pathologist thought it possible that the two samples were related to each other; however, the ICMP ultimately concluded that the two samples (040 B and 040 B (Zamax 2)) were not related to the same individual. Thomas Parsons, P4636 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al), T. 33470–33472 (under seal). Based on this evidence, the Chamber is satisfied with the identifications of these two victims and the methodologies adopted to reach this finding.

5490. Based on the above, the Chamber finds that 39 Bosnian Muslims from Srebrenica were killed by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces in Bišina on 23 July 1995.¹⁸⁷⁵⁶

(C) Trnovo

5491. The Indictment refers to the killing in late July or early August 1995 of six Bosnian Muslim “men and boys” from Srebrenica near the town of Trnovo.¹⁸⁷⁵⁷ Trnovo is located in the southeast of BiH in the Sarajevo region, approximately 85 kilometres southwest of Srebrenica.¹⁸⁷⁵⁸

5492. In 1995, the so-called Scorpions unit was based in Đeletovci, in the then-RSK,¹⁸⁷⁵⁹ and was commanded by Slobodan Medić, a.k.a. “Boca”.¹⁸⁷⁶⁰ It was composed of approximately 250 members, divided in two companies,¹⁸⁷⁶¹ and operated under the authority of the Serbian MUP.¹⁸⁷⁶²

5493. In early July 1995, before the takeover of Srebrenica, a company of the Scorpions unit—composed of approximately 150 men divided in three platoons—commanded by Medić was deployed from Đeletovci to Trnovo for a three week operation.¹⁸⁷⁶³ On the way to Trnovo, the unit entered Serbia, and was escorted by the SDB to the border crossing with BiH, where it continued

¹⁸⁷⁵⁶ The Chamber recalls that while Schedule E.12.1 of the Indictment alleges that the number killed in Bišina is “over 30”, the Prosecution Final Brief indicates “at least 39”. See fn. 18720. Based on the evidence before it, the Chamber is satisfied beyond reasonable doubt that 39 Bosnian Muslim men were killed in Bišina and considers that this figure lies within the scope of what is alleged in the Indictment.

¹⁸⁷⁶² KDZ612 stated that, at the time of its establishment, the Scorpions unit was under the JNA command; however, by 1994, it was already under the command of the Serbian SDB and received orders from the SDB, and KDZ612 added that Medić “used to brag about his association with the DB and all the meetings he had with them to receive orders”. P409 (Witness Statement of KDZ612 dated 17 February 2005), p. 6 (under seal). KDZ612 further stated that Medić met with Franko Simatović at the headquarters in Đeletovci some time in 1995, and that Medić would go for meetings with Jovica Stanišić; however, according to KDZ612, Milan Milanović, a.k.a. “Mrgud”—who was “some sort of commander of the police”—also served as the intermediary between Medić and the SDB leadership in Belgrade, and Medić boasted that the orders came from Stanišić and Simatović. P409 (Witness Statement of KDZ612 dated 17 February 2005), p. 7 (under seal). Furthermore, KDZ612 testified that the Scorpions wore a badge with a sword to show that they were a SDB unit, and that it was common knowledge that the sword was the insignia of the SDB; once the Scorpions left for Trnovo the badges were replaced with Serbian MUP badges. until stopping at Jahorina.¹⁸⁷⁶⁴ After a couple of days, all but a few of the Scorpions' members who had arrived in Jahorina left for Trnovo.¹⁸⁷⁶⁵ Upon reaching Trnovo, the Scorpions participated in combat operations as part of the joint VRS and MUP forces operating on the Sarajevo front.¹⁸⁷⁶⁶ The Chamber recalls that on 10 July 1995, a part of these joint forces was detached and sent to the Srebrenica sector under Borovčanin's command,¹⁸⁷⁶⁷ while another part, including the Scorpions unit, stayed behind.¹⁸⁷⁶⁸

5494. During the operation in Trnovo, two members of the Scorpions were ordered by Medić to take a bus and a TAM truck and go to Srebrenica to assist in transporting Bosnian Muslim male detainees.¹⁸⁷⁶⁹ The Scorpions transported multiple groups of Bosnian Muslim males who had been detained in Srebrenica.¹⁸⁷⁷⁰ At some point, a “final group” of six Bosnian Muslim men from Srebrenica was brought to the Scorpions command post.¹⁸⁷⁷¹ Medić ordered that these men be killed.¹⁸⁷⁷² Slobodan Stojković, a member of the Scorpions, was ordered by Medić to film the execution.¹⁸⁷⁷³

5495. The six men were driven in a truck to an isolated spot four or five kilometres from the command post.¹⁸⁷⁷⁴ While in the truck, a member of the Scorpions kicked one of the men in the head.¹⁸⁷⁷⁵ The men, whose hands were tied, were unloaded and made to lie on the side of the road,¹⁸⁷⁷⁶ while being insulted by some of the eight members of the Scorpions who were present at the side of the road.¹⁸⁷⁷⁷ The Bosnian Muslim men were subsequently led into a forest clearing containing two abandoned cottages.¹⁸⁷⁷⁸ Four of the men were forced to walk forward one by one and were shot multiple times with automatic rifles by two members of the Scorpions.¹⁸⁷⁷⁹ The remaining two men were untied and ordered to carry the dead into the forest.¹⁸⁷⁸⁰ These two men were then laid on the floor of one of the abandoned houses and shot multiple times with automatic rifles by one of the same individuals who shot the first four detainees.¹⁸⁷⁸¹

5496. The remains of the six men were exhumed in 1999 from the Godinjske Bare gravesite near Trnovo, and identified by DNA analysis.¹⁸⁷⁸² All six men had been reported as missing or dead after the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁸⁷⁸³

5497. The Chamber finds that, following the fall of Srebrenica, members of the Scorpions killed six Bosnian Muslim males from Srebrenica near the town of Trnovo.

iv. Transfer to Batković Camp

5498. The Chamber recalls that Batković Camp was established in June 1992 in a location approximately 12 kilometres from Bijeljina, and that VRS soldiers were assigned to secure it throughout the armed conflict in BiH.¹⁸⁷⁸⁴

5499. On 11 or 12 July 1995, Milenko Todorović, the Chief of Security of the Eastern Bosnia Corps, received a telegram from Tolimir which directed the Eastern Bosnia Corps to prepare accommodation at Batković Camp for approximately 1,000 to 1,200 detained Bosnian Muslim soldiers, who were to arrive in the following days.¹⁸⁷⁸⁵ Upon receiving this telegram, Todorović immediately conveyed the order to his commander, Novica Simić, who then began preparations for the arrival of the detainees.¹⁸⁷⁸⁶ However, the prisoners did not arrive.¹⁸⁷⁸⁷ Approximately one day later, at Simić's request, Todorović consulted Tolimir about the whereabouts of the prisoners and was told to halt further preparations for the detainees as the task had been abandoned.¹⁸⁷⁸⁸

5500. Sometime on or after 15 July, Simić called Pandurević and advised him that if he had any detainees in his AOR, he could send them to Batković.¹⁸⁷⁸⁹ Pandurević advised that there were members of the Muslim Forces in Srebrenica who were still trying to break through to Tuzla, and that capturing them and transporting them to Batković Camp would not be a problem.¹⁸⁷⁹⁰ Pandurević also advised that they already had a number of detainees that needed to be taken over and transported to the camp.¹⁸⁷⁹¹ Following that conversation, Simić advised Todorović to organise, through the MP Battalion, a number of vehicles and soldiers to transport the detainees from the Zvornik area to Batković Camp, and that these soldiers should report to the Zvornik Brigade Command.¹⁸⁷⁹²

5501. An MP squad of 10 to 15 men went to the Zvornik area on a daily basis from 18 to 26 July 1995 for the purpose of collecting prisoners of war.¹⁸⁷⁹³ In total, approximately 160 to 180 detainees were taken to Batković Camp in this period.¹⁸⁷⁹⁴ Among these were 22 individuals picked up on 18 July by the Eastern Bosnia Corps MP from the Drina Corps MP in Vlasenica,¹⁸⁷⁹⁵ as well as 34 Bosnian Muslims from Srebrenica who surrendered in the course of 26 July.¹⁸⁷⁹⁶

The Chamber notes that Todorović testified that he was not sure of the date of the phone call between Simić and Pandurević. Milenko Todorović, T. 44194 (28 November 2013). It further notes that in his interview with the Prosecution, Todorović said that he believed the phone call occurred the same morning or the day after he consulted Tolimir about the whereabouts of the detainees. D4134 (Excerpt of OTP interview with Milenko Todorović, 2 February 2010), pp. 37–38. However, the Chamber recalls that Pandurević only returned to the Zvornik Brigade by noon on 15 July. See para. 5469. The Chamber therefore finds that the phone call could not have taken place until at least 15 July.

v. Reburial operation

5503. The Chamber recalls its previous findings that the bodies of victims of the Scheduled Incidents at the Kravica Warehouse, Orahovac, Petkovci Dam, Kozluk, Branjevo Military Farm, and Pilica Cultural Centre, which had been buried in primary gravesites in the Bratunac and Zvornik areas, were exhumed, transported, and reburied in remote secondary gravesites in September and October 1995.¹⁸⁸⁰⁰ The Chamber will discuss the processes in further detail below.

(A) The reburials from the Bratunac area

5504. In September 1995, Popović visited the Bratunac Brigade to convey an order from the Main Staff, stating that an operation involving the exhumation and reburial of bodies from the Glogova gravesites was to be carried out.¹⁸⁸⁰¹ This operation was known as “asanacija” or the sanitation and hygiene measures operation, and Momir Nikolić was tasked with co-ordinating the logistics.¹⁸⁸⁰²

5505. Drivers, vehicles, and machinery from civilian companies, as well as members of the Bratunac Civilian Protection, were utilised in the reburial operation.¹⁸⁸⁰³ A number of meetings were held at the Bratunac municipal building, where Deronjić communicated with local companies so that part of the “non-military related tasks” could be carried out.¹⁸⁸⁰⁴ Specifically, around mid-October, Deronjić requested workers from the Bratunac Civilian Protection and ordered that they should report to Momir Nikolić that evening.¹⁸⁸⁰⁵ The workers were dropped off in front of the Bratunac Brigade Command between 9 and 10 p.m.¹⁸⁸⁰⁶

5506. The reburial operation took place over the course of several nights.¹⁸⁸⁰⁷ The 5th Engineering Battalion provided some of the machinery and fuel for the operation.¹⁸⁸⁰⁸ Members of the Bratunac Brigade MP and the Bratunac SJB secured the Bratunac–Konjević Polje and Bratunac–Ljubovija Roads, and diverted traffic to other routes so that the trucks transporting the bodies from Glogova through Bratunac town, in the direction of Srebrenica, could pass unhindered.¹⁸⁸⁰⁹ A stench that could be smelled throughout Bratunac town emanated from the bodies as they were being transported.¹⁸⁸¹⁰ Though intended to be a secret operation, the operation ceased to be covert due to the number of participants involved.¹⁸⁸¹¹

On 14 September 1995, the Main Staff sent an urgent order signed by Mladić to the Drina Corps command approving five tonnes of D-2 diesel to be delivered to Trbić at the Standard Barracks.¹⁸⁸¹⁵ Pursuant to Mladić's order, Žarko Ljuboječić of the Main Staff's Sector for Logistics directed the command of the 35th Logistics Base to issue 5,000 litres of D-2 diesel, and requested that a Drina Corps representative collect the fuel and provide transportation for its delivery.¹⁸⁸¹⁶ [REDACTED].¹⁸⁸¹⁷ [REDACTED].¹⁸⁸¹⁸

Machine operators belonging to the Zvornik Brigade Engineering Company and other members of the Zvornik Brigade reopened the primary gravesites.¹⁸⁸²⁴ Heavy duty tipper trucks driven by civilians and belonging to the Zvornik Brigade and various private companies transported the bodies.¹⁸⁸²⁵ The reburial operation in Zvornik was conducted over a period of five or six nights.¹⁸⁸²⁶ Drago Nikolić and the Zvornik Brigade MP provided traffic security.¹⁸⁸²⁷ Throughout this time, Trbić co-ordinated the operation, and periodically summoned the personnel involved in the reburials, inquiring about the progress of the operation.¹⁸⁸²⁸

5512. Aerial images reveal the emergence of disturbed earth at the Lažete, Petkovci Dam, Kozluk, and Branjevo Military Farm gravesites between 7 and 27 September 1995.¹⁸⁸²⁹ Additional aerial images indicate disturbed earth along the Hodžići, Snagovo–Liplje, and Čančari Roads between 7 September and 2 October 1995.¹⁸⁸³⁰ Further, the Chamber has already noted forensic evidence establishing links between the Lažete primary gravesites and seven secondary gravesites located along the Hodžići Road, the primary gravesites at Petkovci Dam and five secondary gravesites along the Liplje Road, the primary gravesites at Kozluk and five secondary gravesites along the Čančari Road, as well as the primary gravesite at the Branjevo Military Farm and nine gravesites located along the Čančari Road.¹⁸⁸³¹

(C) Conclusion

5513. On the basis of this evidence, the Chamber finds that between September and October 1995, the VRS Main Staff organised the reburial of bodies of individuals killed within the respective AORs of the Bratunac and Zvornik Brigades in July 1995. The bodies were exhumed from their original graves and reburied in remote secondary graves. The reburial operation was carried out by members of the security organs of the Main Staff, Drina Corps, Bratunac Brigade, and Zvornik Brigade, with the assistance of Bosnian Serb civilian authorities and other VRS and MUP units.

5514. The Chamber further finds that the reburial operation was triggered by the discovery by the international community of the existence of mass gravesites in Srebrenica following Albright's address to the Security Council in August 1995, and was conducted for the purpose of hiding the evidence of the mass executions that took place in July 1995 in Srebrenica.¹⁸⁸³²

h. Forensic, demographic, and DNA evidence

(A) Introduction

5515. The number of victims killed during the events in Srebrenica in July 1995, as alleged in the Indictment, is a highly contested matter in this case.

5516. The Prosecution asserts that "over 7,000 Bosnian Muslim men and boys" were killed following the fall of Srebrenica in July 1995.¹⁸⁸³³ It supports this assertion by pointing to the 5,850 bodies identified in Srebrenica-related graves as of January 2012,¹⁸⁸³⁴ and to demographic evidence suggesting that 7,905 people went missing after the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁸⁸³⁵

5517. The Accused contests the Prosecution's calculation of the number of individuals executed after the fall of Srebrenica, asserting that there is absolutely no reliable evidence to suggest that the Bosnian Serbs captured anywhere close to that many prisoners.¹⁸⁸³⁶ He adds that the total number of executed persons cannot exceed the difference between the population of Srebrenica before its fall and the number of people from Srebrenica who arrived in Bosnian Muslim-held territory or elsewhere after the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁸⁸³⁷ The Accused also claims that the Prosecution's argument in relation to the number of people killed is fallacious, as it fails to account for the commingling of the bodies of persons killed in combat with the bodies of those who were ¹⁸⁸³³ Indictment, para. 47(a). See Prosecution Final Brief, Appendix D, paras. 1, 173; Prosecution Closing Argument, T. 47799, 47802 (30 September 2014). The Prosecution explains that this figure is proven by the totality of the evidence, which can be divided in four broad categories: DNA; testimonial evidence of the number of prisoners killed; evidence of the number of prisoners captured; and the demographic evidence of the number of people missing following the fall of Srebrenica. Prosecution Closing Argument, T. 47799 (30 September 2014).

¹⁸⁸³⁵ Prosecution Final Brief, Appendix D, paras. 172–173, referencing P4995 (Ewa Tabeau's expert report entitled "The 2009 Integrated Report on Srebrenica Missing Including a Progress Report on DNA-based Identification", 9 April 2009), pp. 28–29; P5005 (2012 ICMP updated list of Srebrenica missing) (under seal); and P5004 (Ewa Tabeau's report describing integration of new 2012 ICMP update to 2009 list of Srebrenica Missing persons).

executed.¹⁸⁸³⁸ While the Accused concludes that approximately 4,000 persons may be considered as unaccounted for after the fall of Srebrenica,¹⁸⁸³⁹ he claims that many of those died from mines, suicides, as a result of “legitimate combat activities”, or in the aftermath of the mutiny at the Kravica Warehouse.¹⁸⁸⁴⁰ He therefore urges the Chamber not to make a determination as to the total number of persons executed after the fall of Srebrenica, as this determination, according to the Accused, cannot be made beyond reasonable doubt.¹⁸⁸⁴¹

5518. The Prosecution responds by stating that the Accused’s arguments on the number of Bosnian Muslim men executed in Srebrenica fail to consider the totality of the evidence in this case, which includes evidence of witnesses, intercepts, and other documents corroborated by forensic and demographic evidence.¹⁸⁸⁴² The Prosecution adds that the Accused has examined the forensic and demographic evidence in isolation, and that his argument that the number of Srebrenica victims cannot be determined is confused and speculative, and is not supported by the evidence in this case.¹⁸⁸⁴³

5520. Specifically, the Chamber received the evidence of several experts who participated in the exhumation of the various gravesites associated with the Srebrenica killings, namely anthropologists José Pablo Baraybar,¹⁸⁸⁴⁵ William Haglund,¹⁸⁸⁴⁶ Freddy Peccerelli,¹⁸⁸⁴⁷ and Richard

¹⁸⁸⁴⁴ The Chamber reached this total number of victims of the Schedule E Incidents by adding the following numbers: 15 Bosnian Muslim men killed at the Jadar River; 755 Bosnian Muslim men killed at the Kravica Warehouse; ten Bosnian Muslim men killed at the Sandići Meadow; 21 Bosnian Muslim men killed at the Luke School; 841 Bosnian Muslim men killed at Orahovac; 815 Bosnian Muslim men killed at Petkovci; 815 Bosnian Muslim men killed at Ročević School and Kozluk; 1,735 Bosnian Muslim men killed at the Kula School, the Branjevo Military Farm, and the Pilica Cultural Centre; two Bosnian Muslim men killed at Snagovo; 39 Bosnian Muslim men killed at Bišina; six Bosnian Muslim men killed at Trnovo; ten Bosnian Muslim men killed at Potočari; and 51 Bosnian Muslim men killed at Bratunac Town. 5521. Finally, the Chamber received evidence from Dušan Dunjić, a “forensic medical officer”, and Stevo Pašalić, a professor in demography and social geography, who testified as Defence witnesses and challenged the evidence of the Prosecution witnesses.¹⁸⁸⁵¹ Dunjić prepared two reports for this case. gravesites, as well as reports prepared by Haglund, Clark, Wright, Lawrence, Peccerelli, and Baraybar in connection with the Srebrenica-related gravesites.¹⁸⁸⁵² The second report—which was admitted into evidence as D3894—was prepared for the purpose of objecting to findings by the Prosecution experts on, inter alia, the cause of death of Srebrenica victims.¹⁸⁸⁵³ Pašalić prepared a report for this case, which was admitted into evidence as D3125, and gave evidence on the demographic movements in BiH in the periods before, during, and after the war.¹⁸⁸⁵⁴

5522. In reaching its findings on the total number of victims killed during the course of the Scheduled Incidents, as set out in the Potočari, Bratunac, and Zvornik sections of this Srebrenica component of the Judgement, the Chamber has considered and analysed the evidence of all of these witnesses, as well as the corresponding challenges raised by the Accused. The Chamber will deal with general aspects of the witnesses' evidence, Dunjić's challenges thereto, as well as with the Accused's arguments, in the sections below.

(B) Forensic evidence

5523. In 1996, Prosecution teams of experts began investigating and exhuming gravesites suspected of being connected to the fall of Srebrenica in July 1995.¹⁸⁸⁵⁵ Between 1996 and 2001, they identified more than 43 primary and secondary mass graves as being connected to the fall of Srebrenica, and exhumed approximately 22 of those.¹⁸⁸⁵⁶ In 2001, the Tribunal handed over the responsibility for the exhumation of all remaining gravesites to the BiHCMP, which was initially monitored by the Tribunal for the remainder of 2001, and later by the ICMP.¹⁸⁸⁵⁷ In addition to the graves already exhumed by the Tribunal, the BiHCMP and the ICMP identified additional gravesites connected to Srebrenica.¹⁸⁸⁵⁸

(1) Date of death

5524. The Accused claims that, given that the charges against him concern alleged killings which took place between 12 and 23 July 1995, as opposed to legitimate killings or deaths during the course of combat from 1992 to 1995, it is important to establish when the alleged victims of execution died.¹⁸⁸⁵⁹

5525. The Accused argues that the Srebrenica-related gravesites were mixed gravesites containing the bodies of those killed in combat over a period of approximately 45 months, including in July 1995.¹⁸⁸⁶⁰ The Accused also presents various theories—the most important of which will be discussed in detail in the following paragraphs—to support his claim that many of the Srebrenica missing died in combat and/or prior to the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁸⁸⁶¹

5526. The Chamber notes that the forensic reports tendered by the Prosecution do not include a precise date of death.¹⁸⁸⁶² Dunjić testified, however, that in order to make a proper assessment as to whether the bodies of some individuals found in Srebrenica-related gravesites died as a result of events not connected with the fall of Srebrenica, he had to first assess the Prosecution's analysis on the date of death.¹⁸⁸⁶³ Dunjić concluded, based on his own analysis, that a precise date of death in relation to the bodies exhumed from Srebrenica-related gravesites could not be determined.¹⁸⁸⁶⁴

This finding is supported by the evidence of Prosecution experts. For example, Baraybar testified that it is not possible to determine when an individual died through a naked-eye examination of a body, be it preserved or decomposed.¹⁸⁸⁶⁵ Similarly, because of all the factors that could alter the decomposition of bodies within a gravesite, Lawrence acknowledged that he could not ascertain when Srebrenica victims died.¹⁸⁸⁶⁶ Wright similarly testified that the date of death cannot be determined by merely looking at the remains of an individual.¹⁸⁸⁶⁷

(a) Information provided to Prosecution experts

5527. As a general objection to the Prosecution's evidence, the Accused claims that Prosecution experts were not informed about the combat activities in the area before July 1995 or about the possible casualties from such combat activities, and worked under the assumption that all the victims had died during incidents connected to the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁸⁸⁶⁸ Experts were thus instructed to find victims of the alleged executions that took place in Srebrenica in July 1995, and did not investigate the date of death and burial, or the cause and manner of death.¹⁸⁸⁶⁹ Consequently, the Accused claims that the experts' evidence does not support the conclusions the Prosecution wants the Chamber to reach.¹⁸⁸⁷⁰ The Accused urges the Chamber to draw the appropriate conclusions from the 45 month-long military combat activity in the area.¹⁸⁸⁷¹

5528. The Chamber notes that some experts confirmed that they were in fact told that the gravesites being exhumed contained bodies of men who had been executed after the fall of

Srebrenica.¹⁸⁸⁷² While some experts were aware that fighting had been taking place in the area for months prior to the fall of Srebrenica,¹⁸⁸⁷³ others did not have this information when they first started working in the area.¹⁸⁸⁷⁴ Experts focused on gravesites where there was information that people had been executed on 14 to 16 July 1995;¹⁸⁸⁷⁵ as a result, they worked under the assumption that all the bodies exhumed from the Srebrenica-related gravesites were thought to be related to the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁸⁸⁷⁶ Clark explained that, based on this understanding, experts were asked whether all of the bodies found within a single gravesite could have been related to one and the same incident.¹⁸⁸⁷⁷

5529. Experts also explained that they were provided with limited background information about the bodies in the gravesites, so that they could look at the findings objectively and not be biased.¹⁸⁸⁷⁸ They were not told what they would, or should, find within the specific gravesites.¹⁸⁸⁷⁹ Thus, as explained by Baraybar, experts were not asked by the Prosecution to make a finding one way or another, but to extract their findings in a scientific manner and to reach opinions based on their findings.¹⁸⁸⁸⁰

5530. The Chamber notes that the fact that experts were provided with limited background information about the bodies in the gravesites and, more generally, about the fall of Srebrenica, does not, in and of itself, taint their reports with bias or make them less reliable.

(b) Mixed gravesites

5531. The Accused claims that throughout the war the remains of soldiers killed in combat and those of the victims of execution were commingled in gravesites, and that single gravesites contained bodies from multiple burials.¹⁸⁸⁸¹ According to the Accused, the Prosecution is in possession of many documents indicating that multiple burials took place.¹⁸⁸⁸² Dunjić states that the discovery of a large number of bodies in a single mass grave does not automatically mean that all the victims whose bodies were exhumed died on the same day, in the same place, and in the same way.¹⁸⁸⁸³ Dunjić claims that, in the present case, the forensic evidence supports the theory of enrichment, as it shows that bodies brought from different areas not directly connected to Srebrenica were buried subsequently in primary and secondary gravesites.¹⁸⁸⁸⁴ Referring to evidence received on the fate of many of the men from the column as a result of ambushes by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces, Dunjić also claims that the many casualties were not buried immediately upon their deaths, but were only subsequently brought to the nearest places where they could be buried.¹⁸⁸⁸⁵

5532. Contrary to this, the Prosecution claims that there is no archaeological evidence of enrichment in the graves, and argues that all the evidence taken together demonstrates beyond reasonable doubt that all of the Srebrenica-related primary and secondary gravesites exclusively contain the bodies of Srebrenica-related execution victims,¹⁸⁸⁸⁶ apart from a few exceptions.¹⁸⁸⁸⁷ In support, the Prosecution refers to the following: first, the Prosecution's experts did not see any evidence that those whose bodies were exhumed from the Srebrenica-related graves died in combat; second, the experts saw no evidence that the Srebrenica-related graves had either been created on the sites of existing sites or subsequently re-opened; third, the cause and manner of death of bodies from each of the primary and secondary gravesites support the witness evidence of the executions at each of these sites; fourth, there were blindfolds and ligatures in the graves associated with some of the killing sites; fifth, some graves contained artefacts linking their contents to the specific site

¹⁸⁸⁸⁵ Dušan Dunjić, T. 41757–41758 (23 July 2013). In this regard, the Accused specifically refers to the testimony of KDZ045 to claim that the bodies of seven individuals who died while trying to flee Srebrenica were buried in Srebrenica-related gravesites. Defence Final Brief, paras. 2549–2556. See also Thomas Parsons, T. 26649 (22 March 2012), T. 26650–26651 (22 March 2012) (private session) (where the Accused questioned Parsons on this same issue). The Prosecution submits that among the seven individuals referred to by KDZ045, six were not buried in Srebrenica-related gravesites and thus were not included in Janc's computation; while the remains of the seventh individual were found in a Srebrenica-related gravesite, KDZ045 did not witness this individual being killed in the woods, but only heard that was the case. Prosecution Closing Argument, T. 47797–47798 (30 September 2014). See KDZ045 T. 22677–22679 (10 January 2012) (private session). Having analysed all the evidence in question, the Chamber is satisfied with the Prosecution's explanation, and rejects the Accused's argument in this respect.

¹⁸⁸⁸⁷ Prosecution Closing Argument, T. 47795–47796 (30 September 2014). The Prosecution states that the exceptions relate to Glogova, Blječeva, and Liplje 8, but adds that the numbers arising from these gravesites have been explained by Dušan Janc, and not included in the total number of Srebrenica victims in Janc's Report. See Prosecution Closing Argument, T. 47795 (30 September 2014). See also Dušan Janc, T. 27016–27017 (27 March 2012), T. 27040–27046, 27060 (28 March 2012).

where the detainees were killed; and sixth, there is no credible evidence that the secondary graves contain any bodies other than those of victims from the primary graves.¹⁸⁸⁸⁸

5533. The Chamber notes that Prosecution experts involved in the exhumation of Srebrenica gravesites stated that they had not seen any signs of enrichment when conducting their work.¹⁸⁸⁸⁹ Manning explained that the experts did not see specific evidence pointing to Srebrenica gravesites containing evidence from a previous era, or to bodies buried through the sanitation process.¹⁸⁸⁹⁰ Haglund testified that, while it was theoretically possible that bodies of combatants could have been previously buried in mass gravesites due to the sanitisation process during the war, his analysis of the gravesites did not support the theory that the victims had died in combat.¹⁸⁸⁹¹

5534. The Chamber also notes that, when discussing the findings in his report for the Kozluk and Glogova gravesites, Clark acknowledged that, theoretically, he could not completely exclude the possibility that at least some of the bodies in such gravesites could have been from an earlier incident and buried in the same gravesite.¹⁸⁸⁹² However, the presence of blindfolds tied tightly around the vast majority of people's eyes, with a substantial number of bullet holes through blindfolds, led to Clark's opinion that the victims were not combatants.¹⁸⁸⁹³ Similarly, Peccerelli testified that, while he could not entirely rule out the possibility that the victims exhumed from Lažete had died in combat, the evidence analysed left nothing that would lead him to believe that these were deaths resulting from combat.¹⁸⁸⁹⁴ Peccerelli further explained, when questioned on how he would rule out the possibility of burials taking place in several stages, that bodies were placed without any layer of foreign soil between them, and that burials taking place in stages would be evidenced by a certain degree of disturbance to the grave, which was not seen at Lažete.¹⁸⁸⁹⁵

¹⁸⁸⁸⁸ Prosecution Closing Argument, T. 47796 (30 September 2014). On this last point, the Prosecution states that the Accused has ignored all of the linkage between the primary and the secondary graves, apart from the DNA linkage, which includes soil, pollen, other artefacts, as well as the evidence from witnesses and documents about the reburial operation itself. Prosecution Closing Argument, T. 47796 (30 September 2014).

Peccerelli referred to the presence of ligatures on some of the bodies, probable blindfolds on most of the others, and the organised way the bodies were arranged in the grave, amongst other evidence, to support his claim. See Fredy Peccerelli, T. 22753 (11 January 2012).

5535. To support the theory of the mixed gravesites, Dunjić claims that the strips identified as blindfolds found in various Srebrenica-related gravesites could either be: (i) simple pieces of cloth used to bandage the forehead, or (ii) headbands tied around the forehead by soldiers who belong to a military group or who want to show their affiliation to a religion.¹⁸⁸⁹⁶ This argument was also put to experts by the Accused throughout the case.¹⁸⁸⁹⁷ According to the Accused, it shows that these individuals were killed in combat.¹⁸⁸⁹⁸ The Accused argued, inter alia, that it was customary to wear headbands around the forehead during combat, and that due to decaying tissue these headbands could slide down the head.¹⁸⁸⁹⁹ He further argued that in circumstances where combatants cannot be differentiated based on race, language or faith, ribbons or other markings are used to prevent friendly fire.¹⁸⁹⁰⁰

5536. The Chamber notes that this theory was consistently discounted by Prosecution witnesses.¹⁸⁹⁰¹ For example, upon being questioned on whether they knew about Bosnian Muslim combatants wearing head pieces, both Peccerelli and Manning testified that, in relation to bodies found at Lažete, there was nothing to indicate that the blindfolds were actually headbands used by combatants.¹⁸⁹⁰² When discussing the Branjevo Military Farm gravesite, and upon being questioned on whether he knew about Bosnian Muslim combatants wearing bandanas and the possibility of these being mistaken for blindfolds, Haglund explained that the blindfolds were not bandannas because they had been tied tightly on the eyes and had not moved down.¹⁸⁹⁰³ Similarly, Lawrence testified that, while he could not discard for certain the possibility that the blindfolds found in the Hodžići Road gravesites could be military headbands, he was of the opinion that, based on other evidence, such as the presence of bodies of old people with severe disabilities, the victims were not combatants.¹⁸⁹⁰⁴

5537. The Chamber finds that in expounding on his theory on blindfolds, Dunjić ignores the considerable evidence to the contrary and, more generally, the circumstances surrounding the various Scheduled Incidents, as charged in the Indictment. Accordingly, the Chamber considers his analysis to be unacceptable.

5538. To further support the existence of mixed gravesites, the Accused argues that the existence of more than 1,000 surface remains¹⁸⁹⁰⁵ confirms that there were many combat casualties and claims that, when examining the gravesites, the Prosecution did not make an effort to differentiate between those who died in combat and those who were allegedly victims of execution.¹⁸⁹⁰⁶ Dunjić adds that while experts acknowledged having informed themselves with the events in Srebrenica before conducting their work, they neglected the possibility that there may have been subsequent burials and that bodies from the surface may have been brought to those gravesites later.¹⁸⁹⁰⁷

5539. Prosecution experts agreed that, in conducting their work, a holistic approach for the entire investigation needed to be adopted and that they had to examine the mass graves in context.¹⁸⁹⁰⁸ The Chamber fully agrees with this. In so far as the various possibilities raised by the Accused are concerned, each piece of forensic evidence has to be considered in light of the totality of the evidence before the Chamber. In the present case, and subject to the Chamber's findings in relation to the Glogova and Blječeva gravesites as referred to below,¹⁸⁹⁰⁹ the Chamber is satisfied that there is no evidence to prove the existence of mixed Srebrenica-related gravesites.

(c) Various degrees of decomposition

5540. The Accused also refers to the various degrees of decomposition of bodies found in individual gravesites which, he claims, point to the possibility of multiple burials, and thus support his theory that many of the victims died prior to the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁸⁹¹⁰

5541. In this regard, Dunjić claims that the autopsy reports he reviewed, which describe the state of decomposition of skeletal remains, incontrovertibly point to various dates of death.¹⁸⁹¹¹ Dunjić also notes that the features of the bodies and the changes to the skeletal remains, as noted in the autopsy reports, indicate varying dates of burial, and hence varying dates of death.¹⁸⁹¹² Specifically, Dunjić challenges the conclusions of Prosecution experts that different degrees of putrefaction of remains in the same gravesite are attributable to the conditions in the gravesite.¹⁸⁹¹³ According to Dunjić, different degrees of putrefaction of exhumed bodies in one location could indicate that there are various times of death, subsequent times of burial, that the bodies were brought from other places, or that there were different causes of decomposition.¹⁸⁹¹⁴

5542. The Prosecution claims that it is normal for bodies in a single gravesite to decompose at different rates.¹⁸⁹¹⁵ The Chamber heard evidence that differences in the state of preservation are not necessarily indicative of different periods of burial.¹⁸⁹¹⁶ Prosecution experts testified that there are many factors that could alter the decomposition of bodies, including how long they have been dead, the location of the body within the gravesite, whether they have been buried or exposed to air, the temperature, humidity and acidity of the soil, the degree of disarticulation of the body, and access of insects to the remains.¹⁸⁹¹⁷ Conditions in a mass grave can vary from top to bottom, depending on the amount of moisture present: with adipocere—a process which requires water—being present at the bottom of a gravesite, and mummification of the body being present at the top of the gravesite.¹⁸⁹¹⁸ Thus, bodies buried at the edge of the mass gravesite will decompose at slightly faster rate than bodies in the middle of the mass grave, where there is almost no oxygen present and remains are protected from the environment.¹⁸⁹¹⁹ It is therefore common to find almost complete loss of tissue in remains close to edge of the gravesite, and entirely preserved remains in the middle of the gravesite.¹⁸⁹²⁰ Bodies might also decompose differently due to their weight, size, and sex.¹⁸⁹²¹

5543. The Chamber finds that various degrees of decomposition within a single gravesite could, in some circumstances, be indicative of bodies having been buried at different times. However, the evidence on the various degrees of decomposition within the Srebrenica-related gravesites ought to be considered in light of the totality of evidence before the Chamber, including that of insiders and eye-witnesses to the killings and burial operations. The Chamber is therefore satisfied with the explanation provided by the Prosecution experts and finds that, in the present case, the existence of various degrees of decomposition within a single gravesite is not indicative of various times of burial and/or of various dates of death.

(d) Victims' clothing

5544. Dunjić states that some of the bodies found at the various gravesites were wearing winter clothes, which suggests that they were more probably killed in winter, before or after the fall of Srebrenica, and that the time of death of victims within one gravesite differs.¹⁸⁹²² The Accused claims that bodies found with multiple layers of clothes serve to prove that they died prior to the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁸⁹²³

5545. The Chamber has received evidence showing that men fleeing Srebrenica in July 1995 were often wearing multiple layers of clothes.¹⁸⁹²⁴ The Chamber is thus not persuaded by the Accused's argument and dismisses it in its entirety.

(2) Cause and manner of death

5546. As discussed in the findings relating to each specific Scheduled Killing Incident, the forensic reports tendered by the Prosecution indicate that the main cause of death was determined to be gunshot injury. However, in a considerable number of cases, the cause of death could not be determined for a number of reasons, including the substantial damage visible on the remains, and their high degree of decomposition.¹⁸⁹²⁵

5547. The Chamber notes that Clark testified that the primary purpose of autopsies is to examine the bodies for injuries in an attempt to determine the cause of death.¹⁸⁹²⁶ Due to the length of time that the bodies were buried in the Srebrenica-related gravesites, the majority of bodies had skeletonised and the only option was to examine the bones.¹⁸⁹²⁷ Clark explained that postmortem injuries include "crushing injuries" caused by the weight of bodies in the grave or vehicles driving over the surface of the graves; perimortem injuries, such as blunt force injuries caused by beatings, can unavoidably be wrongly interpreted as postmortem damage.¹⁸⁹²⁸ As a result, Clark acknowledged that it is difficult to determine if a particular injury had been caused before or after death, as it is only possible to do so when looking at soft tissue damage such as bruising or haemorrhaging.¹⁸⁹²⁹ Clark thus assumed that the vast majority of gunshot and other relevant injuries occurred in life and explained that the fact that the vast majority of bodies examined showed evidence of gunshot injury suggests that the gunshot damage occurred when victims were alive; the alternative assumption would be that the victims died in an obscure and undetected way and were shot postmortem.¹⁸⁹³⁰ When determining the cause of death, based on the assumption that these gunshots were fired perimortem, Clark concluded that evidence of the bullet passing through the skull, chest or abdominal area would be fatal.¹⁸⁹³¹ In cases where there was evidence that the bullet passed through the limbs, the cause of death could not be established and, in the absence of any other findings, the cause of death was listed as unascertained.¹⁸⁹³²

5548. The Chamber also notes that Lawrence similarly acknowledged that, while in a number of cases the cause of death was determined, in a considerable number of cases the cause of death could not be determined with certainty due to the high degree of decomposition and disarticulation of the bodies.¹⁸⁹³³ In these cases, Lawrence explained, the injuries would be described as probable or possible cause of death.¹⁸⁹³⁴ There were other cases, however, where the bodies were so severely disarticulated that a real cause of death could not be determined.¹⁸⁹³⁵ In these cases, the cause of death was undetermined.¹⁸⁹³⁶

5549. In relation to the manner of death, the Chamber notes that Haglund testified that one would need to look at the gravesite in context when attempting to determine whether the injuries to the bodies were the result of combat operations or of executions.¹⁸⁹³⁷ Haglund explained that if all the bodies found at a gravesite were shot, and the majority had their hands bound, he would conclude that the gunshot injuries were the result of an execution.¹⁸⁹³⁸ Similarly, in graves where a significant number of bodies had blindfolds on, there was an assumption that they were not killed in combat, but were rather executed.¹⁸⁹³⁹

5550. Dunjić criticises the reports prepared by the Prosecution experts and claims they are solely “summary reports” with “cut-and-dried” diagnoses and conclusions, and do not analyse in detail the manner in which injuries were caused.¹⁸⁹⁴⁰ In particular, Dunjić states that the reports reviewed failed to give a detailed description of the observed injuries, and drew “prearranged” conclusions that the injuries were gunshot injuries.¹⁸⁹⁴¹ It was thus impossible for him to establish if the injuries present were indeed gunshot injuries.¹⁸⁹⁴²

5551. Dunjić claims that, “according to forensic doctrine”, the cause of death cannot be established with certainty and precision, and must be given very conditionally.¹⁸⁹⁴³ Similarly, it is very difficult to determine in decomposed and skeletonised bodies whether injuries are antemortem, that is, that they were inflicted when the victims were still alive, or perimortem, that is, that they were inflicted either immediately before or after death.¹⁸⁹⁴⁴ Yet, Prosecution experts all categorically speak of injuries occurring in life, immediately before death.¹⁸⁹⁴⁵

5552. Dunjić challenges the findings in the relevant autopsy reports and states that, except for the cases where it had been established beyond reasonable doubt that the bodies were bound by ligatures, wires, or ropes, the findings in such reports could not allow for one to reach the conclusion that individuals had been victims of execution.¹⁸⁹⁴⁶ According to Dunjić, there were between 400 and 500 bodies found with ligatures in Srebrenica-related gravesites which could be considered as being victims of executions; this is irrespective of the injuries present on those bodies.¹⁸⁹⁴⁷ Further, only a very limited number of bodies presented injuries which would allow for the conclusion that such individuals had been executed; the cause of death for the remainder could be various, including shrapnel and projectiles, which could indicate that the person in question died in combat.¹⁸⁹⁴⁸

5553. Specifically referring to the reports prepared by Clark and Lawrence, Dunjić claims that the conclusions on the cause and manner of death contained therein were drafted on the basis of wrong assumptions.¹⁸⁹⁴⁹ Dunjić explains that both experts adopted the assumption that the injuries on the victims were caused when they were still alive, and thus the victims had died as a result of those particular injuries.¹⁸⁹⁵⁰ These assumptions were, according to Dunjić, also accepted by Baraybar, Haglund, and Wright.¹⁸⁹⁵¹ However, Dunjić claims that in a case of a skull perforation caused by a

The Chamber notes that Manning prepared a chart containing a list of blindfolds and ligatures located between 1996 and 2001, as well as the gravesites from which they were exhumed. Dean Manning, T. 25821–25822 (6 March 2012); P4507 (Chart of photographs of blindfolds, ligatures, and location). Manning’s methodology in creating the chart included physically examining each item, examining documentation for each item, including photographic logs, evidence logs, autopsy reports, and observations by pathologists, crime scene officers, and other experts. Dean Manning, T. 25821 (6 March 2012). Manning explained that some of the blindfolds and ligatures were located only at the time of autopsy and examination of the body, and on occasion by the time the bodies arrived in the mortuary the blindfolds and ligatures had fallen off or become disassociated with the body. Dean Manning, T. 25821–25822 (6 March 2012). shot from a firearm, this can be the cause of death only if it is proven that the person was alive before the injury was inflicted, which can only be done on fresh bodies.¹⁸⁹⁵² Consequently, the experts' characterisation of injuries as perimortem was not properly done.¹⁸⁹⁵³

5554. Dunjić refers to Clark's evidence acknowledging the limitations faced when conducting his examination of remains found at the Kozluk and Glogova gravesites.¹⁸⁹⁵⁴ Similarly, Dunjić refers to Lawrence's evidence acknowledging that in a large number of cases he was not able to determine the cause of death.¹⁸⁹⁵⁵ Dunjić goes even further and claims that Lawrence's findings that postmortem injuries tended to obscure perimortem injuries were absolutely arbitrary, if not actually malicious.¹⁸⁹⁵⁶

5555. The Chamber notes that the advanced state of skeletonisation and putrefaction of the bodies exhumed from Srebrenica-related gravesites presented problems for the Prosecution experts, particularly when determining the cause of death. While the Chamber acknowledges these difficulties, it is satisfied with the methodology followed by the experts in reaching their conclusions, and with the reliability of such conclusions. Further, the Chamber finds Dunjić's evidence on cause of death to show a complete disregard for the evidence on the various Scheduled Killing Incidents, which comes from many witnesses, including survivors and insider witnesses, such as direct perpetrators, and those involved in the burial and reburial of bodies.

5556. In relation to the manner of death, the Accused argues that at minimum 1,000 individuals, but likely many more, died as a result of mines, suicides, or legitimate combat activities after the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁸⁹⁵⁷ Dunjić also claims that, contrary to Clark's findings that for most cases

¹⁸⁹⁵² In putrefied and skeletonised bodies, without soft tissue, such skull perforation is only a possible cause of death given that the person could have died before the injury was inflicted, from many other causes. death cannot be linked to combat, there is a lot of evidence proving the contrary.¹⁸⁹⁵⁸ Dunjić refers to evidence supporting his claim, such as the fact that in a large number of cases the relevant autopsy report indicates extensive injuries characteristic of injuries caused by large projectiles or shells, and to the fact that a large presence of individual injuries on different parts of the body is more indicative of combat.¹⁸⁹⁵⁹ Dunjić also refers to various witness statements to claim that a large number of the Srebrenica victims were members of the ABiH who died as a result of the armed conflict and at numerous sites around Srebrenica.¹⁸⁹⁶⁰

5557. The Chamber notes that it received evidence of wounds caused by shells and shrapnel in connection with the killings at the Kravica Warehouse.¹⁸⁹⁶¹ While Dunjić argues that these injuries could have been the result of combat activities, the Chamber finds that Dunjić looked at the evidence in question in isolation. The examples referred to by Dunjić relate to gravesites which have been associated with the killings at the Kravica Warehouse.¹⁸⁹⁶² The Chamber recalls that it received evidence that a series of hand-grenades were thrown in the warehouse through the windows while the detainees were still inside.¹⁸⁹⁶³ Accordingly, the Chamber rejects the Accused's argument and Dunjić's evidence in this regard.

5558. Thomas Parsons testified as an expert for the Prosecution in this case. Parsons joined the ICMP as director of forensic sciences, in March 2006.¹⁸⁹⁶⁴ The ICMP is an organisation established in 1996 whose mission is to assist governments with locating and identifying individuals who have disappeared during armed conflicts or as a result of human rights violations.¹⁸⁹⁶⁵

5559. As director of forensic sciences, Parsons supervises three main forensic science divisions: the archaeology and anthropology division, the DNA laboratories, and the identification co-ordination division.¹⁸⁹⁶⁶ The archaeology and anthropology division provides technical assistance in the exhumation of mass gravesites, the recovery of human remains, and the anthropological and pathological analysis in mortuary facilities.¹⁸⁹⁶⁷ The DNA laboratories—which have been active since 2001—perform DNA typing from bone or blood samples received from mortuary facilities and from family members of the missing.¹⁸⁹⁶⁸ Finally, the identification co-ordination division oversees the reception of DNA samples and, once the DNA typing is done, matches the samples from family members of the missing and the genetic data from the victims.¹⁸⁹⁶⁹

5560. Parsons explained that once the identification co-ordination division receives samples from mortuary facilities and blood samples from an average of three family members of the missing individual, it enters the data into the ICMP system and assigns each sample a random bar code number, ensuring the anonymity of the sample when it reaches the DNA laboratories; this allows for objective testing.¹⁸⁹⁷⁰ The ICMP maintains a single DNA database within a forensic data management system, comprising of several subprojects from the areas around the world in which it operates.¹⁸⁹⁷¹

5561. Parsons testified that the testing at the ICMP DNA laboratories is conducted in accordance with pre-existing standard operating procedures (“SOPs”), which define the actions and procedures of analysts during DNA testing.¹⁸⁹⁷² This specific process—a well established technology accepted in the scientific community as a standard for forensic diagnosis—involves extracting DNA from the skeletal remains and performing a polymerase chain reaction amplification of the short tandem repeat locus—a particular place on the DNA that is unique to individuals—resulting in the unique DNA profiles that can be used for genetic comparison.¹⁸⁹⁷³ Popović et al.*), T. 20869, 20909–20910; Thomas Parsons, T. 26556–26557 (21 March 2012); P4644 (ICMP Methodology Report on 2001–2008 DNA Process, 15 January 2008), paras. 5–6. The SOPs used are not unique to the ICMP but are widely used by other laboratories internationally. Thomas Parsons, T. 26557 (21 March 2012); Thomas Parsons, P4643 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 20909–20910. The ICMP SOPs have been evolving over the years in order to reflect, inter alia, new models of laboratory equipment, enhanced quality control measures, and validation of new methods. See Thomas Parsons, T. 26556–26557 (21 March 2012); P4637 (ICMP report on DNA testing protocol, 14 February 2011).

5562. As a next step in the process, the laboratories send the testing results to the identification coordination division which then uses software to match the unique DNA profiles from the skeletal remains to the anonymous DNA profiles taken from family members.¹⁸⁹⁷⁴ To obtain a positive match, a minimum of 99.95% certainty is required.¹⁸⁹⁷⁵ A DNA match report is then prepared indicating findings, inter alia, with regard to a DNA match between a human remains sample and a set of family reference DNA profiles, and the location of the gravesite where the human remain sample originated from.¹⁸⁹⁷⁶ In total, almost 15,000 DNA match reports have been processed in relation to Srebrenica.¹⁸⁹⁷⁷

Popović et al.*), T. 20870–20871; P4644 (ICMP Methodology Report on 2001–2008 DNA Process, 15 January 2008), paras. 5–6. Parsons explained that the ICMP previously used an industry standard extraction method where chemical manipulations were performed on bone samples to retrieve relatively pure DNA. Thomas Parsons, T. 26551–26552, 26559 (21 March 2012); Thomas Parsons, P4643 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 20870–20871. Since then, a new extraction method that isolates DNA from degraded skeletal remains resulting in a higher DNA extraction success rate, has been introduced. Thomas Parsons, T. 26551–26552, 26559 (21 March 2012); P4637 (ICMP report on DNA testing protocol, 14 February 2011), pp. 1–2.

The DNA match reports are reviewed by two experts to verify the matches done by the software. See P4644 (ICMP Methodology Report on 2001–2008 DNA Process, 15 January 2008), para. 27.

¹⁸⁹⁷⁷ Thomas Parsons, T. 26611–26613 (22 March 2012). Parsons explained that this number, which is significantly higher than the total number of Srebrenica missing, is the result of the fragmentation of many of the mortal remains, and multiple samples belonging to the same individual being tested. Thomas Parsons, T. 26612–26613 (22 March 2012).

5563. The information identifying an individual from the DNA match reports is then incorporated into the ICMP database which, Parsons explained, includes a subproject relating to the entire war period in BiH.¹⁸⁹⁷⁸ The Chamber notes that from this BiH subproject, a specific list including the name of victims associated with the events surrounding the fall of Srebrenica was created (“Srebrenica List”).¹⁸⁹⁷⁹ The Srebrenica List contains information on the names and dates of birth of victims, protocol IDs (an internal number assigned by the ICMP relating to a DNA match report), case IDs (designated to the sample sent to the ICMP), and ICMP IDs (internally assigned by the ICMP and referring to the reported missing person).¹⁸⁹⁸⁰ The Srebrenica List also contains information regarding the location and date of disappearance of Srebrenica-related missing persons as provided by their families.¹⁸⁹⁸¹ In this regard, Parsons explained that due to the difficulty in obtaining a consistent place of disappearance, based on the differing accounts from multiple family members, only two categories of place of disappearance were recorded, namely: “Potočari”, to refer to men and boys that remained at the DutchBat facility in Potočari and surrounding areas; or “Forest”, indicating that the individual attempted to flee Srebrenica by an overland route.¹⁸⁹⁸²

5564. Parsons further explained that the DNA profiles correspond to individuals who have been identified and named, with the exception of indistinguishable siblings, who are listed twice.¹⁸⁹⁸³ Inconclusively associated cases, referring to cases where siblings have been reported missing, with one associated with Srebrenica and the other from an unrelated event, are also included on the Srebrenica List, as the DNA information received from the family samples will not allow for the distinction between such siblings.¹⁸⁹⁸⁴ Unmatched unique DNA profiles, referring to unidentified individuals but who are uniquely represented by their DNA, are also incorporated into the list.¹⁸⁹⁸⁵

5565. The ICMP database is updated periodically due to the identification and exhumation of new graves.¹⁸⁹⁸⁶ The ICMP has released updates to the Srebrenica List on multiple occasions, including in July 2008 (“July 2008 ICMP List”),¹⁸⁹⁸⁷ December 2010 (“December 2010 ICMP List”),¹⁸⁹⁸⁸ December 2011 (“December 2011 ICMP List”),¹⁸⁹⁸⁹ and January 2012 (“January 2012 ICMP List”).¹⁸⁹⁹⁰

5566. The Chamber recalls that on numerous occasions the Accused challenged the ICMP methodology with regard to the identification of Srebrenica victims through DNA analysis.¹⁸⁹⁹¹ Specifically, the Chamber recalls that the Accused requested that he be provided with the ICMP database, which the ICMP refused to do on the basis that it would take a significant amount of time to obtain consent from the affected families.¹⁸⁹⁹² The Chamber agreed that the Accused should be able to engage his own DNA expert to run DNA identification tests for the purpose of checking the accuracy of the ICMP’s identifications and, if relevant, challenging Parsons’ evidence.¹⁸⁹⁹³ An agreement was then reached between the parties and the ICMP, where 300 cases would be selected from which the ICMP would seek the consent of family members before providing their genetic information to the Accused’s expert.¹⁸⁹⁹⁴ In 2012, upon the refusal of family members in relation to 14 cases, the Accused requested that the Chamber compel the ICMP to make DNA case files available to him irrespective of the lack of such consent.¹⁸⁹⁹⁵ The Chamber denied the request in March 2013 noting, inter alia, that the sample list of 286 cases was sufficiently large for credible testing.¹⁸⁹⁹⁶ Despite having a sizeable number of sample names, the Accused refused the ICMP's offer to test selected cases and filed a motion requesting that the Chamber exclude all the DNA analysis conducted by the ICMP; this motion was denied by the Chamber on 16 April 2013, finding that the Accused would still be able to test the ICMP's results and challenge Parsons' evidence based on the available sample test cases.¹⁸⁹⁹⁷

5567. Despite this, the Accused chose not to present additional expert evidence to the Chamber challenging the ICMP's methodology and/or results.¹⁸⁹⁹⁸ The Chamber notes, however, that during Parsons' and Janc's testimony, the Accused tried to challenge, inter alia, the existence of potential bias by the ICMP due to funding by governmental donors and private foundations, the apparent lack of independent verification and investigation procedures, and portions of the ICMP methodology, including, but not limited to, the integrity of the transfer processes in the samples arriving at the ICMP laboratories.¹⁸⁹⁹⁹

5568. The Chamber finds the ICMP to be a reputable, impartial, and reliable institution. Further, having reviewed Parsons' evidence and the ICMP related exhibits admitted through him, the Chamber is satisfied with the propriety and reliability of the ICMP methodology and the reliability of the DNA analysis conducted under Parsons' supervision.

(D) Demographic evidence

5569. Ewa Tabeau, the Head of the Prosecution's Demographic Unit from 2000 to 2011, testified as an expert for the Prosecution in this case.¹⁹⁰⁰⁰ Tabeau gave evidence on demographics related to three components of the case, namely Municipalities, Sarajevo, and Srebrenica.¹⁹⁰⁰¹ In relation to the Srebrenica component of the case, Tabeau was tasked, inter alia, with using the most reliable sources on missing and identified persons to arrive at a reliable estimate of the total number of people killed or still missing after the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁹⁰⁰² For this purpose, Tabeau, along with Helge Brunborg and Arve Hetland, created a series of lists aimed at cross-referencing and integrating different lists of Srebrenica missing with ICMP lists on DNA identifications; this series of lists was admitted into evidence as P6705 (“2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing”).¹⁹⁰⁰³ As part of the same exercise, Tabeau and her colleagues co-authored a report presenting summary statistics, which was admitted into evidence as P4995 (“Tabeau’s 2009 Report”).¹⁹⁰⁰⁴ The sources and methodology used in producing these documents is explained in detail below.

5570. Tabeau testified that the two main sources used in compiling Tabeau’s 2009 Report and the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing include, first, selected ICRC data pertaining to missing persons, as found in a list of missing persons compiled in 2005 by the Prosecution and, second, an update to the Srebrenica List released by the ICMP in November 2008 (“November 2008 ICMP List”).¹⁹⁰⁰⁵

The under seal version of P6705 is P4996 (Ewa Tabeau’s expert report entitled “Srebrenica Missing: Persons Reported Missing and Dead after the Take-Over of the Srebrenica Enclave by the Bosnian Serb Army on 11 July 1995”, 9 April 2009) (under seal). ¹⁹⁰⁰⁴ See P4995 (Ewa Tabeau’s expert report entitled “The 2009 Integrated Report on Srebrenica Missing Including a Progress Report on DNA-based Identification”, 9 April 2009).

¹⁹⁰⁰⁵ Ewa Tabeau, T. 28232–23233 (1 May 2012). The Chamber notes that the November 2008 ICMP List, which has not been admitted into evidence in this case, is an update to the July 2008 ICMP List referred to above. See P4995 (Ewa Tabeau’s expert report entitled “The 2009 Integrated Report on Srebrenica Missing Including a Progress Report on DNA-based Identification”, 9 April 2009) pp. 46, 64–66. See also para. 5565. Tabeau explained that the November 2008 ICMP List was consulted and used as it was the latest update at the time of preparing Tabeau’s 2009 Report and the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing. Ewa Tabeau, T. 28233 (1 May 2012). Other sources utilised during the preparation of Tabeau’s 2009 Report and the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing include the 1991 Population Census for BiH, the BiH Voters Registers of 1997, 1998, and 2000, and documents pertaining to the official registration of internally displaced persons and refugees in BiH as of 2000. P4995 (Ewa Tabeau’s expert report entitled “The 2009 Integrated Report on Srebrenica Missing Including a Progress Report on DNA-based Identification”, 9 April 2009), pp. 2, 5; Ewa Tabeau, T. 28233–28234 (1 May 2012). The Chamber notes Pašalić’s challenge on the validity and reliability of the data used by the Prosecution experts in their method of data matching and, more specifically, on the methodology used in Tabeau’s 2009 Report. D3125 (Stevo Pašalić’s expert report entitled “Ethnic Composition, Displaced Persons and Refugees from 27 Municipalities in the Territory of BiH, 1991–1997”, August 2012), pp. 18–20, 105–112; Stevo Pašalić, T. 35359–35363 (13 March 2013), T. 35451–35454, 35466–35467 (14 March 2013). However, the Chamber finds Pašalić’s evidence unfounded due to his inability to properly differentiate between the “primary” sources he used and the apparent supplementary nature of the sources consulted by Tabeau and her colleagues, as well as his unsubstantiated argument that Tabeau relied on “imaginary forms and calculations”. The Chamber is therefore satisfied with the methodology utilised by Tabeau and her colleagues in arriving at a reliable estimate of the total number of people killed or still missing after the fall of Srebrenica. See generally P4995 (Ewa Tabeau’s expert report entitled “The 2009 Integrated Report on Srebrenica Missing Including a Progress Report on DNA-based Identification”, 9 April 2009).

The Chamber has explained in detail above how the ICMP lists are created.¹⁹⁰⁰⁶ This applies as well to the November 2008 ICMP List.

5571. In relation to the list of missing persons compiled by the Prosecution, Tabeau explained that the ICRC started collecting tracing requests for missing persons throughout the war in BiH and during its aftermath.¹⁹⁰⁰⁷ The ICRC thus collected data relating to the surname, first name, father's name, sex, date and place of birth, and date and place of disappearance for each individual reported as missing, as obtained from the missing person's close relatives.¹⁹⁰⁰⁸ As a result of this exercise, the ICRC published various volumes of lists of missing persons for the whole war in BiH.¹⁹⁰⁰⁹ Tabeau explained that the Prosecution created its own list of missing persons for Srebrenica based on one of the ICRC volumes, by excluding records of persons reported missing throughout the war in relation to events unconnected to the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁹⁰¹⁰ In relation to the data provided for the date and place of disappearance of missing persons, Tabeau explained that the date of disappearance was not necessarily the date the individual may have been killed, but when he was last seen alive, with records of a reported disappearance between 1 July and 31 August 1995 being deemed the most relevant in the circumstances.¹⁹⁰¹¹ The place of disappearance referred to the place the individual was last seen alive.¹⁹⁰¹² The Chamber notes that the information in the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing with respect to the place of disappearance of victims does not correspond to the information in the ICMP's Srebrenica List, which only refers to the two ¹⁹⁰⁰⁹ P4995 (Ewa Tabeau's expert report entitled "The 2009 Integrated Report on Srebrenica Missing Including a Progress Report on DNA-based Identification", 9 April 2009), p. 37.

¹⁹⁰¹⁰ Ewa Tabeau, T. 28239 (1 May 2012). The relevant records pertaining to the victims of the fall of Srebrenica were extracted from the general ICRC list by using, first, the place criterion, which refers to the area of Srebrenica municipality and surrounding municipalities, and, second, the time criterion, which refers to the persons who went missing from July to December 1995. Ewa Tabeau, T. 28239 (1 May 2012). Tabeau and her colleagues used a 2005 version of the ICRC list when compiling the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing. P4995 (Ewa Tabeau's expert report entitled "The 2009 Integrated Report on Srebrenica Missing Including a Progress Report on DNA-based Identification", 9 April 2009), p. 37.

designated locations of “Potočari” and “Forest”. Given that the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing actually aim at providing precise information as to where Srebrenica victims were last seen, this, in the Chamber’s view, makes them more probative than the general method used by the ICMP in compiling the corresponding information in the Srebrenica List.

5572. In relation to the methodology followed, Tabeau explained that the list of Srebrenica missing persons compiled by the Prosecution and the November 2008 ICMP List were cross-referenced as two independent sources—a method known as record linkage—to determine the number of individuals reported missing who were later found in Srebrenica-related gravesites, and thus identified as individuals who died during the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁹⁰¹³ This exercise first resulted in the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing, a series of lists containing information from both the Prosecution’s list of missing and the ICMP.¹⁹⁰¹⁴ Tabeau and her colleagues then proceeded to draft Tabeau’s 2009 Report detailing the methodology and results of the exercise conducted when compiling the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing.¹⁹⁰¹⁵ This document reported, inter alia, on the overlap between ICMP and Prosecution lists confirming the number of Srebrenica-related victims.¹⁹⁰¹⁶ The Chamber notes that, according to Tabeau’s 2009 Report, the 2009 total of Srebrenica missing and dead amounted to 7,905 persons.¹⁹⁰¹⁷

5573. In 2012, Tabeau prepared a report incorporating the January 2012 ICMP List with information on Srebrenica victims listed on the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing (“Tabeau’s 2012 Report”).¹⁹⁰¹⁸ Tabeau’s 2012 Report was created with the aim of identifying the number of additional victims identified by the ICMP since Tabeau’s 2009 Report and how these new identifications overlapped with the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing.¹⁹⁰¹⁹ Tabeau's 2012 Report concluded that the total number of missing from the fall of Srebrenica is also totalled at 7,905 persons.¹⁹⁰²⁰

5574. The Chamber notes Dunjić's challenge that certain victims listed as missing or dead after the fall of Srebrenica on the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing appear to have been ABiH soldiers and military personnel killed between 1992 and July 1995.¹⁹⁰²¹ Dunjić specifically refers to a document containing information on the date of death of 142 victims, which is inconsistent with the corresponding information in the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing; according to Dunjić, while these 142 individuals are included in the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing and their remains were identified from various Srebrenica-related gravesites, they were actually killed prior to the fall of Srebrenica, between 1992 and July 1995.¹⁹⁰²²

5575. The Chamber notes that while Dunjić stated in his report that the above document was attached thereto,¹⁹⁰²³ it was neither attached to the report nor tendered as a separate exhibit. However, the Chamber understands the above document to be the one included in pages 7 to 10 of D3815 (hereinafter "so-called ABiH List").¹⁹⁰²⁴ The Prosecution, having obtained the so-called

The total of 7,905 individuals identified as Srebrenica-related missing was calculated by taking the 7,905 identified individuals from the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing and adding 103 new cases from the January 2012 ICMP List, and then deducting 103 cases which were not associated with Srebrenica but with Žepa. See Ewa Tabeau, T. 28257–28258 (1 May 2012); P5004 (Ewa Tabeau's report describing integration of new 2012 ICMP update to 2009 list of Srebrenica Missing persons), p. 4.

ABiH List from the BiH Ministry of Defence in 2001, made a request for assistance to the BiH Ministry of Defence in June 2004 regarding the circumstances of the death or disappearance of the 142 individuals listed in the so-called ABiH List—requesting, inter alia, further confirmation of their date of death—and the BiH Ministry of Defence responded to the request in August 2004.¹⁹⁰²⁵

5576. Dunjić testified that the names of 88 of the above 142 individuals were actually ABiH soldiers or military personnel killed between 1992 and July 1995.¹⁹⁰²⁶ Further, the Accused tendered two additional exhibits, D2217 and D3812, which are compilations of parts of the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing, the 2008 ICMP List, and the so-called ABiH List, with apparent discrepancies as to the date of disappearance for a number of individuals included as Srebrenica-related victims in the report prepared by Janc for this case.¹⁹⁰²⁷

5577. However, neither Dunjić, even upon the Chamber’s specific inquiry, nor any other Defence witness, provided an explanation as to the provenance, authenticity, or accuracy of the so-called ABiH List, D2217, or D3812.¹⁹⁰²⁸ Dunjić further acknowledged that he had not independently verified the data in those documents.¹⁹⁰²⁹ The Chamber therefore is not satisfied with the authenticity or veracity of either the so-called ABiH List or D2217 and D3812, and thus cannot rely on those documents. Further and more importantly, according to the BiH Ministry of Defence, contrary to the information on the so-called ABiH List, 135 of the 142 individuals listed therein indeed died or went missing after the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁹⁰³⁰ This corresponds with the information in the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing. In conclusion, the Chamber is not persuaded by Dunjić’s arguments in this respect.

Missing and in creating Tabeau's 2009 Report and Tabeau's 2012 Report. Specifically regarding the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing, the Chamber has taken into consideration the difficulties faced by the ICRC when obtaining data on the missing,¹⁹⁰³¹ and accepts the fact that, due to a number of circumstances, including human error on the part of family members when providing information to the ICRC, a few mistakes on the list would be inevitable. Nevertheless, the Chamber finds no reason not to rely on the information contained in the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing, and has used the information therein—taking into consideration the fact that it cannot be considered as completely accurate—when analysing and weighing conflicting forensic evidence before it in relation to each of the various Scheduled Killing Incidents.

(E) Dean Manning

5579. Dean Manning, a former investigator for the Prosecution, testified before the Chamber.¹⁹⁰³² The Chamber admitted reports prepared by Manning, as will be discussed below.

5580. While working for the Prosecution from 1996 to 2001, Manning was tasked with coordinating the activities of the investigation, exhumation, and autopsy teams working on the Srebrenica sites, and with providing assistance to the various experts on each team.¹⁹⁰³³ As part of these efforts, Manning visited gravesites, in some cases while the exhumation process was ongoing; examined physical evidence obtained from the exhumation process; assisted experts in preparing their respective reports; summarised the work produced by the respective teams; and presented this evidence in proceedings before the Tribunal.¹⁹⁰³⁴ Manning wrote one report in 2000, one in 2001, and one in 2003, which were admitted into evidence as P4502, P4503, and P4504, respectively.¹⁹⁰³⁵ These reports summarise the findings of the experts engaged by the Prosecution during the forensic programme in Srebrenica, and include details of Manning’s own examination of the sites he visited, as well as of the artefacts recovered from the exhumation process.¹⁹⁰³⁶

5581. In his reports, Manning also calculated the Minimum Number of Individuals (“MNI”) located in the Srebrenica-related gravesites, through the anthropological examination of specific bones conducted by the experts.¹⁹⁰³⁷ When trying to determine the number of individuals buried in the Srebrenica-related graves, experts realised that it was not possible to calculate the exact figure, due to the degree of disarticulation of the remains.¹⁹⁰³⁸ When bodies are not complete, a body count will not be adequate to determine the exact number of victims buried in each gravesite, and a conservative number needs to be calculated instead.¹⁹⁰³⁹ This conservative number is reached by counting the most widely present type of bone throughout the gravesite which can be either a bone, part of a bone, or one of a pair of body parts.¹⁹⁰⁴⁰ Thus, when reporting on the forensic evidence from Srebrenica-related gravesites, Manning calculated that the MNI with respect to all exhumations conducted between 1996 and 2001 was 2570.¹⁹⁰⁴¹

See also Jose Baraybar, P4029 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Krstić, T. 3795, 3803–3804. The MNI is calculated per gravesite, so taking into account the separate examination of each gravesite, the overall total MNI would be inflated, as the calculation would not take into account the overlap between remains of individuals found in both primary and secondary gravesites. P4037 (Jose Baraybar’s expert report entitled “Calculation of the Minimal Number of Individuals Exhumed by the ICTY between 1996 and 2001”, 4 January 2004), pp. 5–7; Jose Baraybar, T. 22350–22351 (2 December 2011). 5582. Using the anthropological calculation of the MNI as the initial phase to determine a preliminary number of individuals, experts then moved to DNA testing to corroborate such findings.¹⁹⁰⁴² In 2005, Manning was tasked with producing two reports summarising the DNA-related findings of the BiHCMP and ICMP in relation to Srebrenica-related gravesites.¹⁹⁰⁴³ Manning examined the records of ICMP exhumations and DNA analysis of identified individuals in order to collate them with primary and secondary Srebrenica-related gravesites.¹⁹⁰⁴⁴

5583. Dušan Janc, a former investigator for the Prosecution, also testified before the Chamber.¹⁹⁰⁴⁵ In 2006, Janc took over the DNA-related work initiated by Manning, and started updating the reports prepared by Manning while also preparing his own reports.¹⁹⁰⁴⁶ Based on this exercise, Janc prepared a report in 2012 summarising evidence related to the investigation of the Srebrenica-related gravesites, including DNA and other analysis of the human remains found therein, which was admitted into evidence as P4772 (“Janc’s Report”).¹⁹⁰⁴⁷

5584. The main source of Janc’s Report was the December 2010 ICMP List, as well as other documentary evidence obtained from the BiH authorities and the ICMP.¹⁹⁰⁴⁸ More specifically,

Janc compiled records provided by the ICMP, the ICRC, the BiHCMP and later the BiHIMP,¹⁹⁰⁴⁹ and other local authorities in BiH, as well as previous reports from Prosecution experts, to create a list of all individuals recovered and identified from gravesites associated with the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁹⁰⁵⁰

5585. The primary section of Janc's Report is a table summarising the total number of Srebrenica-related victims who have been exhumed and identified, and who have been associated with each individual primary or secondary gravesite.¹⁹⁰⁵¹ The report also includes four annexes: Annex A contains a summary of relevant findings for each of the exhumed gravesites determined to be connected to the fall of Srebrenica, including information on the exhumation process, the numbers of identified individuals, and the results of the autopsies conducted on those individuals;¹⁹⁰⁵² Annex B details the number of identified surface remains found in and around Srebrenica;¹⁹⁰⁵³ Annex C details the number of DNA connections between disturbed "primary/primary" and "secondary/secondary" gravesites, and includes diagrams showing some of those connections;¹⁹⁰⁵⁴ finally, Annex D contains the names of each of the individuals identified in the December 2010 ICMP List, grouped as per the individual Srebrenica-related gravesite where the specific remains were found.¹⁹⁰⁵⁵

5586. Janc cross-checked the December 2010 ICMP List with the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing, in order to ensure that each individual identified by the ICMP matched with a person reported missing following the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁹⁰⁵⁶ To compile his report, Janc also referenced information provided to him by the ICMP on DNA profiles extracted from remains found at various gravesites, but which have not yet been matched with a missing person.¹⁹⁰⁵⁷ This group includes 260 unidentified individuals, which Janc included in his report because they were found in graves shown to be connected to the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁹⁰⁵⁸ In addition, Janc included data of 35 individuals identified as missing following the fall of Srebrenica by Physicians for Human Rights and the ICRC, before the ICMP began its DNA identification process in 2001.¹⁹⁰⁵⁹

5587. Janc compiled his report by separating all entries in the December 2010 ICMP List into separate spreadsheets organised by case ID, ensuring that every spreadsheet referred to only one gravesite or location.¹⁹⁰⁶⁰ When calculating the number of individuals per gravesite, Janc counted only the “main cases” representing unique DNA profiles, excluding all “re-association” cases to ensure that each individual was counted only once, even when multiple body parts of one individual were collected from one or more gravesites.¹⁹⁰⁶¹ Janc repeated this process for all 14,303 entries in the December 2010 ICMP List, as well as the unidentified entries provided by the

ICMP.¹⁹⁰⁶² The resulting data is summarised by gravesite in Annex A of Janc's Report, which includes the total number of individuals found in each gravesite, as well as in Annex D, which lists each individual found in each gravesite by name, listing every individual only once.¹⁹⁰⁶³

5588. In addition, Janc analysed the ICMP data to establish DNA connections between gravesites.¹⁹⁰⁶⁴ To do so, he sorted the ICMP data by its protocol ID; when one protocol ID appeared at different sites, this meant that body parts from the same individual were found in multiple locations.¹⁹⁰⁶⁵ When an individual's DNA profile was found in more than one gravesite, Janc counted a "connection" between the gravesites.¹⁹⁰⁶⁶ Janc used these DNA connections between primary gravesites and secondary gravesites to establish a link between each of these gravesites and a Scheduled Killing Incident.¹⁹⁰⁶⁷

5589. Through this process, Janc arrived at 5,977 as the total number of individuals identified in Srebrenica-related gravesites as of January 2012.¹⁹⁰⁶⁸ Janc also arrived at the total number of individuals identified per execution site, by adding the number of individuals identified in the relevant primary and corresponding secondary gravesites linked to each site.¹⁹⁰⁶⁹

5590. The Chamber notes that the Prosecution has relied on Janc's Report in determining the number of Srebrenica victims found in each gravesite and the number of individuals killed at most of the individual Scheduled Killing Incidents charged in the Indictment. The Chamber also notes that there is significant overlap between the 5,977 individuals included in Janc's Report as

Janc clarified that, even if more than one body part from the same person was distributed between two different gravesites, this was still counted as one "connection." Dušan Janc, T. 26964 (27 March 2012). According to Janc, these connections between different sites mean that bodies or body parts were disposed in multiple locations, and provide a clear indication of which gravesites are interconnected. identified in Srebrenica-related gravesites, and the 5,115 individuals¹⁹⁰⁷⁰ found by the Chamber to have been killed in the specific circumstances alleged in Schedule E of the Indictment.¹⁹⁰⁷¹

5591. The Accused claims that Janc's task was to corroborate what was already known to the Prosecution and that he manipulated the evidence received from the ICMP to adjust his findings.¹⁹⁰⁷² By considering that all exhumed bodies were victims of execution, Janc approached his investigation backwards and, when facts got in his way, he simply excluded them.¹⁹⁰⁷³

5592. Similarly, Dunjić challenges various portions of Janc's Report. The Chamber notes in this regard that Dunjić comments upon, and refers to, an earlier version of Janc's Report, dated 13 March 2009—and not admitted into evidence in the present case—as well as D1975, a corrigendum prepared by Janc to that report.¹⁹⁰⁷⁴ For purposes of this section, given that most, if not all, of Dunjić's challenges can be applied to Janc's Report, the Chamber will consider them in its analysis of this latter document.

5593. The Chamber understands the main challenge to Janc's evidence to be the assertion that the Srebrenica-related gravesites are mixed gravesites containing bodies of victims of execution of the various Scheduled Killing Incidents, as well as bodies of individuals who died prior to the fall of Srebrenica and/or as a result of combat activities. In addition to the Chamber's considerations on this issue discussed above, the Chamber will refer below to some of the main arguments raised by the Accused and Dunjić on this point.

5594. Dunjić uses the information in D1975 to conclude that at particular sites connected with Srebrenica, there were also remains of individuals who were killed in various circumstances

¹⁹⁰⁷⁰ See para. 5519.

¹⁹⁰⁷² Defence Final Brief, para. 2622. See Dušan Janc, T. 27007–27010 (27 March 2012). According to the Accused, Janc did not consider burials of casualties from combat activities, different dates of burials, and other discrepancies. See Defence Final Brief, paras. 2623–2624.

unconnected to the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁹⁰⁷⁵ Similarly, referring to Janc's findings with respect to the Blječeva and Glogova gravesites, the Accused argues that it is undisputed that there were mixed graves in which remains not connected to the Srebrenica events were buried together with the remains of people reported missing after the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁹⁰⁷⁶ The Chamber accepts the existence of a number of mixed gravesites connected to the Scheduled Killing Incidents. However, such evidence before the Chamber is limited to the Blječeva 1 and the Glogova gravesites. The Chamber has discussed in detail the implications of D1975 in its section of the Judgement related to the killings at the Kravica Warehouse, and will not repeat its findings here.¹⁹⁰⁷⁷

5595. According to the Accused, the DNA connections in Janc's Report only relate to less than 10% of the remains found in secondary gravesites.¹⁹⁰⁷⁸ The remainder of the bodies have not been associated with Srebrenica-related execution sites and thus must result from other events at other times.¹⁹⁰⁷⁹ He therefore claims that sites which were labelled as secondary gravesites were indeed gravesites in the vicinity of the confrontation line where casualties had been buried.¹⁹⁰⁸⁰ Supporting this theory, Dunjić adds that it is impossible to extrapolate on the basis of DNA analysis that all the bodies from the secondary gravesites originate from the primary gravesites with which a DNA connection has been established.¹⁹⁰⁸¹ According to Dunjić, these connections only related to a significantly smaller number of bodies found in the secondary gravesites which are linked to the executions at the Kravica Warehouse, the field near Orahovac, the dam near Petkovci, Kozluk, or the Branjevo Military Farm, and not the much larger number provided by Janc.¹⁹⁰⁸² In other words, the Accused and Dunjić claim that the only reasonable conclusion is that, for more than 90% of the remains for which DNA connections have not been established, the so-called secondary gravesites were indeed primary gravesites where individuals who died in combat were buried for the first time.¹⁹⁰⁸³

5596. To challenge Janc's Report, Dunjić refers to the same arguments raised when objecting to the forensic and demographic evidence. Referring back to the arguments used in his challenge to the 2009 Srebrenica Lists of Missing, discussed above, Dunjić claims that some of the individuals identified from various Srebrenica-related gravesites are also listed in other documents as having died prior to the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁹⁰⁸⁴ However, as discussed above, the Chamber is not satisfied with the authenticity or veracity of the documents which formed the basis for Dunjić's argument, i.e., the so-called ABiH List, D2217, or D3812, and is thus not persuaded by Dunjić's argument in this respect.¹⁹⁰⁸⁵

5597. Dunjić also claims that finding parts of a single body in two different locations would indicate that a particular person died and the body putrefied, and then due to external conditions the body parts were separated.¹⁹⁰⁸⁶ In this case, Dunjić claims, it is likely that the body was separated before burial and thus the two gravesites where the remains were found ought to be considered primary gravesites with respect to the specific body parts found in each of them.¹⁹⁰⁸⁷ However, the Chamber does not accept Dunjić's theories with respect to the existence of body parts of a same individual within two or more gravesites; his theories simply ignore the extensive evidence before

¹⁹⁰⁸⁶ Dušan Dunjić, T. 41749 (22 July 2013). the Chamber on the reburial operation which was conducted between September and October 1995. The fact that Dunjić was so quick to craft such theoretical conclusions while wilfully ignoring evidence to the contrary is a serious stain on his credibility as an expert. Further, based on the anthropological, forensic, and witness evidence on burials and reburials of bodies, the Chamber is satisfied, subject to its findings in relation to the Glogova and Blječeva gravesites as referred to above, that there was no enrichment of Srebrenica-related gravesites.

5598. Referring more specifically to the findings in Annex B of Janc's Report on surface remains, the Accused argues that at a minimum, the 1,000 individuals counted by Janc must be subtracted from the total of 4,000 individuals which, in his view, may be considered as unaccounted for after the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁹⁰⁸⁸ The Accused adds that, while some of these remains have been subtracted from the total list of victims in Janc's Report, Janc's total is still not entirely correct, given that there is evidence showing that victims who died in artillery attacks, as well as some of those who died in combat but who were buried during the sanitation process, were also included in Janc's total count.¹⁹⁰⁸⁹ The Chamber recalls that Annex B of Janc's Report explains that out of a total of 982 surface remains cases, 702 have been identified as Srebrenica-related individuals.¹⁹⁰⁹⁰ However, these numbers have not been included in the total number of Srebrenica-related victims provided by Janc.¹⁹⁰⁹¹

5599. Having analysed Janc's evidence in its entirety, the Chamber is satisfied with the methodology he followed in reaching his conclusions, and with the reliability of such conclusions. In this regard, the Chamber recalls that it received other forensic evidence, in addition to the DNA connections between Srebrenica-related primary and secondary gravesites, pointing to additional links between the gravesites. Furthermore, the accepted evidence from many witnesses, including survivors and insiders—such as direct perpetrators, those guarding the detainees, and those involved in the burial and reburial of bodies—as to the circumstances surrounding the Scheduled Killing Incidents, corroborates and supports Janc's Report. For all these reasons, the Chamber is satisfied that there is no evidence that primary or secondary gravesites were enriched and therefore considers that all the bodies found in Srebrenica-related primary and secondary gravesites can be linked to the corresponding Scheduled Killing Incidents.

2. Legal findings on crimes

a. Chapeau requirements for Articles 3 and 5 of the Statute 5600. In the Srebrenica component of the case, in addition to a count of genocide under Article 4 of the Statute, the Accused is charged with a count of violations of the laws or customs of war under Article 3 of the Statute, namely murder, as well as five counts of crimes against humanity under Article 5 of the Statute, namely persecution, murder, extermination, deportation, and forcible transfer as an inhumane act.¹⁹⁰⁹² The Prosecution alleges that there was a state of armed conflict at all times relevant to the Indictment.¹⁹⁰⁹³ It further alleges that all acts and omissions charged as crimes against humanity, except those that formed part of the sniping and shelling campaign in Sarajevo, were part of a widespread or systematic attack directed against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH.¹⁹⁰⁹⁴

i. Article 3 of the Statute

5601. The Chamber found that there was an armed conflict throughout the period relevant to the crimes alleged in the Indictment. At the time of the events charged in the Srebrenica component of the case, namely July 1995, the armed conflict was still ongoing; it officially ended with the signing of the Dayton Agreement on 14 December 1995.¹⁹⁰⁹⁵

5602. For murder charged under Article 3 of the Statute, the Chamber has examined whether it was closely related to the armed conflict and made such findings where relevant in this Judgement.¹⁹⁰⁹⁶

5603. In relation to the four so called “Tadić Conditions”, the Chamber refers to the applicable law sections of this Judgement, which expanded on the legal basis for each of the crimes charged in the Indictment under Article 3 of the Statute.¹⁹⁰⁹⁷ In relation to murder, the prohibition stems from Common Article 3 which is deemed to be part of customary international law.¹⁹⁰⁹⁸ Further, the Appeals Chamber has confirmed that violations of the provisions of Common Article 3 entail individual criminal responsibility.¹⁹⁰⁹⁹ The Chamber is therefore satisfied that the four Tadić Conditions are met, and consequently that the chapeau requirements for Article 3 of the Statute are fulfilled, in relation to murder.

ii. Article 5 of the Statute

5604. As found above, there was an armed conflict in BiH throughout the period of the Indictment. The Chamber also found that there existed a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH at all times relevant to the crimes charged in the Indictment. As reflected below, the Chamber is also satisfied that the crimes upon which the Chamber has entered findings formed part of that attack and that the perpetrators knew of the attack and that the crimes were part of it.¹⁹¹⁰⁰

5605. As elaborated earlier in this Judgement, Bosnian Serb Forces attacked Srebrenica on 6 July 1995 and succeeded in taking it over by 11 July.¹⁹¹⁰¹ Following the take-over of the enclave, between 11 and 13 July 1995, up to 30,000 Bosnian Muslim women and children, as well as some elderly men, were forcibly displaced from inside the Srebrenica enclave to Bosnian Muslim-held territory.¹⁹¹⁰² The Chamber further found that at least 5,115 Bosnian Muslim males were killed by Bosnian Serb Forces in the weeks following the fall of Srebrenica on 11 July 1995.¹⁹¹⁰³ The Chamber is satisfied that the co-ordinated actions of the Bosnian Serb Forces in a short period of time in various locations in Srebrenica, Bratunac, and Zvornik, as well as the sheer number of Bosnian Muslims killed and forcibly displaced establish both the systematic and widespread aspects of this part of the attack.

5606. The Chamber is therefore satisfied that the chapeau requirements for the crimes charged under Article 5 of the Statute are met.

b. Crimes

i. Murder: Counts 5 and 6

(A) Killing incidents

5607. The Chamber found in Section IV.C.1 above that at least 5,115 Bosnian Muslim males were killed by Bosnian Serb Forces in the weeks following the fall of Srebrenica on 11 July 1995.¹⁹¹⁰⁴ The Chamber also recalls that it did not have sufficient evidence to make a finding beyond reasonable doubt that the incident relating to the killing on 13 July 1995 of 150 Bosnian Muslim men in an area along a dirt road in the Cerska Valley took place, as alleged in the Indictment.¹⁹¹⁰⁵

(B) Intent of perpetrators

5608. The Chamber also recalls its findings that the death of the victims for each of the incidents identified above was a result of the acts of Bosnian Serb Forces. The Chamber finds that the perpetrators of each of these incidents acted with the intent to kill the victims or at least wilfully caused serious bodily harm, which they should reasonably have known might lead to death.

5609. In reaching that conclusion, the Chamber had regard to the circumstances and the manner in which the victims were killed. In all cases, the Chamber found that the victims were deliberately shot.¹⁹¹⁰⁶ The Chamber also found that many of the victims presented multiple gunshot injuries.¹⁹¹⁰⁷ Further, the Chamber found that, in many instances, the victims were taken to remote locations in a systematic and organised way, and then executed.¹⁹¹⁰⁸

(C) Status of victims

5610. The Chamber also finds that the victims of each of these incidents were civilians or had been rendered hors de combat at the time of their killing. Some of the victims were as young as eight or as old as 85.¹⁹¹⁰⁹ Some were killed after being captured by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces;¹⁹¹¹⁰ some were killed while trying to escape from members of the Bosnian Serb Forces;¹⁹¹¹¹ and some were killed after being detained by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces.¹⁹¹¹²

(D) Conclusion

5611. The Chamber found that there was an armed conflict in BiH throughout the period relevant to the Indictment. As demonstrated by the Chamber's factual findings explained above, the Chamber finds that the killings referred to in this section were closely related to that armed conflict and thus constitute murder as a violation of the laws or customs of war.

5612. The Chamber also found that there was a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat populations of BiH. The Chamber finds that the killings referred to above were part of this widespread and systematic attack and the perpetrators of these killings knew of the attack and that their crimes were part of it. In reaching that conclusion, the Chamber considered the locations, time period, and the identity of the victims of these killings, which correspond with the scope of the widespread and systematic attack, as well as the magnitude of the attack on the Bosnian Muslim population of BiH, which had been ongoing for more than three years prior to the events charged in the Srebrenica component of the case. The Chamber therefore finds that these killings thus constitute murder as a crime against humanity.

ii. Extermination: Count 4

5613. Earlier in this Judgement, the Chamber recalled that there is no minimum threshold of victims for the purposes of extermination; it still has to be satisfied that the killings occurred on a mass scale and needs to conduct a case-by-case assessment in that regard.¹⁹¹¹³

5614. Further, as previously noted, extermination may be established based on the accumulation of separate incidents.¹⁹¹¹⁴ However, it has been found that “as a general matter, the element of killing on a large scale cannot be satisfied by a collective consideration of distinct events committed in different prefectures, in different circumstances, by different perpetrators, and over an extended period of time”.¹⁹¹¹⁵

5615. Based on its factual findings above, the Chamber notes that each of the killing incidents identified above was committed by Bosnian Serb Forces in the context of the events surrounding the fall of Srebrenica in July 1995. The overwhelming majority of the killings were committed within a few days in Potočari, and in the Bratunac and Zvornik areas. Further, the manner and circumstances in which the killings occurred—including the same violence with which they were committed and the identity of the perpetrators as members of the Bosnian Serb Forces—demonstrate that they formed part of the same widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica. The Chamber also found that all the victims were Bosnian Muslims from Srebrenica.¹⁹¹¹⁶

5616. With regard to the killings which took place in other locations in the days following 17 July, the Chamber found that, while the killings at Snagovo and Bišina took place a number of days after the rest of the killing incidents, they were nevertheless connected to the Srebrenica operation, as they were also committed against Bosnian Muslim males from Srebrenica captured following the take-over of the enclave.¹⁹¹¹⁷ In relation to the killings at Trnovo, the Chamber notes that it was unable to precisely determine the date when they took place. The Chamber also notes the geographic distance between Trnovo and Srebrenica. Nevertheless, the Chamber recalls that the killings were committed by members of the Scorpions unit which had been deployed as part of the joint VRS and MUP forces operating on the Sarajevo front, and which was involved in transporting multiple groups of Bosnian Muslim males who had been detained in Srebrenica after the take-over, including the six men who were ultimately killed.¹⁹¹¹⁸ Consequently, the Chamber finds that the killings at Trnovo were also connected to the Srebrenica operation.

5617. The Chamber finds that at least 5,115 Bosnian Muslims were killed in Srebrenica between 12 July and early August 1995 and that this satisfies the mass scale element of the killings for the purposes of extermination.

5618. The Chamber also notes that a number of the killing incidents referred to above independently reach the level of massiveness required for the purpose of extermination as a crime against humanity. This is the case for instance with respect to the following killing incidents: (i) Kravica Warehouse; (ii) Orahovac School and Field near Orahovac; (iii) Petkovci School and Dam near Petkovci; (iv) Ročević School and Drina River near Kozluk; and (v) Kula School, Branjevo Military Farm, and Pilica Cultural Centre.

5619. The Chamber found above that the perpetrators of each of the killing incidents above acted with the intent to kill the victims or at least wilfully caused serious bodily harm, which they should reasonably have known might lead to death. Having regard to the scale of the killings and the organised manner in which they occurred, the Chamber further finds that with respect to the killing incidents in the previous paragraphs, there was the intention to kill on a mass scale.

5620. The Chamber also found that there was a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat populations of BiH. The Chamber finds that the killings referred to above were part of this widespread and systematic attack and the perpetrators of these killings knew of the attack and that their crimes were part of it. In reaching that conclusion, the Chamber considered the locations, time period, and the identity of the victims of these killings, which correspond with the scope of the widespread and systematic attack, as well as the magnitude of the attack on the Bosnian Muslim population of BiH, which had been ongoing for more than three years prior to the events charged in the Srebrenica component of the case. The Chamber therefore finds that these killings constitute extermination as a crime against humanity.

¹⁹¹¹⁸ Trnovo, Scheduled Incident E.13.1.

5621. The Chamber will deal with the issue of cumulative convictions later in this Judgement and, if relevant, the impermissibility of entering convictions for both extermination and murder under Article 5 of the Statute where the elements of both crimes have been established.¹⁹¹¹⁹

iii. *Inhumane acts (forcible transfer): Count 8*¹⁹¹²⁰

5622. The Prosecution contends that acts of forcible transfer were carried out by Bosnian Serb Forces as part of the objective to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica.¹⁹¹²¹ The Accused concedes that a large number of Bosnian Muslims from Srebrenica were transported from Potočari to Bosnian Muslim-held territory, but contends that this event did not constitute the crime of forcible transfer.¹⁹¹²² The Chamber will address his arguments below where relevant.

(1) Movement of population

5623. The Chamber recalls its findings in Section IV.C.1 of this Judgement that between 11 and 13 July, up to 30,000 Bosnian Muslim women and children, as well as some elderly men, from Srebrenica, were displaced from inside the Srebrenica enclave to Bosnian Muslim-held territory.¹⁹¹²³ The Chamber therefore finds that, having been lawfully present in Srebrenica, these Bosnian Muslim women and children, as well as some elderly men, were displaced within the national boundaries of BiH.

(2) Forcible nature of movement

5624. The Chamber has found that Directive 7, which was issued on 8 March 1995, ordered the Drina Corps to “create an unbearable situation of total insecurity with no hope of further survival or life for the inhabitants of Srebrenica and Žepa”.¹⁹¹²⁴ Between that date and the eventual commencement of the attack on the enclave on 6 July 1995, the inhabitants of Srebrenica suffered months of deprivation of basic necessities which resulted from the restrictions placed on ¹⁹¹¹⁹ See para. 6020.

¹⁹¹²⁰ Although paragraph 74 of the Indictment alleges that this plan extended to deporting the Bosnian Muslim population of Srebrenica, the Prosecution clarified during closing arguments that it does not seek a finding that the Accused is responsible for deportation, under Count 7, in relation to Srebrenica. Prosecution Closing Argument, T. 48034 (7 October 2014).

¹⁹¹²¹ Indictment, paras. 20, 74–75. Alternatively, it is alleged that these acts of forcible transfer formed part of the objective to permanently remove Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb-claimed territory. Indictment, para. 75.

humanitarian aid convoys by the Bosnian Serb Political Organs and the Bosnian Serb Forces.¹⁹¹²⁵ Similar restrictions were placed on DutchBat re-supply convoys, leading to the eventual negation of DutchBat's operational readiness to defend the enclave.¹⁹¹²⁶

5625. Beginning in the early morning of 6 July 1995, Bosnian Serb Forces opened fire on the enclave; the town came under heavy shell fire which lasted until it fell to Bosnian Serb Forces on 11 July.¹⁹¹²⁷ Shells fell throughout the town and enclave in a scattered manner, and many civilians were wounded or killed.¹⁹¹²⁸ As the southern perimeter of the enclave began to collapse and the Bosnian Serb Forces advanced towards Srebrenica town, thousands of refugees streamed towards the centre of the enclave and gathered near the Bravo Company compound and the hospital.¹⁹¹²⁹ Bosnian Serb Forces burned Bosnian Muslim houses as they approached Srebrenica town.¹⁹¹³⁰ Panic and fear increased as more refugees arrived from the outskirts of town, reporting that the Bosnian Serb Forces were burning their villages, and the representatives of international organisations began to depart for Potočari.¹⁹¹³¹ Upon arriving in Srebrenica town, Bosnian Serb soldiers called on the few people who remained in their houses to leave.¹⁹¹³² Desperate to reach safety, the Bosnian Muslims who were gathered outside the Bravo Company compound ultimately broke through the compound's defences.¹⁹¹³³ When the Bosnian Serb Forces shelled the Bravo Company compound, DutchBat soldiers and panicked Bosnian Muslim civilians began to move towards Potočari, and the Bosnian Serb Forces shot and shelled at the column as it moved towards the UNPROFOR main base.¹⁹¹³⁴ By the evening of 11 July, the DutchBat compound in Potočari was overcrowded with thousands of fearful Bosnian Muslims who had fled Srebrenica town.¹⁹¹³⁵

5626. There was constant shelling throughout the night of 11 July and into the following morning.¹⁹¹³⁶ As Bosnian Serb soldiers approaching in attack formation came into view, the Bosnian Muslim population in Potočari grew even more fearful.¹⁹¹³⁷ At the same time, there was insufficient water, food, and medicine, and for this reason—in addition to the lack of hygienic facilities available in Potočari—the humanitarian situation was catastrophic.¹⁹¹³⁸ During the night between 12 and 13 July, the Bosnian Muslims, gathered in Potočari, could hear the sound of gunfire in the vicinity of the UN compound; some observed members of the Bosnian Serb Forces beating and sexually assaulting other Bosnian Muslims, while other Bosnian Muslims were taken away by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces and did not return.¹⁹¹³⁹ As the vehicles on which the Bosnian Muslims would be transported arrived on the morning of 12 July, DutchBat soldiers stationed near the bus premises were disarmed by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces at gunpoint.¹⁹¹⁴⁰ Many Bosnian Serb soldiers stood near the buses and trucks aligned along the road outside the UN compound; some were visibly drunk and were accompanied by German Shepherd dogs.¹⁹¹⁴¹

5627. Bosnian Serb Forces supervised the boarding process.¹⁹¹⁴² Bosnian Muslims were led towards, and began to board, the buses, which were guarded by Bosnian Serb soldiers with guns.¹⁹¹⁴³ Bosnian Serb soldiers threatened those who tried to withdraw towards the back of the group and physically forced them to board the vehicles.¹⁹¹⁴⁴ By 8 p.m. on the evening of 13 July, up to 30,000 Bosnian Muslims had been transported from Potočari to ABiH-held territory.¹⁹¹⁴⁵

5628. The Chamber notes that in relation to the issue of whether the movement of the population was voluntary, the Accused contends that the departure of Bosnian Muslims from Potočari reflected a genuine choice on the part of the population, and that this choice was communicated to the Bosnian Serb Forces by UNPROFOR, with whom the suggestion to transport the population from Potočari originated.¹⁹¹⁴⁶ .

5629. As mentioned in Section Section IV.C.1 above, the Chamber received evidence indicating that the municipal authorities in Srebrenica attempted to contact the BiH authorities in Sarajevo multiple times throughout the day on 9 July 1995.¹⁹¹⁴⁷ One of these communications included a request that Izetbegović and Delić arrange a meeting with the Bosnian Serbs to explore the possibility of opening a corridor in order to allow the population to the nearest Bosnian Muslim-held territory.¹⁹¹⁴⁸ The Accused contends that this request should be regarded as demonstrative of the wish of the population to leave the enclave.¹⁹¹⁴⁹ However, these communications occurred on the day that the UNMOs departed the PTT building for Potočari, as the southern perimeter of the enclave began to collapse, and as the population began to panic.¹⁹¹⁵⁰ The Chamber therefore does not consider that such a request to the BiH authorities was the product of genuine choice.¹⁹¹⁵¹

5630. The Accused also contends that at the first two meetings at the Hotel Fontana, “it was made clear to the Bosnian Serbs that both the UN and the civilian population wanted the people of Srebrenica to be transported from the enclave”, and that Mladić made it clear that the population could stay if they wished to do so.¹⁹¹⁵² The Prosecution submits that Mladić’s statements should be viewed in the context of “his menace and his threats”.¹⁹¹⁵³ Indeed, the Chamber has found that Mladić dictated the terms of the first Hotel Fontana meeting, the first ten minutes of which were extremely tense as Mladić berated Karremans for, inter alia, having fired at Bosnian Serb Forces that day.¹⁹¹⁵⁴ Throughout the meeting, Mladić alternated his invitations to Karremans to make suggestions regarding the situation with veiled threats; for example, with regard to the DutchBat members being held at the hotel, he stated that they would not be hosted for long if NATO kept bombing, since “we know how to bomb too”.¹⁹¹⁵⁵ A few minutes later, Mladić told Karremans: “You can either all leave, all stay, or all die here.”¹⁹¹⁵⁶ At the second Hotel Fontana meeting,

The Chamber further observes that Karremans’ statements explicitly reflected the dependent situation in which he found himself, as he couched his first request to be allowed to leave the enclave in the admission that “it’s a request because I’m not in a position to demand anything”. P4202 (Written compilation booklet: Srebrenica Trial video), e-court p. 210; P4201 (Updated Srebrenica Trial video), 00:43:39–00:43:52. Mladić demanded that Mandžić provide him with “a clear position on the representatives of your people on whether you want to survive [...] stay or vanish”.¹⁹¹⁵⁷ He advised Mandžić that “the future of your people is in your hands, not only in this territory”.¹⁹¹⁵⁸ When regard is had to such statements, the Chamber finds that Mladić’s questioning of Karremans and Mandžić did not solicit answers grounded in genuine choice.¹⁹¹⁵⁹

5631. As described in Section IV.C.1 above, at a meeting held in Potočari on 17 July, Mandžić and Franken were asked to sign a statement declaring, inter alia, that each individual had been allowed to choose whether to stay in the enclave or leave, and that “we decided that the entire population move out of the enclave and be evacuated to the territory of Kladanj municipality”.¹⁹¹⁶⁰ Franken testified that these portions of the 17 July 1995 Statement were “nonsense”, and that he had only signed it in order to ensure that the evacuation of DutchBat and the wounded proceeded smoothly.¹⁹¹⁶¹ Franken also explained that he had added a proviso to one of the statements in an effort to neutralise the false language in the 17 July 1995 Statement.¹⁹¹⁶² In light of Franken’s testimony as well as the prevailing circumstances in Potočari described in more detail above, the Chamber does not consider the 17 July 1995 Statement to be demonstrative of the population’s genuine choice to leave the enclave. Moreover, the Chamber recalls that an agreement concluded by military commanders or representatives of the parties to a conflict cannot render displacement lawful per se; commanders and representatives cannot consent on an individual’s behalf.¹⁹¹⁶³

5632. The Accused also points to evidence on the record which demonstrates that Akashi sent a code cable to Annan at 9:34 p.m. on 11 July, conveying the report of a UNHCR local staff member (Updated Srebrenica Trial video), 00:53:30–00:53:40 (requesting the “release” of the population). ¹⁹¹⁵⁹ Indeed, the Chamber recalls that Akashi’s entire communication to Annan was predicated at the outset on the assessment that “the situation on the ground” at the time “necessitate[d] that [UN] actions in Srebrenica in the coming days be conducted with the consent of the Bosnian Serbs”. D1039 (UNPROFOR report, 11 July 1995), p. 1. See also P4175 (Witness statement of Robert Franken dated 15 January 2012), para. 105 (stating that the population did not have a realistic opportunity to stay); P5206 (UNPROFOR report, 12 July 1995), e-court p. 1 (reporting that Mladić had insisted that the movement of people from Potočari begin immediately).

that day that “virtually everyone in the enclave want[ed] to leave”.¹⁹¹⁶⁴ However, by the time the cable was sent, tens of thousands of Bosnian Muslims had fled the relentless shelling of Srebrenica town during the Bosnian Serb attack, and had dodged the shooting and shelling of the civilian column as it proceeded north to Potočari. They arrived there only to discover that DutchBat and the other international organisations present, having been under-supplied for months, were woefully unable to accommodate such a number of people. The Chamber finds that these circumstances, which resulted from the actions of Bosnian Serb Forces, were coercive.

5633. The Chamber therefore considers, on the basis of the evidence described above, that the circumstances arising from the imposition of restrictions of humanitarian aid pursuant to Directive 7, the attack on Srebrenica, as well as the atmosphere in Potočari, all of which resulted from the acts of Bosnian Serb Forces, created a coercive environment in which the Bosnian Muslims had no other viable alternative but to leave the enclave in order to stay alive.¹⁹¹⁶⁵ Accordingly, the Chamber finds that the removal of the Bosnian Muslim women, children, and some elderly men from the Srebrenica enclave was forced.

5634. The Chamber further considers that because the catastrophic humanitarian situation in Potočari resulted from the actions of Bosnian Serb Forces, the humanitarian crisis that existed in Potočari does not justify the forcible nature of such displacement. The Chamber also observes that, particularly since military operations had ceased by the time the Bosnian Serb Forces entered Srebrenica town on 11 July, there was no need to remove the population for security reasons. Accordingly, the Chamber finds that the forced nature of the removal of Bosnian Muslims from Potočari was not justified under international law.

(B) Mens rea

5635. As mentioned in Section IV.C.1 above, with the issuance of Directive 7 on 8 March 1995, the Drina Corps was ordered to “create an unbearable situation of total insecurity with no hope of

¹⁹¹⁶⁵ The Accused argues that it is improper to consider the coercive effect on the population of earlier events, such as convoy restrictions and the shelling of civilians, as evidence of the intent of the Bosnian Serb Forces because the transportation of the population did not take place until after the population and UNPROFOR had specifically requested it. Defence Final Brief, para. 2437. However, the forcible nature of the movement of a population can be established by reference to coercive circumstances; the Chamber has considered the deliberate imposition of restrictions on humanitarian aid together with all the other evidence in establishing the coercive nature of the environment as described above.

further survival or life for the inhabitants of Srebrenica and Žepa”.¹⁹¹⁶⁶ Bosnian Serb Forces implemented Directive 7 by further restricting humanitarian aid and re-supply convoys over the following months.¹⁹¹⁶⁷

5636. On 10 July, the Bosnian Serb Forces issued an ultimatum to DutchBat, stating, inter alia, that DutchBat would be permitted to leave the enclave with the civilian population if they left their equipment and weapons behind.¹⁹¹⁶⁸ The Bosnian Serb ultimatum further proposed that only representatives of international organisations should be allowed into the UN Compound, and that the Bosnian Muslim population should remain outside.¹⁹¹⁶⁹ Moreover, members of the Bosnian Serb Forces in fact took action to mobilise buses even prior to the commencement of the third meeting at the Hotel Fontana.¹⁹¹⁷⁰ The Chamber therefore does not accept either the Accused’s assertion that the VRS only took action to mobilise buses after the conclusion of the Hotel Fontana meetings or his suggestion that such a fact—even if established—would demonstrate that the Bosnian Serb Forces had no intention of forcing the population to leave before that point.¹⁹¹⁷¹

5637. The Chamber notes that in an intercepted conversation at 12:50 p.m., Mladić was heard telling an unidentified male person: “They’ve all capitulated and surrendered and we’ll evacuate them all—those who want to and those who don’t want to.”¹⁹¹⁷² The Accused asserts that as transcribed, this intercept “stands alone as an outlier” and suggests that the word “accommodate” was omitted during transcription such that Mladić’s statement should read, “we’ll evacuate them all—those who want to and [accommodate] those who don’t want to”.¹⁹¹⁷³ The Chamber observes that no evidence on the record supports the Accused’s assertion that a word was omitted. The Chamber also notes that it received the testimony of the intercept operator who transcribed this conversation, who testified that a series of dots were used to denote any passages where the speakers were not well heard.¹⁹¹⁷⁴ The Chamber observes that no dots were inserted between the words “and” and “those” in the original transcription. The Chamber is therefore satisfied that the original transcription of the conversation accurately reflected Mladić’s statement.

I want to help you, but I want absolute co-operation from the civilian population because your army has been defeated. There is no need for your people to get killed [...]. All you have to do is say what you want. As I told this gentleman [Mandžić] last night, you can either survive or disappear.¹⁹¹⁷⁶

In support of his challenge to the Prosecution’s contention that the Bosnian Serb Forces intended to force the population to leave, the Accused points to a conversation intercepted at 12:40 p.m., approximately 1.5 hours after the end of the third Hotel Fontana meeting and just as the bussing operation in Potočari got underway,¹⁹¹⁷⁷ in which one speaker communicated to Main Staff headquarters that “I talked with them and we’ll accept all of the civilians who want to and they can stay”.¹⁹¹⁷⁸ The Accused claims that the speakers were a superior and a subordinate, that one speaker’s reference to having spoken with “them” should be construed as having spoken to the civilian population, and that on the basis of that construction, along with the fact that the speaker on the ground called the Main Staff, the Chamber should infer that the interlocutor on the ground was Mladić.¹⁹¹⁷⁹ Even if the Chamber were to accept these premises, in light of the evidence of Mladić’s other contemporaneous statements described above,¹⁹¹⁸⁰ the Chamber would not consider such a statement demonstrative of Mladić’s true intent.

5639. Asserting that the Bosnian Muslim population would have been allowed to stay in Srebrenica had they “sheltered in place in their homes”, the Accused contends that the fact that requests were conveyed to the Bosnian Serb Forces to transfer the population precludes the Chamber from concluding that the only reasonable inference is that the Bosnian Serb Forces intended to forcibly transfer the population.¹⁹¹⁸¹ The Chamber notes, firstly, that it has already found that, on the contrary, Bosnian Muslims fled from Srebrenica town to Potočari as a result of the Bosnian Serb attack.¹⁹¹⁸² Second, the Chamber recalls that, as mentioned above, the boarding process, which was coercive, was carried out under the direct supervision of the Bosnian Serb Forces.¹⁹¹⁸³ Members of the Bosnian Serb Forces physically forced some of the individuals gathered in Potočari to board the buses.¹⁹¹⁸⁴ Additionally, on 13 July, Radislav Janković ordered a member of the Bratunac Brigade MP to return to Srebrenica to see if any Bosnian Muslims were still there.¹⁹¹⁸⁵ Furthermore, the Chamber recalls that members of the Bosnian Serb Forces threatened to shoot an elderly patient who wished to remain in the Srebrenica hospital if the UNMOs did not remove her and take her with them.¹⁹¹⁸⁶

5640. On the basis of all of this evidence, the Chamber considers that there is no doubt that the Bosnian Serb Forces intended to forcibly remove from the Srebrenica enclave the Bosnian Muslim women, children, and some elderly men who had gathered in Potočari by 11 July.

(C) Conclusion

5641. With respect to the transfer described in paragraphs 5623 to 5634 above, the Chamber finds that those who were displaced left their places of residence and belongings without any guarantee concerning the possibility to return in the future and that this caused the victims serious mental suffering or injury. Additionally, some of those displaced from Srebrenica had been previously displaced from their homes in other municipalities;¹⁹¹⁸⁷ their displacement from Srebrenica compounded their suffering. These acts were committed with the intent to inflict serious mental suffering, or with knowledge that these acts were likely to cause such suffering. These acts are of similar seriousness to deportation which is listed under Article 5(d) of the Statute. The Chamber therefore finds that these acts are sufficiently serious to amount to “other inhumane acts” pursuant to Article 5(i) of the Statute.

5642. The Chamber found that there was a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat civilian populations of BiH. The Chamber finds that acts referred to in paragraphs 5623 to 5634 of this section were part of this widespread and systematic attack and that the perpetrators of these acts knew of the attack and that their crimes were part of it. In reaching that conclusion, the Chamber considered the locations, time period, and the identity and status of the victims, which correspond with the scope of the widespread and systematic attack, as well as the magnitude of the attack on the Bosnian Muslim civilian population of BiH. The Chamber therefore finds that these incidents constitute other inhumane acts (forcible transfer) as crimes against humanity.

iv. Persecution: Count 3

(A) Killings

5643. Earlier in this Judgement, the Chamber found that many Bosnian Muslims were killed by Bosnian Serb Forces in the weeks following the fall of Srebrenica on 11 July 1995.¹⁹¹⁸⁸ The Chamber also found that the perpetrators of each of these incidents acted with the intent to kill the victims or at least wilfully caused serious bodily harm, which they should reasonably have known might lead to death.¹⁹¹⁸⁹ The Chamber therefore found that these killings constituted murder as a crime against humanity and a violation of the laws or customs of war charged under Counts 5 and 6 of the Indictment, respectively.¹⁹¹⁹⁰ The Chamber further found that the victims of each of these incidents were civilians or had been rendered hors de combat at the time of their killing.¹⁹¹⁹¹

5644. The Chamber found that all the victims of the killings mentioned above were Bosnian Muslims. Therefore, the Chamber finds that the perpetrators of these killings intentionally targeted their victims solely on the basis of their identities as Bosnian Muslims and that these killings were carried out on discriminatory grounds with discriminatory intent.

5645. As found earlier, these killings were part of a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim civilian population of BiH and the perpetrators knew of the attack and that the crimes were part of it.¹⁹¹⁹² Therefore, the Chamber finds that these killings constitute persecution as a crime against humanity.

(B) Cruel and/or inhumane treatment

(1) Terrorising and abuse of Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica in Potočari

5646. Earlier in this Judgement, the Chamber described the appalling conditions inflicted upon the panicked and fearful Bosnian Muslim population gathered at the DutchBat compound in Potočari between 11 and 13 July 1995.¹⁹¹⁹³ The Chamber will not repeat its description in full here, but specifically recalls that at the DutchBat compound, where thousands of Bosnian Muslims sought shelter after having come under shell fire at the Bravo Company compound in Srebrenica town and while en route to Potočari, continuous shell fire could be heard between 11 and 12 July.¹⁹¹⁹⁴ The Chamber also recalls the incidents of physical violence—including physical and sexual assaults—perpetrated by Bosnian Serb Forces which occurred throughout the day and evening of 12 July and into the following day.¹⁹¹⁹⁵

¹⁹¹⁸⁸ See para. 5519.

¹⁹¹⁹⁰ See paras. 5611–5612.

5647. The Chamber further found that in the midst of the fearful atmosphere in Potočari, Bosnian Serb Forces separated between 600 and 700 Bosnian Muslim men and boys from the women and children and took the men to the White House; this intensified the fear of the men as well as those from whom they were separated.¹⁹¹⁹⁶ Before entering the White House, the terrified men were stripped of their ID cards, which the Chamber considers they must have interpreted as a sign of the terrible fate that awaited them, further increasing their fear.¹⁹¹⁹⁷ They were forced to leave behind their other belongings and crowded together in the house without food or water.¹⁹¹⁹⁸ Outside, members of the Bosnian Serb Forces stood guard with German Shepherd dogs.¹⁹¹⁹⁹ During the course of the day on 12 July, the treatment of the Bosnian Muslim men inside the White House deteriorated even further; Bosnian Serb soldiers blocked two DutchBat members who managed to enter the house on the following day from entering an “interrogation room” by threatening them with weapons.¹⁹²⁰⁰ Throughout their detention at the White House, the Bosnian Muslim men were visibly terrified.¹⁹²⁰¹

5648. The Chamber has no doubt that these combined circumstances exacerbated the fear and panic permeating the atmosphere in Potočari and the acts of the Bosnian Serb Forces—namely the shelling of Potočari, the incidents of physical violence inflicted upon the Bosnian Muslims gathered there, and the separation and subsequent detention of Bosnian Muslim men and boys at the White House—deliberately inflicted serious physical and mental suffering on the Bosnian Muslims gathered there. The Chamber considers that this cruel and inhumane treatment is of equal gravity to the crimes listed in Article 5 of the Statute.

¹⁹²⁰¹ See paras. 5113, 5116.

(2) Beating of men and boys of Srebrenica prior to their execution

5649. Earlier in the Judgement, the Chamber described the beatings inflicted upon the Bosnian Muslim men detained by Bosnian Serb Forces at various locations in Bratunac and Zvornik municipalities between 13 and 15 July 1995 prior to their execution.¹⁹²⁰² The Chamber finds that the circumstances in which these beatings took place clearly establish that they were performed deliberately.

5650. The Chamber also found that while inflicting these beatings, Bosnian Serb soldiers taunted the Bosnian Muslim detainees and cursed their “balija” mothers.¹⁹²⁰³ The beatings were severe; those being beaten screamed and moaned such that they could be heard by the other detainees.¹⁹²⁰⁴ The Chamber therefore finds that the Bosnian Serb Forces deliberately inflicted beatings causing serious physical and mental suffering on the Bosnian Muslim detainees. In the view of the Chamber, this cruel and inhumane treatment is of equal gravity to the crimes listed in Article 5 of the Statute.

(3) Conclusion on cruel and inhumane treatment

5651. As found above, the Bosnian Serb Forces deliberately inflicted serious physical and mental suffering upon Muslims gathered in Potočari, as well as upon the Bosnian Muslim men and boys who were subjected to beatings prior to their execution. The circumstances described above demonstrate that the Bosnian Serb Forces intentionally targeted their victims and subjected them to such cruel and inhumane treatment solely on the basis of their identities as Bosnian Muslims. This cruel and inhumane treatment was therefore carried out on discriminatory grounds with discriminatory intent.

5652. The Chamber found that there was a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim civilian population of BiH. The Chamber finds that the acts referred to above were part of this widespread and systematic attack and the perpetrators of these acts knew of the attack and that their crimes were a part of it. Therefore, the Chamber finds that such cruel and inhumane treatment constitutes persecution as a crime against humanity.

(C) Forcible transfer

5653. The Chamber found above that inhumane acts (forcible transfer) was committed and constituted a crime against humanity as charged under Count 8 of the Indictment. The Chamber finds that the Bosnian Serb Forces who carried out that forcible transfer intentionally targeted their victims solely on the basis of their identities as Bosnian Muslims; the forcible transfer was therefore carried out on discriminatory grounds with discriminatory intent.

5654. As the Chamber found above, this forcible transfer formed part of a widespread and systematic attack against the Bosnian Muslim civilian population of BiH, and the perpetrators knew of the attack and that their crimes were a part of it. In addition, the Chamber found that the acts of forcible displacement within national boundaries were sufficiently serious to amount to “other inhumane acts”. Therefore, the Chamber finds that this forcible transfer constitutes persecution as a crime against humanity.

v. Genocide: Count 2

5655. In Count 2 of the Indictment, the Prosecution charges the Accused with genocide pursuant to Article 4 of the Statute. It alleges that between 11 July and 1 November 1995, Bosnian Serb Forces killed over 7,000 Bosnian Muslim men and boys in Srebrenica and the surrounding area through, inter alia, large-scale executions carried out from 12 July until late July 1995.¹⁹²⁰⁵ The Prosecution further contends that Bosnian Serb Forces caused serious bodily or mental harm to thousands of female and male members of the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica by separating the men and boys from their families and by forcibly removing the women, children, and some elderly men.¹⁹²⁰⁶

5656. The Accused contends that these killings were not committed with genocidal intent and therefore do not constitute genocide.¹⁹²⁰⁷

(A) The protected group

5657. As established above in relation to Count 1, the Chamber is satisfied that Bosnian Muslims were a protected group for the purpose of Article 4 of the Statute.¹⁹²⁰⁸

¹⁹²⁰⁵ Indictment, paras. 41–42, 46–47, Schedule E (Part 1). See also Prosecution Final Brief, para. 1092. The Prosecution also alleges responsibility for other killings. Indictment, paras. 46, 47(a), Schedule E (Part 2).

¹⁹²⁰⁸ See para. 2574.

(B) Actus reus

5658. In relation to Count 2, the Prosecution charges two types of acts pursuant to Article 4(2) of the Statute: (i) the killing of over 7,000 Bosnian Muslim men and boys of Srebrenica through executions set out in Schedule E of the Indictment;¹⁹²⁰⁹ and (ii) the causing of serious bodily or mental harm to thousands of female and male members of the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica, including but not limited to the separation of men and boys from their families and the forcible removal of women, young children and some elderly men from the enclave.¹⁹²¹⁰

5659. The Chamber will examine below each of these charged categories.

(1) Killing members of the group

5660. The Chamber has found that in the aftermath of the fall of Srebrenica, at least 5,115 Bosnian Muslim males were killed by Bosnian Serb Forces.¹⁹²¹¹ The Chamber is therefore satisfied for the purpose of Article 4(2)(a) of the Statute that members of the protected group were killed.

(2) Causing serious bodily or mental harm to members of the group

5661. Earlier in this Judgement, the Chamber has described in detail the harrowing circumstances under which thousands of Bosnian Muslim males faced the prospect of their imminent deaths.

5662. In this regard, the Chamber recalls the atmosphere of panic in Potočari. The Bosnian Muslims who travelled there with their families on 11 July endured a night permeated with fear as a result of the conditions created by the Bosnian Serb Forces.¹⁹²¹² Once the transportation process began on the following day, the Bosnian Muslim males were abruptly separated from their families and stripped of their personal belongings, including identification cards;¹⁹²¹³ as stated above, the Chamber considers that the Bosnian Muslim males must have interpreted this as an ominous sign of the terrible fate that awaited them.¹⁹²¹⁴ The Bosnian Muslim males who were separated in Potočari were crammed first into the White House and later moved to various overcrowded locations in Bratunac, where they were held in appalling sanitary conditions and given little if any food or water.¹⁹²¹⁵ In Bratunac, the Bosnian Muslim males from Potočari were joined by Bosnian Muslim males who had endured similar deprivation upon being captured or surrendering from the column.¹⁹²¹⁶ During their detention, many Bosnian Muslim males were subjected to physical and verbal abuse at the hands of the Bosnian Serb Forces; these conditions persisted upon their transfer from Bratunac to more remote locations in Zvornik.¹⁹²¹⁷ Once taken to the execution sites, the Bosnian Muslim males must have realised that they would be killed and thus spent their last terrifying moments in a state of hopelessness. The Chamber finds that the suffering endured by these men in the final days and hours before they were killed by Bosnian Serb Forces constituted serious bodily or mental harm.

¹⁹²⁰⁹ Indictment, para. 47(a) (referring to the crimes listed in Schedule E (Part 1) and Schedule E (Part 2)).

¹⁹²¹⁰ Indictment, para. 47(b). The Chamber notes that, in contrast to the open-ended use of the term “including” which the Chamber has mentioned in fn. 13, in para. 47(b) of the Indictment, the Prosecution specifically states that its allegation regarding the causing of serious bodily or mental harm to the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica includes the phrase “but [is] not limited to” the separation of the men and boys from their families and the forcible removal of the women, young children, and some elderly men from the enclave. The Chamber will thus consider whether serious bodily or mental harm was caused to thousands of female and male members of the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica following the separation of the men and boys from their families as a result of both the killings and the forcible removal of the women, children, and some elderly men. See Prosecution Final Brief, para. 1094.

5663. The Chamber also finds that the Bosnian Serb Forces caused serious bodily and mental harm to the Bosnian Muslim males who managed to survive the killings and lived to testify. Some witnesses described hiding underneath the bodies of their fellow detainees and escaping the killing sites under perilous circumstances.¹⁹²¹⁸ The Chamber is convinced that, in addition to the serious bodily or mental harm suffered by the survivors prior to their attempted execution, their respective close encounters with death have had long-lasting effects on their respective abilities to lead normal and constructive lives.

5664. Likewise, the Chamber finds that the killings of Bosnian Muslim males carried out by the Bosnian Serb Forces following the fall of Srebrenica inflicted serious mental harm upon the surviving family members and loved ones of those killed. Having fled their homes or places of refuge for the UN Compound, these women, children, and some elderly men also endured the sudden separations at Potočari, when their husbands, fathers, brothers and sons were taken away to await an unknown fate.¹⁹²¹⁹ The Chamber received evidence that many women suffered serious mental harm as a result of not knowing what happened to their missing male family members.¹⁹²²⁰

The Chamber heard testimony of the unique nature of this suffering in that in the space of a few days, many women of Srebrenica had lost such large numbers of male family members that they were unable to envision the future.¹⁹²²¹ Their mental anguish continues in the form of anxiety as well as feelings of helplessness and betrayal, which underpin an unwillingness or inability to return to their former homes.¹⁹²²² Accordingly, the Chamber finds that the mental harm caused to the women, children, and some elderly men as a result of the killing of the men and boys and the forcible removal of the remainder of Bosnian Muslims has had long-lasting effects on the respective abilities of the surviving women, children, and some elderly men to live normal and constructive lives.

5665. The Chamber is therefore satisfied for the purpose of Article 4(2)(b) of the Statute that thousands of female and male members of the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica were subjected to serious bodily or mental harm as a result of actions of the Bosnian Serb Forces and that this harm was of such serious nature as to contribute or tend to contribute to the destruction of part of the group.

(C) Mens rea

5666. The Prosecution contends that the Accused and other members of the Srebrenica JCE intended to destroy the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica, which formed a substantial part of the protected Bosnian Muslim group.¹⁹²²³ According to the Prosecution, the intent to destroy the ¹⁹²²³ Prosecution Final Brief, paras. 1095–1096. Alternatively, the Prosecution contends that it was foreseeable to the Accused that one or more members of the Overarching JCE might perpetrate genocide against the Bosnian

Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica is evident from the scale of the killings and their level of co-ordination, as well as the systematic method through which they were carried out.¹⁹²²⁴ The Prosecution argues that the killings, as well as the forcible removals and other acts which inflicted serious bodily or mental harm, “were intended to ensure that the Bosnian Muslim community of Srebrenica could not re-constitute itself.”¹⁹²²⁵ The Accused denies that he personally had or shared such intent with anyone else.¹⁹²²⁶

5667. The Chamber will address the Accused’s mental state in the section concerning his responsibility below, and will limit its immediate consideration to whether the existence of genocidal intent is evident from the pattern of crimes.

(1) Intent to destroy a part of the protected group as such 5668. As stated above, the Chamber has found that the Bosnian Serb Forces killed at least 5,115 Bosnian Muslim males from Srebrenica following the fall of Srebrenica in July 1995.¹⁹²²⁷ The Chamber notes the commencement of the killings outside the Vuk Karadžić School in Bratunac on the night of 12 July;¹⁹²²⁸ the further killings at Potočari,¹⁹²²⁹ Sandići Meadow,¹⁹²³⁰ Jadar River,¹⁹²³¹ the Kravica Warehouse,¹⁹²³² Luke School near Tišća,¹⁹²³³ and again outside the Vuk Karadžić School on 13 July;¹⁹²³⁴ and the continued escalation of the killings following the decision on 13 July to transfer the Bosnian Muslim males in Bosnian Serb custody to Zvornik with killings at Orahovac,¹⁹²³⁵ Petkovci,¹⁹²³⁶ Ročević and Kozluk,¹⁹²³⁷ and at Kula School, Branjevo Military Farm, and the Pilica Cultural Centre.¹⁹²³⁸ All of these killings were carried out over a period of several days and in circumstances which demonstrated clear co-ordination between multiple layers and branches of the Bosnian Serb Forces. The Chamber considers that the consistent pattern evident from the movement of the prisoners from their places of detention—sometimes to secondary or even tertiary holding sites—and ultimately to killing sites demonstrates the deliberate nature of the operation pursuant to which the Bosnian Muslim males were executed. The Chamber further observes that the vast scale of the executions as well as the horrendous manner in which they were carried out demonstrated a total disregard for the humanity of the Bosnian Muslim males of Srebrenica.

5669. The Chamber notes that the operation, which was carried out by the Bosnian Serb Forces who vigorously pursued the Bosnian Muslim males in the column, encompassed the killing of all Bosnian Muslim men in Bosnian Serb custody, irrespective of whether they were combatants or civilians and regardless of whether they were captured or had surrendered. The Chamber considers that this, combined with the manner as well as the systematic and highly organised nature of the killings, demonstrates a clear intent to kill every able-bodied Bosnian Muslim male from Srebrenica. Noting that killing every able-bodied male of a group results in severe procreative implications that may lead to the group's extinction,¹⁹²³⁹ the Chamber finds that the only reasonable inference on the basis of such evidence is that members of the Bosnian Serb Forces orchestrating this operation intended to destroy the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica as such.

5670. Although a corridor was opened for a period of approximately 24 hours,¹⁹²⁴⁰ the Chamber finds that this was done by a brigade commander for reasons of military necessity and notes that it was quickly closed, reinforcements were sent to the Zvornik area, and the Main Staff dispatched three colonels to the area to investigate why the corridor had been opened.¹⁹²⁴¹ In the following days, members of the Bosnian Serb Forces continued to kill Bosnian Muslim males who came into custody, as exemplified by the killings of Bosnian Muslim males at Snagovo,¹⁹²⁴² Bišina,¹⁹²⁴³ and Trnovo.¹⁹²⁴⁴ The Chamber is thus of the view that the opening of the corridor does not raise any doubt that members of the Bosnian Serb Forces intended to destroy the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica.

5671. On the basis of the evidence regarding the killing operation, in particular in light of the fact that the Bosnian Serbs tried to kill every able-bodied Bosnian Muslim male from Srebrenica,¹⁹²⁴⁵

¹⁹²³⁸ See para. 5464.

¹⁹²³⁹ See Krstić Appeal Judgement, paras. 28-29.

¹⁹²⁴⁵ In this regard, the Chamber considers the example of Rešid Sinanović—the former chief of the SUP in Bratunac—to be illustrative of this intention. The Chamber recalls that Sinanović was captured by Bosnian Serb the Chamber finds that the only reasonable inference is that members of the Bosnian Serb Forces intended to destroy the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica as such. In addition, the Chamber recalls the near-simultaneous execution of the bussing operation which resulted in the removal of the remainder of the Bosnian Muslim population, namely the women, children, and some elderly men, from the Srebrenica enclave.¹⁹²⁴⁶ The Chamber has found that this process, which also involved the abrupt separation of the Bosnian Muslim males from the women, children, and some elderly men, resulted in serious mental harm.¹⁹²⁴⁷ Viewing the evidence in its totality, the Chamber considers that the Bosnian Serb Forces must have been aware of the detrimental impact that the eradication of multiple generations of men would have on the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica in that the killing of all able-bodied males while forcibly removing the remainder of the population would have severe procreative implications for the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica and thus result in their physical extinction. The Chamber therefore finds beyond reasonable doubt that these acts were carried out with the intent to destroy the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica as such.

(2) Substantiality of the targeted group

5672. The Chamber recalls that where part of a protected group is targeted for destruction, such part must be substantial.¹⁹²⁴⁸ With regard to the targeted group, which was the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica, the Chamber recalls that the Appeals Chamber has found that although the Bosnian Muslim population in Srebrenica constituted a numerically small percentage of the Bosnian Muslim population, the enclave's seizure was of particular strategic importance due to its geographic proximity to Serbia, its symbolic stature as a refuge for Bosnian Muslims, and the fact that its elimination despite its status as a safe area would be demonstrative of the potential fate of all Bosnian Muslims.¹⁹²⁴⁹ The Chamber agrees with this analysis and, accordingly, finds that the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica constituted a substantial part of the Bosnian Muslim population.

(3) Conclusion

5673. On the basis of the analysis set out above, the Chamber finds that—with the intent to destroy the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica, which constituted a substantial part of the Bosnian Forces on 13 July and held at the Konjević Polje intersection and later in Bratunac; he was then transferred to Zvornik on 14 July where he survived, and escaped from, a mass execution near Kozluk. See paras. 5171, 5192, 5199, fn. 17638. Muslim protected group—members of the Bosnian Serb Forces killed thousands of Bosnian Muslim males and caused serious bodily or mental harm to thousands of Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica. The Chamber therefore finds that the acts described above constitute genocide within the meaning of Articles 4(2)(a) and 4(2)(b) of the Statute.

3. Srebrenica JCE and the Accused's responsibility

5674. The Prosecution alleges that the Accused committed each of the crimes referred to above in concert with others through his participation in a JCE, the common purpose of which was to “eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by killing the men and boys of Srebrenica and forcibly removing the women, young children and some elderly men from Srebrenica” (“Srebrenica JCE”).¹⁹²⁵⁰ The Prosecution alleges that this objective amounted to or included the commission of genocide, persecution, extermination, murder, and forcible transfer as an inhumane act.¹⁹²⁵¹ According to the Prosecution, the Srebrenica JCE was “intrinsically related” to the Overarching JCE,¹⁹²⁵² as the Accused had long sought the removal of the Bosnian Muslim population from the enclaves in eastern BiH.¹⁹²⁵³

5675. The Prosecution contends that the Srebrenica JCE—and the Accused's participation therein—commenced in the days immediately preceding 11 July 1995.¹⁹²⁵⁴ Other alleged members of the Srebrenica JCE include Ratko Mladić as well as republic level members of the Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs; regional, municipal, and local level members of Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs with responsibility in or for the Srebrenica, Vlasenica, Bratunac, and/or Zvornik areas; commanders, assistant commanders, senior officers, and chiefs of the VRS and MUP operating in or with responsibility over territory within the Drina Corps area of responsibility and/or Trnovo municipality; and members of a Serbian MUP unit called the Scorpions.¹⁹²⁵⁵

5676. The Prosecution alleges that beginning in March 1995, the Accused and Mladić oversaw a “final push to end the Bosnian Muslim presence in Srebrenica and eastern [BiH]” by implementing a plan to take over the Srebrenica enclave and forcibly transfer its Bosnian Muslim population, which formed part of the objective of the Overarching JCE.¹⁹²⁵⁶ According to the Prosecution, within days of the commencement of the attack on the Srebrenica enclave on 6 July 1995, the Accused and others formed the shared intent to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by killing the men and boys and forcibly removing the women, young children, and some elderly men.¹⁹²⁵⁷ The Prosecution contends that by 11 July, this objective had begun to be implemented through the killing of the Bosnian Muslim men and boys of Srebrenica, as well as the causing of serious bodily or mental harm to thousands of Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica.¹⁹²⁵⁸

5677. The Accused denies that there was any plan for forcible transfer and contends that there was no plan to kill any detainees prior to the killings at Kravica Warehouse.¹⁹²⁵⁹ The Chamber will address the Accused's specific arguments, where relevant, below.

5678. As a preliminary matter, the Chamber is of the view that the alleged common purpose of the Srebrenica JCE to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica encompasses two distinct but related aspects: the killing of the men and boys along with the forcible removal of the women, children, and the elderly. Accordingly, the Chamber will examine the establishment and subsequent development of these two operations separately below.

a. The existence of a common plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica

i. Overarching JCE and a long term plan to remove the Bosnian Muslim population from Srebrenica

5679. Earlier in this Judgement, the Chamber found that as early as May 1992, the Accused and Mladić, amongst others, shared the common purpose of permanently removing Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb-claimed territory through the crimes of, inter alia, inhumane acts (forcible transfer).¹⁹²⁶⁰

5680. As reflected in Directive 4, issued in November 1992, the VRS devised a military strategy to force the Bosnian Muslim population to leave the wider Srebrenica area.¹⁹²⁶¹ After several months of intense combat, the VRS launched a major offensive in the spring of 1993 which resulted in the forcible transfer of Bosnian Muslims from Vlasenica and Bratunac municipalities to Srebrenica and ultimately concluded with the proclamation of Srebrenica as a UN-protected safe area.¹⁹²⁶² Even prior to the establishment of the safe area, the humanitarian situation in Srebrenica was catastrophic.¹⁹²⁶³ The miserable conditions did not abate once the safe area was proclaimed in April 1993.¹⁹²⁶⁴

5681. On 8 March 1995, the Accused issued Directive 7, which included an order to the Drina Corps to “create an unbearable situation of total insecurity with no hope of further survival or life for the inhabitants of Srebrenica and Žepa”.¹⁹²⁶⁵ The Chamber finds that such language clearly indicates an intent to force the Bosnian Muslim population to leave the enclave. Directive 7 also included an order to the civilian and military organs responsible for co-operation with UNPROFOR to use the planned and unobtrusively restrictive issuing of permits, [to] reduce and limit the logistics support of UNPROFOR to the enclaves and the supply of material resources to the Muslim population, [thereby] making them dependent on our good will while at the same time avoiding condemnation by the international community and international public opinion.¹⁹²⁶⁶

5682. Earlier in this Judgement, the Chamber found that this directive was implemented through the restriction of humanitarian aid to Srebrenica following the issuance of Directive 7.¹⁹²⁶⁷ The Chamber also found that, although the reference to “creat[ing] an unbearable situation of total insecurity with no hope of further survival or life for the inhabitants” was not repeated in Directive 7/1 which was issued by Mladić on 31 March 1995, Directive 7/1 further elaborated upon Directive 7.¹⁹²⁶⁸ Additionally, the Chamber recalls that the preparatory order as well as the active combat order issued by the Drina Corps Commander on 2 July 1995 drew reference from both Directives 7 and 7/1.¹⁹²⁶⁹ The Chamber is therefore satisfied that the omission in Directive 7/1 of the language in Directive 7 which ordered the Drina Corps to “create an unbearable situation of total insecurity with no hope of further survival or life for the inhabitants of Srebrenica and Žepa” did not signal its revocation or abandonment, as it was still given effect.

5683. Even prior to the issuance of the Drina Corps orders of 2 July 1995, the Bosnian Serb Forces had begun to intensify military activities towards the Srebrenica enclave. The Chamber recalls that between April and the beginning of July 1995, the Bosnian Serb Forces—including units of the Drina Corps—intensified their firing on DutchBat positions surrounding the enclave and that beginning in May 1995, they began to shell the enclave itself.¹⁹²⁷⁰ At the beginning of June, the Bosnian Serb Forces took over DutchBat's OP Echo, forcing DutchBat to retreat towards Srebrenica town.¹⁹²⁷¹ Several weeks later, members of the 10th Sabotage Detachment, which was a unit directly subordinated to the Main Staff,¹⁹²⁷² and the Bratunac Brigade entered the enclave through an old mining tunnel and fired infantry weapons into Srebrenica town.¹⁹²⁷³

5684. Based on the foregoing, the Chamber is satisfied that at least by the time Directive 7 was issued in March 1995, the Accused and Mladić had devised a long-term strategy aimed at the eventual forcible removal of the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica through the deliberate restriction of humanitarian aid as well as the targeting of the enclave by the Bosnian Serb Forces.

ii. Development of the plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslim population in Srebrenica

5685. The Chamber recalls that at the end of June 1995, the Accused and Krajišnik visited the Drina Corps Command in Vlasenica, where they met with Krstić and gave him a combat assignment, which Krstić and other members of the Drina Corps command then began to draft into a combat plan known as Krivaja 95.¹⁹²⁷⁴ As the Chamber has found above, the Drina Corps order for active combat operations issued on 2 July 1995 did not originally anticipate the take-over of Srebrenica town; instead, it focused on splitting the enclaves of Srebrenica and Žepa and “reduc[ing] them to their urban areas”.¹⁹²⁷⁵

5686. The Chamber recalls that after initially making slow progress following the commencement of active combat operations on 6 July, Mladić arrived in Bratunac on the afternoon of 8 July.¹⁹²⁷⁶ That same day, the Accused spoke to Živanović regarding the possibility of obtaining reinforcements from the MUP.¹⁹²⁷⁷ The Accused also told Živanović, “all right General, full speed

¹⁹²⁷⁷ The Accused told Živanović to tell Krstić that although “we could probably reinforce you a little”, aside from a group from Zvornik, “the entire MUP [wa]s engaged” and that “there [wa]s no other way”; the Drina Corps would “have to go with [its] own forces”. See also Ljubomir Obradović, T. 25321 (27 February 2012) (confirming that the reference to “Krlle” in P4484 pertained to Krstić). In the Drina Corps' daily combat report to the Main Staff, Živanović requested that a company of Zvornik MUP forces be engaged as reserve forces for the Birač Brigade. ahead. Tell Krstić, order to go full steam ahead”.¹⁹²⁷⁸ Živanović replied, “we are working pretty much according to plan and it’s going well”.¹⁹²⁷⁹ That evening, the Bosnian Serb Forces began to take over DutchBat’s OPs.¹⁹²⁸⁰ The enclave’s southern perimeter then began to collapse, sending residents of the Swedish Shelter Project fleeing toward Srebrenica town.¹⁹²⁸¹

5687. As the Bosnian Serb Forces pressed further into the enclave on 9 July, Tolimir spoke several times to members of UNPROFOR, denying their progress.¹⁹²⁸² That day, Mladić, Gvero, and Živanović joined Krstić, who had already been present for several days, at the Drina Corps IKM in Pribićeovac.¹⁹²⁸³ By the end of the afternoon, the Bosnian Serb Forces stood only one kilometre from Srebrenica town, and Krstić reported to the Main Staff that the conditions for “extending the attack towards Srebrenica” were created.¹⁹²⁸⁴

5688. The Chamber recalls that after Krstić reported to the Main Staff the favourable conditions for extending the attack on 9 July, Tolimir contacted the Accused, who approved the expansion of the Krivaja 95 plan and ordered the Bosnian Serb Forces to take over Srebrenica town.¹⁹²⁸⁵ Tolimir then proceeded to draft a written order to this effect, which Mladić relayed to his subordinates in the field by encrypted radio.¹⁹²⁸⁶ The order stated that “full protection” was to be given to UNPROFOR members and the Bosnian Muslim civilian population.¹⁹²⁸⁷ Additionally, pursuant to an order from the Accused, a group of mixed special police units under the command of Borovčanin was redeployed from Sarajevo to the Srebrenica front on 10 July.¹⁹²⁸⁸ The Main Staff also redeployed units assigned elsewhere towards Srebrenica.¹⁹²⁸⁹

Krstić*), T. 6365–6366 (stating that only the Supreme Commander, at the request of the Ministry of the Interior, could engage a MUP unit for combat activities). Tomislav Kovač testified that while he was meeting with the Accused on 9 July, the Accused called Krstić and told the latter to convey a request for two special police detachments to be sent to Srebrenica before turning to Kovač and asking him to send some special police forces so that Mladić “would not get all the credit for the liberation of Srebrenica”. Kovač claimed that he refused to issue such an order because the MUP forces were spread so thin around Sarajevo and because he anticipated “a conflict with Mladić”, but that nevertheless, the Accused issued an order “for the police to start their activities in Srebrenica”. D3960 (Witness Statement of Tomislav Kovač dated 28

5689. Meanwhile, members of the Main Staff colluded in attempting to deceive UNPROFOR.¹⁹²⁹⁰ When Tolimir—who had already relayed to the Drina Corps IKM the Accused’s order to take the town—spoke to Janvier at 11:10 p.m. on 9 July, he assured Janvier that the VRS “w[ould] do everything [they] c[ould] to calm down the situation”.¹⁹²⁹¹ Likewise, although Mladić had already relayed the expanded orders received from Tolimir to the subordinate units of Bosnian Serb Forces, when he spoke to Janvier at 10:45 a.m. on 10 July, Mladić claimed: “[W]e are doing everything to keep the situation under control and for it not to escalate”.¹⁹²⁹² That day, the Bosnian Serb Forces advanced further into the enclave and attempted to enter the town, but were repelled by ABiH and DutchBat fire.¹⁹²⁹³ Nevertheless, the Bosnian Serb Forces continued to draw closer to the town while Tolimir maintained that combat operations had stopped when he spoke to Janvier.¹⁹²⁹⁴ On the following day, Gvero sent an urgent warning to the Drina Corps Command and IKM, noting that “the monitoring of reactions from UNPROFOR representatives and the world public opinion indicates that the attitude of the VRS personnel towards UNPROFOR personnel and units in the October 2013), paras. 112–113; Tomislav Kovač, T. 42721 (31 October 2011). The Chamber notes that Kovač further asserted that he went from Pale to Bijeljina in order to be “out of reach” in an attempt to avoid issuing such an order but that nevertheless, the Accused’s order of 10 July was conveyed by a MUP duty officer “to the field” using Kovač’s name but without his knowledge. D3960 (Witness Statement of Tomislav Kovač dated 28 October 2013), para. 114. See also Tomislav Kovač, T. 42734 (1 November 2013). When Kovač was presented with his own testimony from a previous case in which he had testified that the Accused had called Karišik and Borovčanin to relay his order of 10 July directly, Kovač first asserted that the order had merely been “forwarded to the MUP institution where Karišik and Borovčanin were”; however, when presented with Karišik’s testimony denying having seen the Accused’s 10 July order at the time, Kovač then stated that the Accused had issued the order “to the MUP institution” and that Borovčanin had “received the order through MUP services”, and asserted that “as for Karišik, I don’t know whether he saw it the first or the second day, whether he passed it on [...] as my deputy he had insight into it [...]”. Tomislav Kovač, T. 42733–42735 (1 November 2013). See also Tomislav Kovač, T. 42717 (31 October 2013) (attesting to the truthfulness of his testimony in the prior case). When asked specifically whether he stood by his prior testimony that the Accused had called Karišik directly, Kovač became evasive and eventually explained that he “didn’t know who passed on the order until [he] saw documents in The Hague”. Tomislav Kovač, T. 42735–42737 (1 November 2013) (further explaining that when he gave his previous testimony he thought Karišik had forwarded the order but later learned that that was incorrect). The Chamber will explain its assessment of Kovač’s credibility in more detail in para. 5766 below, and considers that Kovač had an interest in distancing himself from the implementation of the Accused’s 10 July order. See Tomislav Kovač, T. 42737–42738 (1 November 2013) (demonstrating awareness that the commander of the SBP, Goran Sarić, had recently been indicted in connection with the actions of SBP units following their deployment to Srebrenica pursuant to the Accused’s order). The Chamber will therefore not rely on Kovač’s testimony to the extent that it implicates Karišik in the order’s forwarding. However, the Chamber is satisfied that the order was forwarded by the RS MUP and implemented as set out above. See also Christian Nielsen, T. 16335–16336 (7 July 2011).

area of Srebrenica is in the focus of attention”.¹⁹²⁹⁵ Gvero further ordered the Drina Corps and its subordinate units to “ensure utmost decency in the attitude towards UNPROFOR personnel”, as adopting such an attitude was “of multifarious importance for the realisation of the assignment at hand and of our set of objectives”.¹⁹²⁹⁶ The Chamber thus considers that the Main Staff was well aware of the need to maintain cordial relations with UNPROFOR while nevertheless advancing further towards the goal of taking over the enclave. Late in the afternoon of 11 July, Gvero spoke to Nicolai and—as Mladić and Tolimir had done the day before when speaking to Janvier—denied that the Bosnian Serb Forces were attacking UN positions or targeting the population.¹⁹²⁹⁷ Soon thereafter, Gvero reported to the Accused what he had said to Nicolai and then added: “That’s right, I told him, Mr. President. [...] Everything is going according to plan and do not worry.”¹⁹²⁹⁸ The Chamber finds that these conversations, especially when viewed in light of the clear advance of the Bosnian Serb Forces on the ground, clearly demonstrate that the members of the Main Staff deliberately lied to the UNPROFOR officials with whom they spoke on 10 and 11 July, and that the Accused was aware of this tactic.

5690. The Accused was also promptly informed by Gvero about the fall of Srebrenica in the late afternoon of 11 July.¹⁹²⁹⁹ The Bosnian Serb Forces had by then entered what was mostly an empty town, although they called upon those who remained to leave their houses.¹⁹³⁰⁰ Mladić ordered the Bosnian Serb Forces to proceed north towards the UN Compound, which was by then full of Bosnian Muslims who had fled the relentless shelling of the town earlier that day.¹⁹³⁰¹ Before leaving the centre of Srebrenica, Mladić turned to the television cameras and said: “Finally [...] the time has come to take revenge on the Turks in this region.”¹⁹³⁰²

Gvero and the Accused then discussed the prospect of further NATO air strikes; Gvero told the Accused that UNPROFOR had no reason to attack the VRS and had probably come under fire from Bosnian Muslim forces, the Accused ordered Gvero to shoot down any planes that went into a dive, and Gvero remarked that planes were once again in the air. (A) Forcible removal of the Bosnian Muslim women, children, and elderly men

5691. The Chamber recalls that on 10 July, the Bosnian Serb Forces conveyed a proposal to DutchBat that in exchange for being given safe passage out, the Bosnian Muslims would leave the enclave within 48 hours.¹⁹³⁰³ After taking the town on 11 July, a series of meetings were held at Hotel Fontana, where the participants discussed what would happen to the Bosnian Muslims gathered in Potočari. As the Chamber has described in more detail earlier in this Judgement, Mladić set an intimidating tone at the outset of the first meeting.¹⁹³⁰⁴ The atmosphere of intimidation persisted as Mladić alternated between inviting Karremans to make suggestions as to how to resolve the situation and issuing veiled threats to the well-being of the DutchBat soldiers who had surrendered to the Bosnian Serb Forces and were then being held in Bosnian Serb custody.¹⁹³⁰⁵ The meeting concluded when Mladić dispatched Karremans back to Potočari to retrieve a representative of the Bosnian Muslim population to attend a second meeting that would commence at 11 p.m.¹⁹³⁰⁶

5692. In between the first and the second meeting on 11 July, Krstić, Pandurević, Andrić, Blagojević, and others met Mladić—who arrived with Živanović—at the Bratunac Brigade Command.¹⁹³⁰⁷ There, Mladić ordered that the Drina Corps re-deploy towards Žepa under Krstić's command.¹⁹³⁰⁸ Krstić testified that at the time, those present at the meeting were not aware of the column of Bosnian Muslim men attempting to reach Tuzla and that no information was received

Radislav Krstić, D4136 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Krstić), T. 6220–6221, 6223. On 12 July, Mladić and Krstić conducted an inspection of the Birač Brigade subordinate units near Mount Viogor, and informed them of

during the meeting.¹⁹³⁰⁹ Trivić testified that during the meeting, Mladić spoke to someone on the phone about logistical issues pertaining to the transport of civilians from the enclave, but did not elaborate further.¹⁹³¹⁰ At the end of the meeting, Mladić informed those present that he had received a decree from the Accused appointing Deronjić as civilian commissioner in Srebrenica.¹⁹³¹¹

5693. The Accused had indeed issued an order appointing Deronjić “civilian commissioner for the Serbian Municipality of Srebrenica” with the authority to—in consultation with the Accused and the RS Government—“establish the functions of the appointed municipal authority organs and ensure conditions for their efficient functioning”.¹⁹³¹² Deronjić was also tasked with establishing the functioning of a Bosnian Serb SJB.¹⁹³¹³ The terms of the order also specified that Deronjić was to “ensure that all civilian and military organs treat[ed] all citizens who participated in combat operations against the [VRS] as prisoners of war, and ensure that the civilian population c[ould] freely choose where they w[ould] live or move to”.¹⁹³¹⁴ Finally, Deronjić was authorised to appoint his own associates.¹⁹³¹⁵ The Accused also issued an order to the RS MUP to form an SJB in “Serb Srebrenica”.¹⁹³¹⁶ According to the order, “all citizens who participated in combat activities against the [VRS] will be treated as prisoners of war and in accordance with the law and international conventions”.¹⁹³¹⁷ Others were to be free to choose their place of residence or place of emigration.¹⁹³¹⁸ The RS MUP was further instructed to establish close co-operation with Deronjić.¹⁹³¹⁹

5694. That same evening, Deronjić held a meeting of about 20 people, including “Serb officials in Srebrenica”, as well as managers of public and state-owned companies, at the SDS office in Bratunac.¹⁹³²⁰ There, Deronjić informed the attendees that he had been appointed civilian commissioner for Srebrenica and established a speaker phone connection with the Accused, who stated that Deronjić was “directly responsible with his life for all civilian affairs in Srebrenica”, and that all others were to be directly responsible to Deronjić.¹⁹³²¹ Deronjić then appointed directors for all public enterprises and institutions in Srebrenica.¹⁹³²² The Chamber considers that the establishment of such Bosnian Serb structures, especially in light of the Bosnian Serb rhetoric advocating the separation of the population along ethnic lines and asserting an inability to co-exist,¹⁹³²³ is demonstrative that the removal of the Bosnian Muslim population then envisaged by the Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs was intended to be permanent.

5695. The Chamber recalls that Karremans returned to the Hotel Fontana for a second meeting which commenced around 11 p.m. on 11 July, bringing with him other DutchBat officers as well as Nesib Mandžić, a former schoolteacher, who had agreed to act as a spokesperson for the Bosnian Muslim population in Potočari.¹⁹³²⁴ Mladić, Živanović, and intelligence officers Radoslav Janković and Svetozar Kosorić were joined at the second meeting by Krstić and Deronjić.¹⁹³²⁵ As the Chamber has outlined in more detail above, although Mladić’s words to Mandžić explicitly portrayed that the population’s wishes would be respected, Mladić delivered them in a threatening manner by first stating that he wished to receive “a clear position [...] on whether you want to survive [...] stay or vanish” before reminding Mandžić that “the future of your people is your hands, not only in this territory”.¹⁹³²⁶ Mladić then sent Mandžić back to the UN Compound with instructions to return with a delegation of Bosnian Muslim representatives at 10 a.m. the next morning.¹⁹³²⁷

5696. Overnight, shelling continued around the UN Compound and panic was rampant amongst the Bosnian Muslims gathered there.¹⁹³²⁸ Meanwhile, the Bosnian Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb

Political and Governmental Organs began to mobilise the resources for a massive transport operation. Mladić issued an order for the mobilisation of buses, which was then conveyed through the Main Staff to the RS Ministry of Defence.¹⁹³²⁹ Early on 12 July, Živanović ordered the subordinate brigades of the Drina Corps to send all available buses and minibuses to the Bratunac stadium; this was completed by 10 a.m.¹⁹³³⁰ Additionally, Krstić instructed Krsmanović to mobilise 50 buses from municipalities as far away as Pale and send them to the Bratunac stadium by 5 p.m. that day.¹⁹³³¹ Also that morning, acting pursuant to an order issued by Mladić on the previous evening, the Bosnian Serb Forces—including members of the Bratunac Brigade as well as Borovčanin’s units—took control of OP Papa and, during the course of the morning, proceeded along the road towards the UN Compound in Potočari, where they took control by 1 p.m.¹⁹³³²

5697. In the meantime, Mandžić and two other Bosnian Muslim representatives of the population in Potočari—along with Karremans and Boering—returned to the Hotel Fontana for a third meeting with the Bosnian Serbs.¹⁹³³³ With the exception of Živanović, all Bosnian Serb participants from the previous evening, as well as Popović and Dragomir Vasić, attended the third meeting.¹⁹³³⁴ Although Mladić gave the impression that the Bosnian Muslim representatives’ wishes would be respected,¹⁹³³⁵ he also implied that they had no choice but to leave in order to survive.¹⁹³³⁶ In fact, Mladić had already set in motion the mobilisation of both military and civilian resources to carry out the bussing operation as described above.

5698. When the third Hotel Fontana meeting ended, the Bosnian Muslim representatives were asked to return to the UN Compound to convey the message that transportation would be provided.¹⁹³³⁷ When the vehicles for the transportation of the Bosnian Muslims began to arrive at ¹⁹³²⁹ See para. 5082. Pursuant to this request, the RS Ministry of Defence took immediate action to mobilise buses procured by its secretariats in Sarajevo and Zvornik—as well as departments in Milići, Vlasenica, Šekovići, and Bratunac—which were sent during the course of the day. See para. 5082.

the UN Compound, DutchBat soldiers were disarmed at gunpoint by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces.¹⁹³³⁸

5699. The transportation of Bosnian Muslims from Potočari began at approximately 12:40 p.m. on 12 July.¹⁹³³⁹ Members of the Jahorina Recruits and the Bratunac Brigade MP—assisted by other MUP members—controlled the boarding process.¹⁹³⁴⁰ During the course of the afternoon, Mladić arrived and addressed the crowd, stating that the population could choose whether to go or stay and that the women and children would be transported first and would not be harmed.¹⁹³⁴¹ However, the Chamber notes that Mladić had previously expressed satisfaction at the commencement of the transportation process, adding: “they’ve all capitulated and surrendered and we’ll evacuate them all—those who want to and those who don’t want to”.¹⁹³⁴² Overnight and the following day, the Bosnian Serb Forces subjected the Bosnian Muslims who still remained at the UN Compound to numerous incidents of physical and sexual violence.¹⁹³⁴³

5700. As the bussing operation entered its second day, Radoslav Janković reported to Živanović that approximately one third of the Bosnian Muslims in Potočari had been transferred, and estimated that there were approximately 10,000 left.¹⁹³⁴⁴ Janković assured Živanović that “the job” was “being done [...] at full steam”.¹⁹³⁴⁵ Mladić returned to Potočari on 13 July and oversaw the boarding process again.¹⁹³⁴⁶ The transportation process continued throughout the day and was completed by 8 p.m.¹⁹³⁴⁷ As the buses proceeded towards Bosnian Muslim-held territory, they were escorted by members of the SJB or the Bratunac Brigade MP.¹⁹³⁴⁸ Pursuant to an order issued earlier that day,¹⁹³⁴⁹ members of the Bratunac Brigade regulated traffic as the buses passed through Bratunac en route to Konjević Polje.¹⁹³⁵⁰ In total, between 11 and 13 July, up to 30,000 Bosnian

Muslim women and children, as well as elderly men, were bussed from Potočari to Bosnian Muslim-held territory.¹⁹³⁵¹

(B) Killing of the Bosnian Muslim men and boys

5701. The Chamber recalls that by the time the Bosnian Serb Forces took over the town on the afternoon of 11 July, the vast majority of the able-bodied men of Srebrenica had fled on foot through the woods, fearing that they would be killed if they accompanied their families to Potočari.¹⁹³⁵² While some able-bodied men were present among the population in Potočari, most of the Bosnian Muslims gathered there consisted of women, children, and the elderly.¹⁹³⁵³ At the time of the meetings at Hotel Fontana on the night of 11 July, the Bosnian Serb Forces were aware that there were at least 1,000 Bosnian Muslim men of military age among the Bosnian Muslims still moving from Srebrenica to Potočari, who were expected to arrive there overnight.¹⁹³⁵⁴ As the Chamber will analyse further below, that same evening, the Bosnian Serb Forces also began to receive information about the formation and movement of the column of Bosnian Muslim men.¹⁹³⁵⁵

5702. The Chamber recalls that during a conversation that took place prior to the third meeting at the Hotel Fontana, which began around 10 a.m. the following morning, Popović told Momir Nikolić that the Bosnian Muslim women and children gathered in Potočari would be transferred to Bosnian Muslim-held territory, while the military-aged men would be separated.¹⁹³⁵⁶ Popović then told Nikolić that “all the balijas should be killed”.¹⁹³⁵⁷ The Accused offers various arguments in an attempt to demonstrate why the Chamber should not consider Momir Nikolić a credible witness or rely on his testimony in relation to the formation of the plan to kill the Bosnian Muslim men and boys in Srebrenica.¹⁹³⁵⁸ In this regard, the Chamber refers to its earlier discussion and findings on the reliability of Nikolić’s testimony regarding his conversation with Popović prior to the commencement of the third Hotel Fontana meeting, and will not repeat them here.¹⁹³⁵⁹

¹⁹³⁵⁹ See paras. 5048–5066.

5703. Once the third meeting got underway, Mladić announced that the Bosnian Muslim men in Potočari between the ages of about 15 and 70 would be subjected to a “screening” procedure.¹⁹³⁶⁰ Immediately after the meeting, Radoslav Janković sent Momir Nikolić to Potočari with instructions to find Duško Jević, who was already there, and to assist with the separation of Bosnian Muslim men.¹⁹³⁶¹ After the first convoy departed on 12 July, Bosnian Muslim men and boys approaching the vehicles with their families began to be separated by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces—including members of the 10th Sabotage Detachment and the 65th Protection Regiment—who forced them to leave their personal belongings such as ID cards and valuables in piles along the road and took them to the White House.¹⁹³⁶² The Main Staff Security and Intelligence Administration was made aware of this separation process late that afternoon.¹⁹³⁶³

¹⁹³⁶¹ See para. 5071. The Accused asserts that the fact that both Blagojević and KW582, [REDACTED] testified that they did not know that those who were separated would be killed should weigh against the credibility of Momir Nikolić’s testimony regarding the plan to kill. Defence Final Brief, paras. 2460–2461. Noting both of these witnesses’ respective positions and the involvement of their subordinates in various aspects of the operation described below, the Chamber observes that both would have an incentive to disclaim any knowledge of such a plan. See paras. 5079, 5315. Moreover, the Chamber notes that Blagojević exhibited considerable partiality and evasiveness when asked to clarify even matters which were peripheral to his role in the events which took place in Srebrenica in July 1995. See Vidoje Blagojević, T. 45026, 45028–45032, 45035–45036 (12 December 2013). Finally, the Chamber considers that, even if both Blagojević’s and KW582’s testimonies were true, the fact that they both denied contemporaneous knowledge of the plan to kill would not demonstrate that such a plan did not exist.

¹⁹³⁶² See paras. 5095, 5110. The Chamber recalls that the men were not allowed to collect their belongings when they later boarded buses bound for Bratunac, and that after all had left the White House by the evening of 13 July, these piles were set on fire. See paras. 5118–5119. Citing the evidence of two witnesses who testified that they were not required to surrender their personal identification documents, the Accused contends that “there is no evidence of systematic confiscation” of such material. Defence Final Brief, para. 2511. However, the Chamber recalls that numerous witnesses testified to having seen piles of personal belongings, including ID cards, money, wallets, luggage, clothing, and other valuables lying along the road approximately 30 to 40 metres away from the White House. See para. 5110. Moreover, the Chamber notes that both witnesses cited by the Accused testified that they had no personal belongings to surrender. Ahmo Hasić, P353 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 1252; KDZ039, P3940 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 17315. The Accused also asserts that the burning of the personal belongings of the Bosnian Muslim men and boys held in the White House should not be considered indicative of a plan to kill them because an equally reasonable inference is that all belongings left behind in Potočari were burned once the Bosnian Muslims had left. Defence Final Brief, para. 2512. However, the Chamber has not received any evidence that the ID cards or personal belongings of the Bosnian Muslims who were transported to Kladanj were confiscated in the same manner as those of the Bosnian Muslim men and boys detained at the White House. The Chamber also observes that the burning of the piles of ID cards and belongings of the men and boys detained in the White House appeared sufficiently anomalous as to motivate the DutchBat deputy commander to personally investigate the incident and another DutchBat officer to take photographs. P4175 (Witness Statement of Robert Franken dated 15 January 2012), para. 100; P3948 (Witness statement of Johannes Rutten dated 8 November 2011), para. 66; P4183 (Photograph of burning personal belongings at Potočari); P3961 (Photograph of burning personal belongings).

5704. The Chamber has already described above how the Bosnian Muslim males separated from their families and detained in the White House were crammed into the house and not given any food or water.¹⁹³⁶⁴ Although a total of between 600 and 700 Bosnian Muslim men and boys were separated over the course of 12 and 13 July, the Chamber recalls that beginning on the afternoon of 12 July and continuing throughout the following day, groups of males detained at the White House began to be led out of the house and crowded onto buses bound for Bratunac.¹⁹³⁶⁵ Once the buses arrived in Bratunac, the Bosnian Muslim males were detained in equally crowded conditions in locations throughout the town, and although some food and water were provided at some detention points, it was woefully insufficient.¹⁹³⁶⁶

5705. As the Chamber has described earlier in this Judgement, beginning on the night of 11 July, the Bosnian Serb Forces began to receive information about the path of the column of Bosnian Muslim men attempting to reach Tuzla, and the VRS and MUP began taking co-operative actions to block it.¹⁹³⁶⁷ That night, Kovač dispatched additional MUP units to the area and, on 12 July, members of the MUP forces under Borovčanin's command were deployed along the Bratunac–Konjević Polje Road, joining the VRS units present in the area.¹⁹³⁶⁸ The column was tracked by both MUP and VRS units, and intelligence on the column's movement was relayed within the Bosnian Serb Forces throughout 12 and 13 July.¹⁹³⁶⁹ Early in the morning of 13 July, Mladić, ¹⁹³⁶⁴ See para. 5113. In that regard, the Chamber notes the Accused's argument that the cramped conditions in which the Bosnian Muslim men and boys were held at the White House should not be considered indicative of the existence of a plan to kill them, as he claims that the crowding and deprivation were equally attributable to the "chaotic conditions" which prevailed in Potočari. Defence Final Brief, paras. 2505–2506. The Accused also asserts that such treatment resulted from "negative attitude[s] towards the men of Srebrenica". Defence Final Brief, para. 2505. However, the Chamber will examine the existence or implementation of a plan to kill in light of the totality of the evidence.

¹⁹³⁶⁵ See paras. 5098, 5109, 5117–5118.

¹⁹³⁶⁶ See paras. 5292–5295. The Chamber received evidence of an intercepted conversation between Mladić and Beara at 11:05 p.m. on 13 July wherein Mladić ordered Beara to "take care of all that. Solve it so that there is no lack of food [...] find a way wherever you can find it so that the men are not hungry [...] excellent. Just keep working and feed them all. There are a lot of hungry mouths". D2682 (Intercept of conversation between Ratko Mladić and "Ljubo", 13 July 1995). However, particularly in light of the plethora of other intercepted communications in which Bosnian Serb interlocutors including Mladić used the term "Turk" to refer to Bosnian Muslims generally and euphemisms such as "parcel" to refer to the Bosnian Muslim male detainees, the Chamber considers it unreasonable to infer that when Mladić referred to "the men" being hungry, he was speaking about the detainees as opposed to his troops. See e.g. P5378 (Intercept of conversation between two unidentified persons, 13 July 1995), pp. 1, 3; P5366 (Intercept of conversation between Janković, an unidentified General, and an unidentified person, 13 July 1995); P5070 (Intercept of conversation between Major Jokić and Badem, 14 July 1995). The Chamber also recalls that there is no evidence that any food was provided to the detainees on 14 July or any subsequent day.

¹⁹³⁶⁸ See paras. 5158, 5160.

¹⁹³⁶⁹ See paras. 5158–5159. They have something, they are working, it's going well"); P4946 (Intercept of conversation between Krstić and Borovčanin, 13 July 1995) (showing cooperation between the MUP and VRS).

Vasić, Krstić, Popović, and Pandurević met at the Bratunac Brigade Command.¹⁹³⁷⁰ After the meeting, Mladić confronted Popović outside the building, swearing at him and urging him to “be more active”.¹⁹³⁷¹ Additional MUP units under Borovčanin’s command were deployed that day to reinforce those present along the Bratunac–Konjević Polje Road.¹⁹³⁷² Monitoring the movement of the column continued to be a priority for the Bosnian Serb Forces throughout 13 July, as the Main Staff sought information from the Drina Corps.¹⁹³⁷³

5706. The column was subjected to intense shelling by Bosnian Serb Forces since the morning of 12 July.¹⁹³⁷⁴ Attacks on the column continued throughout the day and into the morning of 13 July, resulting in the encirclement of a large group of men from the column near the Konjević Polje intersection.¹⁹³⁷⁵ The Chamber recalls that the Bosnian Serb Forces then began using a loudspeaker to call into the woods, urging the members of the column to surrender.¹⁹³⁷⁶ Large numbers of Bosnian Muslim men began to surrender or to be captured along the Bratunac–Konjević Polje and Konjević Polje–Nova Kasaba Roads, where the various VRS and MUP units were deployed.¹⁹³⁷⁷ When surrendering, the men were required to leave their belongings, including their ID cards, behind.¹⁹³⁷⁸ The Chamber considers this as an indication that these men were marked for execution.

5707. On 13 July, between 1,500 and 2,000 Bosnian Muslim men came to be detained in each of three locations: the Konjević Polje intersection,¹⁹³⁷⁹ the Sandići Meadow, and the Nova Kasaba football field.¹⁹³⁸⁰ At each location, they were guarded by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces, namely the special MUP units under Borovčanin’s command, and the MP of the 65th Protection

At one point that afternoon, a group of 15 Bosnian Muslim men who had been captured or surrendered in the area of the Konjević Polje intersection were executed by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces, including at least one member of the Bratunac SJB. Regiment.¹⁹³⁸¹ Mladić spent the afternoon and evening of 13 July travelling between the various detention sites, speaking to the detainees and assuring them that they would be exchanged.¹⁹³⁸² However, when Momir Nikolić asked Mladić what was going to happen to the detainees, Mladić made a sweeping gesture across his waist and smiled.¹⁹³⁸³

5708. In the late afternoon and evening of 13 July, in accordance with proposals from Tolimir that detainees were to be moved and placed “somewhere indoors or in the area protected from sighting”,¹⁹³⁸⁴ the detainees were removed from the Sandići Meadow and the Nova Kasaba football field and taken either to the Kravica Warehouse or on trucks and buses to Bratunac town, where they were detained overnight in various locations.¹⁹³⁸⁵ When some of the detainees at the Nova Kasaba football field tried to retrieve their belongings from the field’s entrance, the detainees were told that they would no longer need them.¹⁹³⁸⁶ Beginning late that afternoon and continuing overnight, Bosnian Serb Forces—including members of the 3rd Skelani Platoon¹⁹³⁸⁷—killed between 755 and 1,016 Bosnian Muslim males at the Kravica Warehouse.¹⁹³⁸⁸

5709. The Chamber also notes that that evening, Mladić issued an order adopting the remainder of Tolimir’s proposals, which were aimed at limiting access to the area for “all uninvited individuals”.¹⁹³⁸⁹ While the killings at the Kravica Warehouse were ongoing, buses filled with Bosnian Muslim men and boys from Potočari as well as with those who had been detained at the Sandići Meadow and the Nova Kasaba football field had begun to arrive in Bratunac town; upon arrival, the Bosnian Muslim males were held in various locations and on buses parked throughout

The Chamber notes that the evidence also indicates that the 5th Engineering Battalion and the Zvornik MP were present at the Konjević Polje intersection between 4 and 16 July 1995, but does not establish that those units were involved in guarding the prisoners detained at the three locations on 12 and 13 July. the town.¹⁹³⁹⁰ At these sites, the detainees were guarded by members of the Bratunac Brigade MP as well as members of the MUP.¹⁹³⁹¹

5710. The presence of the buses throughout the town caused concern to the Bratunac population; when an officer in the Bratunac Brigade asked Beara why the male detainees were not leaving immediately, Beara replied that there were too few vehicles to transport them until after the transportation of the Bosnian Muslim women and children was complete.¹⁹³⁹² That evening, Deronjić complained to Beara about the detainees' presence in Bratunac.¹⁹³⁹³ Srblav Davidović testified that on the evening before the buses left Bratunac, he had encountered Deronjić in Bratunac town and had enquired about the buses' presence.¹⁹³⁹⁴ According to Davidović, Deronjić replied that Rajko Đukić from Milići was responsible for the buses' presence; Davidović then urged Deronjić to "use [his] connections" to the Accused in order to have the buses moved.¹⁹³⁹⁵ Deronjić indeed spoke by phone with the Accused at approximately 8 p.m.¹⁹³⁹⁶ The Accused asked Deronjić, "how many thousands?", and Deronjić replied that there were "about two for the time being [...] but there'll be more during the night".¹⁹³⁹⁷ The Accused then told Deronjić that "all the goods must be placed inside the warehouses before twelve tomorrow" before clarifying that he meant "not in the warehouses /?over there/, but somewhere else".¹⁹³⁹⁸ The Chamber finds that the

The Chamber notes that although Davidović testified that this encounter with Deronjić occurred on 12 July, in view of the fact that the buses left Bratunac on the morning of 14 July, the Chamber considers that Davidović's conversation with Deronjić must have occurred on 13 July. discussion between the Accused and Deronjić pertained to the accommodation of the Bosnian Muslim men who were then being held on buses and in detention facilities in Bratunac.¹⁹³⁹⁹

5711. Around the same time, Mladić's order for the transfer of a large number of Bosnian Muslims who were being detained in Bratunac to Zvornik, where they were to be detained and, ultimately, shot, was conveyed down the chain of command by members of the VRS security organs.¹⁹⁴⁰⁰ The Chamber notes, in particular, that Momir Nikolić conveyed this message to Drago Nikolić in person.¹⁹⁴⁰¹ At approximately 9 p.m., members of a public utility company and the Bratunac Civilian Protection Unit were called separately to the Bratunac SDS Office, where they each met with Beara and Deronjić, respectively, as well as two uniformed VRS officers whom they did not know.¹⁹⁴⁰² Both of the individuals from Bratunac were asked to provide equipment for transporting a large number of bodies away from the Kravica Warehouse and burying them elsewhere.¹⁹⁴⁰³ An agreement was ultimately reached for the removal and burial of the bodies from Kravica, and the process began the next morning.¹⁹⁴⁰⁴

5712. In the very early hours of 14 July, just after midnight, Momir Nikolić had driven Beara from the Hotel Fontana to the Bratunac SDS office, where Beara met with Deronjić and Vasić.¹⁹⁴⁰⁵ Beara and Deronjić argued about where the Bosnian Muslim men were to be executed, as Beara insisted that he had instructions from his "boss" that the detainees were to remain in Bratunac, and Deronjić countered that the Accused had instructed him that all detainees in Bratunac should be transferred to Zvornik.¹⁹⁴⁰⁶ Eventually, Beara and Deronjić agreed that the detainees would indeed ¹⁹³⁹⁹ The Prosecution alleges that the Accused used the term "goods" to refer to the detainees in Bratunac in an attempt to conceal the order to move them to detention facilities in Zvornik, and that this demonstrates that his intentions "were malign". Prosecution Final Brief, paras. 961, 964. The Accused does not challenge the inference that the term "goods" was a reference to the detainees in Bratunac, but argues that nothing in the recorded conversation suggests that he was informed of a plan to kill the detainees; it only suggests he was informed of the large number of detainees in Bratunac. ¹⁹⁴⁰⁵ See para. 5312.

¹⁹⁴⁰⁶ See para. 5312. The Chamber received evidence that other locations were also suggested as possible sites for holding the detainees. At 10:30 p.m. that evening, Tolimir sent a communication to the Main Staff and Gvero personally informing him that in case Gvero had been unable to find adequate accommodation, space had been arranged in Sjemeč to accommodate 800 detainees from Srebrenica. P4769 (Message from 1st Podrinje Light Infantry Brigade, 13 July 1995). No detainees were ultimately brought to Sjemeč. Dušan Janc, T. 26976 (27 March 2012). Similarly, on 12 July, Tolimir had instructed the Eastern Bosnian Corps to prepare be transferred to Zvornik.¹⁹⁴⁰⁷ Deronjić then requested a driver and an escort in order to go to Pale that day.¹⁹⁴⁰⁸ After the meeting, some of the detainees being held in Bratunac town began to be transferred to the first of four detention sites in Zvornik, where members of the Zvornik Brigade MP were awaiting their arrival.¹⁹⁴⁰⁹

5713. The Chamber finds that members of the security organs at all levels of the VRS command played prominent roles in organising the logistics of the detention, killing, and subsequent burial of the detainees in Zvornik. On the morning of 14 July, Popović, Beara, and Drago Nikolić met at the Standard Barracks in Zvornik.¹⁹⁴¹⁰ After the meeting, pursuant to an order from Beara, Popović—with the assistance of Momir Nikolić—organised a convoy to transport the remaining Bosnian Muslim males in Bratunac to the buildings in Zvornik which had been designated for their detention.¹⁹⁴¹¹ As Drago Nikolić and Mane Đurić waited at the Hotel Vidikovac to receive the convoy, members of the Bratunac Brigade MP, the Bratunac MUP, and other members of the Bosnian Serb Forces escorted the buses carrying the Bosnian Muslim males to Zvornik.¹⁹⁴¹²

5714. As described in more detail below, Beara, Popović, and Drago Nikolić supervised the ongoing operation at multiple detention and killing sites in the Zvornik area between 14 and 16 July. Over the course of these three days, the Bosnian Muslim males were taken to nearby locations—a field in Orahovac, the Petkovci Dam, the banks of the Drina River near Kozluk, and the Branjevo Military Farm—and killed by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces. At each of these sites, the Bosnian Muslims were either shot by members of the same units who had been detaining them or were transported to the execution site with the resources of those units.¹⁹⁴¹³

5715. The Chamber received evidence that during an informal briefing with VRS officers held on 14 July at the Standard Barracks in the presence of municipal authorities,¹⁹⁴¹⁴ a VRS officer who introduced himself as Beara,¹⁹⁴¹⁵ highlighted that the VRS had a lot of detainees in various locations in the Zvornik municipality, that the VRS had “to get rid of them”, and that he expected assistance from the municipality.¹⁹⁴¹⁶ Beara further instructed that his order originated from “two Presidents”.¹⁹⁴¹⁷

5716. The Chamber found that Popović led a group of buses from Hotel Vidikovac to the Orahovac School on 14 July, where Drago Nikolić was co-ordinating events that day.¹⁹⁴¹⁸ Beara also arrived at Orahovac later that day,¹⁹⁴¹⁹ and both he and Drago Nikolić were present at the Petkovci School shortly before shootings commenced there.¹⁹⁴²⁰ At the Ročević School, Popović and Jasikovac supervised the detention of Bosnian Muslim males that day.¹⁹⁴²¹ Meanwhile, members of the Bosnian Serb Forces—including members of the 1st, 4th, and 6th Battalions of the Zvornik Brigade as well as members of the Bratunac Brigade and its MP Battalion—were deployed to the Orahovac, Petkovci, Ročević, and Kula Schools, where they participated in the detention of the Bosnian Muslim males who had arrived from Bratunac.¹⁹⁴²² At the schools, the Bosnian Muslim males were held in similarly cramped conditions as they had been subjected to in Potočari and Bratunac, and they were similarly deprived of sufficient food and water.¹⁹⁴²³

5717. That night, the Main Staff sought to contact Beara.¹⁹⁴²⁴ When Beara and Jokić spoke at 9:02 p.m. on 14 July, Jokić told Beara to call the Main Staff, as “[t]here [we]re big problems. Well, with the people, I mean, with the parcel”.¹⁹⁴²⁵ In view of the circumstances at the time, the

Chamber finds that the term “parcel” referred to the Bosnian Muslim males then being detained in Zvornik by various members of the Bosnian Serb Forces.¹⁹⁴²⁶

5718. Further, the Chamber recalls that in the early hours of 15 July, Srećko Aćimović received a phone call from Drago Nikolić, who said that the order to deploy soldiers from the Zvornik Brigade’s 2nd Battalion “had come from above” and had to be carried out.¹⁹⁴²⁷ Later that morning, Popović met the Commander of the 2nd Battalion at the Ročević School, yelled at him for not having brought soldiers as he had been ordered, and threatened that the commander would be held responsible for not following orders.¹⁹⁴²⁸

5719. Meanwhile, from Drago Nikolić’s office at the Standard Barracks, Beara contacted the Drina Corps in an attempt to secure additional troops to participate in the killings.¹⁹⁴²⁹ Beara first contacted Živanović, with whom he discussed the Višegrad Brigade Commander’s refusal to comply with an order to send a platoon to a specified location in accordance with the “commander”’s orders.¹⁹⁴³⁰ Beara asked Živanović to order Furtula to comply, but Živanović directed Beara to contact Krstić, who had taken over as Drina Corps Commander.¹⁹⁴³¹ Thereafter, Beara called Krstić, explained that Furtula had not carried out the “boss’s” order, and asked Krstić for 30 to 50 men, adding that “[t]here are still 3,500 ‘parcels’ that I have to distribute and I have no solution”.¹⁹⁴³² Krstić first suggested that members of the Bratunac Brigade or MUP be used but

The Chamber finds, based on the identifying information referred to during the conversation, as well as on the content of the conversation itself, that Beara was a participant in it.

¹⁹⁴²⁶ [REDACTED]. Jokić, who was the duty operations officer at the Zvornik Brigade Command on 15 July, stated that Popović had instructed him not to make a record of the activities involving the killing operation or to speak on the radio about it. [REDACTED].

ultimately said “Fuck it, I’ll see what I can do”.¹⁹⁴³³ Beara added that Krstić should have the men go to Drago Nikolić.¹⁹⁴³⁴

5720. On 16 July, at 11:11 a.m., Beara was intercepted having a conversation with Slobodan Cerović from the Drina Corps, who referred to “instructions from above [...] to do triage on [the detainees]”.¹⁹⁴³⁵ At Beara’s request, Popović went to the Kula School that morning; both were present while the detainees were transported to the Branjevo Military Farm for execution.¹⁹⁴³⁶ The Chamber received evidence about Popović’s involvement in the organisation and co-ordination of the transportation of detainees from the Kula School to the Branjevo Military Farm, as he attempted to procure fuel that afternoon.¹⁹⁴³⁷

5721. Meanwhile, pursuant to an order from Beara, members of the 10th Sabotage Detachment stationed at Dragaševac had reported to the Standard Barracks and were then led towards the Branjevo Military Farm by a “lieutenant-colonel” and two military policemen.¹⁹⁴³⁸ Upon arriving at the farm, the soldiers were ordered to kill the detainees who would be arriving in a few minutes.¹⁹⁴³⁹ Shortly thereafter, buses filled with Bosnian Muslim males who had been held at Kula School began arriving; they were subsequently executed.¹⁹⁴⁴⁰

5722. Hours later, the lieutenant-colonel ordered the soldiers present at the farm to execute 500 Bosnian Muslim men from Srebrenica detained at the nearby Pilica Cultural Centre.¹⁹⁴⁴¹ Beara and Popović were present at the café across the Pilica Cultural Centre, where Beara congratulated the soldiers who had just carried out the executions at the cultural centre.¹⁹⁴⁴² In a phone call from the

However, in light of the countervailing evidence cited above, as well as the fact that Krstić’s testimony was given in his own trial and the fact that this conversation was integral to Krstić’s responsibility for the crimes with which he was charged, the Chamber does not believe Krstić’s denial of being an interlocutor in this conversation.

Standard Barracks at 9:16 p.m. that evening, Popović stated that he had “finished the job [...] finished everything” and would return to Vlasenica the following day.¹⁹⁴⁴³ Considering this statement in light of the totality of the evidence, the Chamber is of the view that the only reasonable inference is that Popović was referring to the killing operation.

5723. However, the Chamber recalls that Popović in fact remained in the Zvornik area on 17 July to supervise the burial of the Bosnian Muslim males who had been killed at the Branjevo Military Farm and the Pilica Cultural Centre on the previous day.¹⁹⁴⁴⁴ After working throughout the day,¹⁹⁴⁴⁵ Popović reported at 4:22 p.m. that “everything’s alright that job is done and dusted [...] everything’s finished up there are no problems.”¹⁹⁴⁴⁶ Over the course of the preceding five days, at least 5,115 Bosnian Muslim males had been killed.¹⁹⁴⁴⁷

iii. Conclusions

(A) The formation of a common plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by forcible removal

5724. On the basis of the totality of the evidence discussed above, the Chamber finds that, as Srebrenica fell, the long-term strategy aimed at removing the Bosnian Muslim population from Srebrenica, which had been devised in March 1995, began to be transformed into a concrete common plan to eliminate them. In the Chamber’s view, this elimination operation first took the form of forcible removal of the Bosnian Muslim population. After receiving the Accused’s order to take the town, the Bosnian Serb Forces under the command of Mladić and Krstić used heavy shelling to push the Bosnian Muslims northward, first towards the Bravo Company compound and then north to the UN Compound in Potočari.¹⁹⁴⁴⁸ In the meantime, following an initial proposal that in exchange for being given safe passage out of the enclave the Bosnian Muslims would leave within 48 hours, Mladić ordered the Bosnian Serb Forces to proceed to Potočari.¹⁹⁴⁴⁹ This was followed by an order to Borovčanin’s units to take over OP Papa before proceeding to the UN Compound.¹⁹⁴⁵⁰

5725. Overnight, as the Bosnian Serb Forces under their control continued to launch shells near the UN Compound, Mladić, Živanović, and Krstić orchestrated a large-scale mobilisation of buses, which ultimately carried thousands of Bosnian Muslim women, children, and elderly men out of Srebrenica during the following 48 hour period.¹⁹⁴⁵¹ In the meantime, these three were joined first by Radoslav Janković and Kosorić, and later by Popović, at meetings at the Hotel Fontana, where, as the Chamber has already found, representatives of the Bosnian Muslims in Potočari were coerced into agreeing to leave the enclave.¹⁹⁴⁵²

5726. Noting the mobilisation of such massive resources, which took place simultaneously with military manoeuvres aimed at consolidating the Bosnian Serb Forces' control over the Bosnian Muslims gathered in Potočari, the Chamber is convinced that as the enclave fell on 11 July, a concrete plan to forcibly remove the Bosnian Muslim women, children, and elderly men from the UN Compound emerged. This plan then began to be implemented overnight and during the following days. The Chamber has no doubt that Mladić's overtures at the Hotel Fontana meetings were merely a façade intended to mask the fact that a concrete plan was already in place to forcibly remove the Bosnian Muslim women, children, and elderly men from Srebrenica on the vehicles that had already been mobilised by the Bosnian Serb Forces and the Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs.¹⁹⁴⁵³

5727. The Chamber recalls that, in addition to being present at some or all of the Hotel Fontana meetings, Mladić, Radoslav Janković, Živanović, Krstić, Popović, and Kosorić were also present in Potočari and oversaw and/or assisted the boarding and transportation of women, children, and the elderly, as well as the separation of the men, their detention, and their subsequent transportation to Bratunac.¹⁹⁴⁵⁴ Thereafter, Bosnian Serb Forces operating under Mladić's command subjected the Bosnian Muslims waiting to leave Potočari to cruel and inhumane treatment.¹⁹⁴⁵⁵

(B) The expansion of the common plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by killing all the able-bodied men and boys

5728. With regard to the numerous killings described above, the Chamber notes striking similarities between many of the detentions and executions of Bosnian Muslim males from Srebrenica that were carried out in the Zvornik area between 13 and 16 July 1995. After being ¹⁹⁴⁵² See paras. 5691, 5695, 5697–5698.

¹⁹⁴⁵³ As will be described below, by this time, a plan had also been devised to kill the Bosnian Muslim males. See Section IV.C.3.a.iii.B: The expansion of the common plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by killing all the able-bodied men and boys.

escorted by members of the Bratunac Brigade MP and Bratunac MUP—as well as other members of the Bosnian Serb Forces—to Zvornik, the Bosnian Muslim males were detained at the Orahovac, Petkovci, Ročević, and Kula Schools, all in the Zvornik area. At these schools, the Bosnian Muslim males were guarded by members of the Zvornik Brigade—usually members of the battalion with responsibility for the area in which each school was located. After being held at the schools for one or two days, beginning on 14 July, the Bosnian Muslim males were taken to various locations nearby where they were shot and killed by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces. At the Pilica Cultural Centre, the Bosnian Muslim males were also killed by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces.

5729. The Chamber also recalls that as early as noon on 14 July, while the killings were being carried out, resources of the Zvornik Brigade Engineering Company were mobilised to dig graves and to bury the bodies of those killed at Orahovac, the Petkovci Dam, Kozluk, and the Branjevo Military Farm.¹⁹⁴⁵⁶ Additional Zvornik Brigade resources were used to bury bodies at the Branjevo Military Farm, and to transport the bodies of those killed at the Pilica Cultural Centre to the farm.¹⁹⁴⁵⁷ Following the same pattern as in Glogova, municipal resources and manpower were also used in Zvornik during the burial process.¹⁹⁴⁵⁸ The Chamber recalls that, at some locations, the burial process began while the killings were still ongoing.¹⁹⁴⁵⁹

5730. The Chamber has also found that in September and October 1995, the Main Staff organised a reburial operation which was carried out by members of the security organs from the Main Staff, Drina Corps, Bratunac Brigade, and Zvornik Brigade, with the assistance of Bosnian Serb civilian authorities and other VRS and MUP units.¹⁹⁴⁶⁰ The Chamber considers that the re-burial operation itself and the means by which it was carried out are consistent with the Chamber's finding that the killings described above were committed pursuant to a common plan.

5731. On the basis of the totality of the evidence outlined above, the Chamber is satisfied beyond reasonable doubt that these killings were carried out pursuant to a systematic and highly organised plan. In reaching that conclusion, the Chamber is mindful that the Bosnian Serb Forces began to obtain detailed intelligence regarding the presence of Bosnian Muslim males amongst the population in Potočari on the night of 11 July and that, around the same time, as described further below, also began to receive reports about the existence and movement of the column of Bosnian ¹⁹⁴⁵⁷ Individuals involved in this process were members of the Zvornik Brigade R Battalion, and the 1st Battalion's Work Platoon. See paras. 5445–5447. A truck belonging to the 6th Battalion was also used. See para. 5372.

Muslim men and boys attempting to make their way towards Tuzla. Further, before 10 a.m. on 12 July, Popović told Momir Nikolić that “all the balijas should be killed”.¹⁹⁴⁶¹ Accordingly, the Chamber is convinced that a plan to kill all the able-bodied Bosnian Muslim men and boys in Srebrenica had been established by the time that the third Hotel Fontana meeting commenced at 10 a.m. on 12 July. The plan then came to encompass the killing of all Bosnian Muslim males in Bosnian Serb custody.

5732. The Accused contends that the plan to kill the Bosnian Muslim men and boys detained by the Bosnian Serb Forces did not exist until at least the afternoon of 13 July, following the “burned hands” incident at Kravica Warehouse.¹⁹⁴⁶² He asserts that “the executions that followed were the result of conduct by persons reacting to events on the ground”.¹⁹⁴⁶³ He also contends that the fact that although Pandurević was present at the meeting at the Bratunac Brigade Command on the night of 11 July 1995,¹⁹⁴⁶⁴ Pandurević did not inform Obrenović of any plan to kill, as well as the fact that Obrenović was first informed of the plan on the evening of 13 July both demonstrate that no such plan existed before that time.¹⁹⁴⁶⁵ However, the Chamber has already found that the final arrangement to transfer the detainees to Zvornik was only agreed upon during a meeting on the night of 13 July. During that meeting, the participants did not debate whether the detainees should be killed, but where such an operation should be carried out.¹⁹⁴⁶⁶ Accordingly, the Chamber considers that the fact that Obrenović was not informed before the evening of 13 July bears little relevance to the question of when the plan to kill the Bosnian Muslim males was devised. The Accused also argues that the fact that the Bosnian Muslim males detained at Luke School were not killed until the evening of 13 July also demonstrates that the plan to kill “only emerged after the Kravica incident”.¹⁹⁴⁶⁷ However, the Chamber recalls that, as described above, Bosnian Muslim men continued to be removed from buses passing through Tišća throughout the day on 13 July, and that during the course of that night, all were removed from Luke School and—with the exception of KDZ070—killed by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces.¹⁹⁴⁶⁸ The Chamber therefore does not consider that the passage of time between the detention of the men and their subsequent execution

¹⁹⁴⁶⁴ The Chamber notes the Accused’s contention that this meeting occurred on the night of 12 July. Defence Final Brief, confidential, para. 2466. However, the Chamber notes that Pandurević attended the meeting at the Bratunac Brigade Command on the night of 11 July. See para. 5692. The Chamber further considers that the argument outlined in paragraph 2466 of the Defence Final Brief does not hinge on the precise date of the meeting.

¹⁹⁴⁶⁵ Defence Final Brief, confidential, para. 2466.

¹⁹⁴⁶⁶ See para. 5312.

indicates that the plan to kill them only arose that evening. Finally, the Chamber recalls that units of the Drina Corps had already begun to look for available bulldozers by the early afternoon of 13 July, although they were unsuccessful in locating any.¹⁹⁴⁶⁹ The Chamber therefore rejects the Accused's argument that the plan to kill the Bosnian Muslim males in Srebrenica arose only after the killings at Kravica Warehouse on the evening of 13 July. Rather, the Chamber considers that this incident marks the beginning of the large scale implementation of the plan to kill.¹⁹⁴⁷⁰

(C) Participants in the plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslim population in Srebrenica

5733. With regard to the aspect of the common plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by forcibly removing the women, children, and elderly men, the Chamber notes the pervasive involvement of high-ranking VRS officers such as Mladić, Živanović, and Krstić in the encirclement and ultimate take-over of Potočari by the Bosnian Serb Forces; the Chamber also notes the execution of a large scale bussing operation which ferried an estimated 30,000 Bosnian Muslims away from Srebrenica over the course of two days. Further, the Chamber is mindful of their presence and participation—as well as that of Main Staff officer Radoslav Janković and Drina Corps officers Popović and Kosorić—in the Hotel Fontana meetings. The Chamber observes that all of these high-level officers were present during, and either oversaw or assisted in, the boarding process in Potočari. Accordingly, the Chamber is satisfied that Mladić, Živanović, Krstić, Popović, and Kosorić shared the common purpose of eliminating the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by forcibly removing the women, children, and elderly men.

5734. The Chamber considers, however, that the aspect of the common plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by killing men and boys was formed and executed in conditions designed to ensure its secrecy to the greatest extent possible. In this regard, the Chamber recalls Mladić's order limiting access to the area beginning on the night of 13 July and Tolimir's proposal to remove the detainees from locations where they could be sighted. While such procedures might ordinarily have been standard, in the present circumstances, in light of the instruction not to speak on the radio or create any written record of the killing operation, the Chamber considers that their actions appear more circumspect. The Chamber also notes that when Beara dispatched Momir Nikolić to inform Drago Nikolić that the Bosnian Muslim males would be brought to Zvornik, Momir drove to Zvornik and insisted on delivering the message to Drago in person rather than through a desk officer.¹⁹⁴⁷¹ The Chamber is therefore satisfied that upon the instruction of members of the Main Staff, a number of measures were taken to limit the extent to which those not directly involved in the killing operation were aware of it.

¹⁹⁴⁶⁹ See para. 5241.

¹⁹⁴⁷⁰ Recalling its earlier analysis of the development of the plan to kill, the Chamber thus rejects the Accused's argument that the killings which followed those at the Kravica Warehouse on 13 July were merely an "inappropriate" reaction to the events at Kravica Warehouse. See Defence Final Brief, para. 2451.

5735. However, the Chamber recalls that, as described in detail above, the killing operation was eventually overseen and implemented on the ground by numerous VRS officers at all levels of the command hierarchy, from the Main Staff to the members of the battalions of the Zvornik and Bratunac Brigades. In this regard, the Chamber is also mindful of the ubiquitousness of security officers from the Main Staff, Drina Corps, and Zvornik Brigade—namely Beara, Popović, and Drago Nikolić—at the killing sites across Zvornik between 14 and 17 July 1995. The Chamber also recalls, as described above, the various units across the MUP and the VRS—including the 10th Sabotage Detachment which was directly subordinated to the Main Staff—that participated in the implementation of the plan.

5736. The Chamber is of the view that by designing and conducting a simultaneous operation to kill the Bosnian Muslim men and boys of Srebrenica while the forcible removal of the women, children, and elderly men was ongoing, the common purpose of the plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica was expanded so as to include the killing of all the men and boys,¹⁹⁴⁷² and multiple members of the plan agreed to it. The Chamber was presented with abundant evidence that establishes that, like the forcible removal operation, the killing operation involved an intricate and co-ordinated effort at all echelons of the VRS and MUP, including high-ranking officers, as well as a variety of units across the MUP and the VRS, with the assistance of municipal authorities. In particular, the Chamber is satisfied that the wide scale of the killings that were carried out over a short period necessitated an elaborate operation organised and directed at all times by multiple levels of the VRS security branch, particularly Beara and Popović.¹⁹⁴⁷³ The Chamber also finds that the complex operation by which the Bosnian Muslim men and boys of Srebrenica were killed would not have been possible without the authorisation and orders of the VRS Commander, Mladić. Given Mladić's role and function at the time, his presence on the ground after the fall of Srebrenica, and his actions during the days following the take-over and while the execution of the operation to kill was underway, the Chamber is satisfied that Mladić formed an essential part of this operation.¹⁹⁴⁷⁴

¹⁹⁴⁷³ See paras. 5702, 5705, 5710–5723.

¹⁹⁴⁷⁴ See paras. 5703, 5705, 5707, 5709, 5709, 5711. The Chamber also notes that Drago Nikolić stated that Mladić had ordered the killing operation, and that Beara and Popović were in charge of it. [REDACTED].

5737. Based on all of the above, and recalling the formation of a plan to kill the Bosnian Muslim males in Srebrenica between the night of 11 July and the morning of 12 July, the Chamber finds that Mladić, Beara, and Popović shared the expanded common purpose of eliminating the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica by killing the men and boys.

5738. Whether the Accused shared the common purpose to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica, and if so, the extent to which he contributed to the plan, will be discussed separately below.¹⁹⁴⁷⁵

(D) Scope of crimes

5739. Based on the evidence set out above and the Chamber's findings thereon, the Chamber considers that the original scope of the common purpose involved the commission of inhumane acts (forcible transfer). Further, on the basis of such evidence, and noting in particular the sheer scale of the killings described above, the Chamber finds that the expanded common purpose of eliminating the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica involved the commission of murder and extermination, and that Mladić, Beara, and Popović intended those crimes. Considering that these killings concerned Bosnian Muslim males who were marked for execution on the basis of their identities as such, the Chamber is satisfied that the crime of persecution through the underlying act of killing was also within the scope of the expanded common purpose, and that Mladić, Popović, and Beara possessed the requisite persecutory intent.

5740. Indeed, the Chamber recalls that the common plan to eliminate was, by its very nature, a discriminatory plan targeting solely the Bosnian Muslims living in the Srebrenica enclave. In addition, the Chamber considers that, as described above, the circumstances in which the forcible removal of the Bosnian Muslim women, children and elderly men and the execution of the Bosnian Muslim males were carried out were demonstrative of a deliberate intent to inflict serious physical and mental suffering upon them.¹⁹⁴⁷⁶ Accordingly, the Chamber finds that the crime of persecution through the underlying act of cruel treatment was within the scope of the common purpose of the Srebrenica JCE.

5741. Further, the Chamber has found that the acts described above amounted to genocide, as the only reasonable inference based on the pattern of the killings and the evident intent to kill every able-bodied Bosnian Muslim male from Srebrenica was that such killings were committed with the ¹⁹⁴⁷⁵ See Section IV.C.3.b: Accused's participation in the Srebrenica JCE.

¹⁹⁴⁷⁶ See paras. 5647–5648, 5650. See also paras. 5691–5700.

intent to destroy the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica.¹⁹⁴⁷⁷ The Chamber notes in particular the Bosnian Serb Forces' vigorous pursuit of the members of the column and their dogged commitment to killing all Bosnian Muslim males taken into Bosnian Serb custody, irrespective of whether they were combatants or civilians and regardless of whether they were captured or had surrendered from the column. The Chamber notes the omnipresence and involvement of Popović and Beara at multiple mass killing sites in Zvornik, their numerous actions in furtherance of the killing operation as detailed above, and the fact that, as the Chamber has found, the vast killing operation was conducted with Mladić's essential involvement. On the basis of all of the evidence, the Chamber is therefore satisfied that the members of the Srebrenica JCE who agreed to the expansion of means so as to encompass the killing of the men and boys intended to kill all the able-bodied Bosnian Muslim males, which intent in the circumstances is tantamount to the intent to destroy the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica.¹⁹⁴⁷⁸

5742. With regard to the scope of the operation, the Chamber has established above that the large scale killings committed in the Bratunac and Zvornik areas were committed pursuant to the common plan to kill the Bosnian Muslim males of Srebrenica.¹⁹⁴⁷⁹ Below, the Chamber will consider whether other incidents also fell within the scope of the same killing operation.

5743. The Chamber further recalls that during the forcible removal of the Bosnian Muslim women, children, and elderly men, which was carried out between 12 and 13 July, the Bosnian Serb Forces killed a number of Bosnian Muslim males in Potočari.¹⁹⁴⁸⁰ Some of the Bosnian Muslim males who were separated in Potočari and bussed to Bratunac were killed by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces while being held there between 12 and 14 July.¹⁹⁴⁸¹ Bosnian Muslim males who did manage to board the buses heading toward Tuzla were taken off at Luke School and were killed by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces in the very early hours of 14 July.¹⁹⁴⁸² Meanwhile, on 13 July, members of the Bosnian Serb Forces, including one member of the Bratunac SJB, killed 15 Bosnian Muslim men from the column in an isolated area on the bank of the Jadar River.¹⁹⁴⁸³

¹⁹⁴⁷⁹ See paras. 5728–5732.

¹⁹⁴⁸⁰ During the course of the day on 13 July, members of the Bosnian Serb Forces killed one Bosnian Muslim man behind the White House. See para. 5145. Additionally, on the same day, members of the Bosnian Serb Forces killed nine Bosnian Muslim men in a meadow southwest of the White House. See para. 5141.

¹⁹⁴⁸¹ See paras. 5303, 5306.

¹⁹⁴⁸² See paras. 5150, 5152, 5154. The Chamber has already rejected the Accused's argument that the fact that the Bosnian Muslim males were held at Luke School until around midnight on 13 July demonstrates that the plan to kill did not arise until after the killings at Kravica Warehouse. See para. 5732.

¹⁹⁴⁸³ See para. 5205. The Accused asserts that the killings at Jadar River did not form part of the common plan because they occurred prior to the killings at the Kravica Warehouse. Defence Final Brief, para. 2497.

That same evening, members of the Bosnian Serb Forces killed another 15 Bosnian Muslim men from the column who had been detained at the Sandići Meadow.¹⁹⁴⁸⁴ These killings were temporally and geographically proximate, they were each carried out by units of the Bosnian Serb Forces deployed in the area and operating under the overall command of Mladić,¹⁹⁴⁸⁵ and the victims of each incident were Bosnian Muslim males from Srebrenica.

5744. The Chamber also received evidence that the Bosnian Serb Forces—including members of the 10th Sabotage Detachment and the MUP—killed other groups of Bosnian Muslim males from Srebrenica at Snagovo and Bišina over the course of the week following the large scale killings in Zvornik, which ended on 16 July.¹⁹⁴⁸⁶ The Chamber notes the geographical proximity of these two killing sites to the large scale execution sites in Zvornik, as well as the presence of Popović himself at Bišina.¹⁹⁴⁸⁷

5745. The Chamber further recalls that during the attack on Srebrenica, a part of the joint forces operating on the Sarajevo front near Trnovo was detached and sent to the Srebrenica sector under Borovčanin's command, while another part, including the Scorpions, remained behind.¹⁹⁴⁸⁸ After the fall of Srebrenica to Bosnian Serb Forces, two members of the Scorpions unit were ordered by their commander to take a bus and a TAM truck to Srebrenica, where they would assist in transporting Bosnian Muslim male detainees.¹⁹⁴⁸⁹ The Chamber has already found that the Scorpions transported multiple groups of Bosnian Muslim males who had been detained in Srebrenica, and that at some point, a "final group" of six was brought to the Scorpions command post in Trnovo, where Medić ordered that they be killed.¹⁹⁴⁹⁰ The unit complied and the men were executed.¹⁹⁴⁹¹ The Chamber notes that it has not received evidence which would allow it to precisely determine the date on which these executions occurred. The Chamber is also mindful of

However, the Chamber has already found that the common plan was established by the time the third Hotel Fontana meeting commenced at 10 a.m. on 12 July. See para. 5731.

¹⁹⁴⁸⁵ As described above, following his arrival in Bratunac on 8 July and at the Drina Corps IKM on 9 July, Mladić assumed overall command of the Bosnian Serb Forces in the area—namely, the VRS and MUP—as demonstrated by his relaying to subordinate units the Accused's order to take the town; his prominent role on the ground in Potočari, as well as at the meetings at the Hotel Fontana and Bratunac Brigade Command; and his orders mobilising Bosnian Serb personnel and materiel. See paras. 5687–5692, 5695–5697, 5699–5700, 5703, 5705, 5707, 5709, 5711, fn. 19474.

the geographic distance between Trnovo and Srebrenica. However, noting the involvement of members of the Scorpions unit in the process of transporting Bosnian Muslim male detainees in Srebrenica during the killing operation described above, the Chamber is satisfied that the Trnovo killings were carried out as part of the same operation described above.

b. Accused's participation in the Srebrenica JCE

i. Submissions of the parties

5746. According to the Indictment, the Accused committed the crimes referred to above by virtue of his participation in the Srebrenica JCE.¹⁹⁴⁹² The Indictment further claims that the Accused shared the intent for the commission of each of the crimes set forth above with other members of the Srebrenica JCE, including Mladić.¹⁹⁴⁹³ According to the Prosecution, each of the members of the Srebrenica JCE, including the Accused, contributed to achieving its objective by their acts or omissions.¹⁹⁴⁹⁴ Specifically, the Prosecution claims that the ways in which the Accused significantly contributed to achieving the objective of eliminating the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica are all reflected in the following three main categories of actions and/or omissions.¹⁹⁴⁹⁵

5747. First, the Prosecution submits that the Accused directed and authorised his subordinates within the "three branches of the RS" involved in the forcible removal and killings operations, namely the VRS, the MUP, and the civilian authorities.¹⁹⁴⁹⁶ In this regard, the Prosecution claims that, as President of the RS and Supreme Commander of the VRS, the Accused was the only individual in the RS with de jure and de facto authority over the VRS, the MUP, and the civilian authorities, all of whom were involved in the forcible removal of Bosnian Muslim women, children, and elderly men from Srebrenica, as well as in the killing of the men and boys.¹⁹⁴⁹⁷ It alleges that the Accused alone could direct, approve, and authorise the participation of all three branches in the forcible removal and murder operations, and that all three branches obeyed his orders, acted in concert, and reported to him while carrying out such operations.¹⁹⁴⁹⁸ The Prosecution further claims that there were both official and unofficial functioning chains of reporting to the Accused during the Srebrenica events, and that he was kept informed through various means, such as regular telephone conversations, in-person contacts with his subordinates, and written reports.¹⁹⁴⁹⁹ According to the Prosecution, these streams of information put the Accused on notice of the crimes committed in Srebrenica, including the executions of the men, “almost immediately”.¹⁹⁵⁰⁰ As such, the Accused directed his subordinates to carry out specific acts in furtherance of the objectives of the Srebrenica JCE.¹⁹⁵⁰¹

5748. Second, the Prosecution argues that the Accused participated in the design and formulation of acts carried out by his subordinates in the implementation of the Srebrenica JCE.¹⁹⁵⁰² The Prosecution claims that this occurred primarily through the issuance of orders and the maintenance of oversight.¹⁹⁵⁰³

5749. Third, the Prosecution contends that—by (i) deliberately failing to take measures to prevent, punish, or investigate his subordinates’ involvement in crimes which he knew were being and had been committed pursuant to the Srebrenica JCE and (ii) praising and promoting key members of the Srebrenica JCE—the Accused failed to protect the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica, and created and sustained an environment of impunity through which he encouraged the ongoing implementation of the Srebrenica JCE.¹⁹⁵⁰⁴

5750. In relation to intent, the Prosecution claims that the Accused, together with other members of the Srebrenica JCE, shared the intent to destroy the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica, and explains that this intent manifested itself through the Accused’s acts, omissions and statements, as well as through the systematic, co-ordinated, and targeted manner in which the genocidal acts were carried out.¹⁹⁵⁰⁵ According to the Prosecution, the Accused’s endorsement of the genocide plan was both necessary and instrumental to its success.¹⁹⁵⁰⁶ The Accused’s genocidal intent was also made clear by his statements after the events took place and in his efforts to cover up the forcible removal and killing operations.¹⁹⁵⁰⁷

5751. The Accused argues that to be a member of a JCE, a person must form an agreement with others that a crime will be carried out, and that in this instance it must be proven that the agreement was “not only to murder, or exterminate the men of Srebrenica, but that it was to commit genocide”.¹⁹⁵⁰⁸ The Accused contends that even if some of the VRS members formed an agreement to commit genocide, there is no evidence indicating that he agreed to such a plan.¹⁹⁵⁰⁹ Accordingly, the Accused submits, it has not been established beyond reasonable doubt that he was among a plurality of persons who formed a common plan to commit genocide.¹⁹⁵¹⁰

5752. The Accused also claims that he was never informed about the execution of Bosnian Muslim males from Srebrenica, and that the Prosecution failed to adduce sufficient evidence to conclude beyond reasonable doubt that he was informed, either through meetings, by telephone, or through written reports, of any facts from which he could conclude that genocide would be, was being, or had been committed in Srebrenica.¹⁹⁵¹¹ In this regard, the Accused contends that knowledge of a crime cannot be inferred merely from contact with others who had such knowledge, and adds that the fact that he had various means of communication available to him is not enough to conclude that he had knowledge of the occurrence of a crime.¹⁹⁵¹² Pointing to events after July 1995, including his acts and conduct, international media and reports of killings, the indictment against him, and his efforts to investigate and prosecute the evidence surrounding Srebrenica, the Accused argues that each of these establish that he was not informed of “genocidal” executions.¹⁹⁵¹³ Accordingly, the Accused submits, there is reasonable doubt concerning his knowledge, and he cannot be held liable for the execution of Bosnian Muslim males.¹⁹⁵¹⁴

5753. The Accused further submits that he did not contribute to the execution of a “genocidal plan” and that any alleged omission by him to punish persons for genocide in Srebrenica cannot constitute a significant contribution.¹⁹⁵¹⁵ Finally, the Accused submits that he never shared genocidal intent.¹⁹⁵¹⁶

5755. The Chamber has found above that as Srebrenica fell, Mladić, Živanović, Krstić, Popović, and Kosorić formed a common plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by forcibly removing the women, children, and elderly men.¹⁹⁵¹⁸ This plan expanded to encompass the killing of the men and boys sometime between the night of 11 July and the morning of 12 July, prior to the commencement of the third meeting at the Hotel Fontana.¹⁹⁵¹⁹ The Chamber has also found that at least Mladić, Beara, and Popović shared this expanded common purpose.¹⁹⁵²⁰ The Chamber will now examine whether the Accused also shared the common purpose; if so, whether he significantly contributed to it; and finally, whether he shared the intent for the commission of each of the crimes set forth above.

ii. Accused's acts and conduct in context

5756. As the Chamber has described above, the Accused issued Directive 7, which included an order to the Drina Corps to "create an unbearable situation of total insecurity with no hope of further survival or life for the inhabitants of Srebrenica or Žepa", on 8 March 1995.¹⁹⁵²¹ The Chamber recalls that Directive 7 instructed the "relevant State and military organs responsible for work with UNPROFOR and humanitarian aid organisations" to "unobtrusively" reduce the re-supply of UNPROFOR and limit humanitarian aid to the Bosnian Muslim population, thereby "making them dependent on [the Bosnian Serbs'] good will while at the same time avoiding condemnation by the international community and international public opinion".¹⁹⁵²² The Chamber has already found that this directive was indeed implemented through the subsequent restriction of access to Srebrenica for humanitarian aid and UNPROFOR re-supply convoys as described above.¹⁹⁵²³

5757. Six days after issuing Directive 7, the Accused issued a decision forming a State Committee for Co-operation with the UN and International Humanitarian Organisations (“State Committee”), which—pursuant to the decision of the Accused—was headed by Koljević.¹⁹⁵²⁴ Following its formation, the State Committee was responsible for approving the passage of humanitarian aid convoys, while the VRS was responsible for approving the passage of UNPROFOR re-supply convoys and retained the right to disagree with the decisions of the State Committee, as well as control over the movement of the convoys.¹⁹⁵²⁵ However, before negotiating with UNPROFOR, the Main Staff informed the Accused and the RS Presidency about its activities and sought “guidance” in relation to such matters; the Accused thus controlled the policy of restriction which was implemented by Mladić.¹⁹⁵²⁶

5758. Additionally, in a series of meetings with UNPROFOR which took place in the spring of 1995, the Accused stated that he would not allow humanitarian aid to reach the eastern enclaves, including Srebrenica, as long as the Bosnian Serbs were subject to international sanctions.¹⁹⁵²⁷ At the beginning of June, the Accused co-ordinated closely with Mladić regarding the passage of convoys in anticipation of Slobodan Milošević conducting negotiations to lift the sanctions.¹⁹⁵²⁸ The Chamber is thus satisfied that the Accused maintained control over the passage of convoys during the weeks and months following the issuance of Directive 7; during that time, conditions in Srebrenica deteriorated to disastrous levels and by the end of June, some residents had died of starvation.¹⁹⁵²⁹

The Accused also stated that he had information that the enclaves were well supplied and that aid was being used to supply the ABiH. The Chamber recalls its finding that while isolated incidents of misappropriation or smuggling may have occurred, neither UNPROFOR nor the humanitarian aid organisations supplied the ABiH as a matter of practice; the Chamber further recalls its determination that the regulations on convoy movement were applied arbitrarily and ultimately inhibited the flow of humanitarian aid to Srebrenica completely. See fn. 16804.

5759. The Chamber further recalls that on 28 June 1995, the Accused and Krajišnik visited Krstić, who was then Deputy Commander of the Drina Corps, at the Drina Corps Command in Vlasenica and gave him a combat assignment.¹⁹⁵³⁰ Several days later, Živanović, who was then Commander of the Drina Corps, issued an order for active combat operations aimed at splitting the enclaves of Srebrenica and Žepa and reducing them to their urban areas.¹⁹⁵³¹ The Bosnian Serb Forces initially made slow progress towards Srebrenica; when on 8 July Živanović enquired about the possibility of obtaining reinforcements from the RS MUP, the Accused told him that the Drina Corps would have to proceed with its own forces as “the entire MUP” was engaged elsewhere.¹⁹⁵³² Živanović nevertheless requested that a company of Zvornik MUP forces be engaged as reserve forces for Drina Corps units in his daily combat report that evening.¹⁹⁵³³

5760. The Chamber recalls that in the late afternoon on the following day, Tolimir contacted the Accused and relayed the information that the conditions for taking Srebrenica had been created, and the Accused then approved the expansion of the Krivaja 95 plan and ordered the Bosnian Serb Forces to take over the town.¹⁹⁵³⁴ On 10 July, pursuant to an order from the Accused, part of the MUP forces which had been deployed in the Trnovo area were redeployed towards Srebrenica.¹⁹⁵³⁵ Between 5 and 5:20 p.m. on 10 July, the Accused met with Dragan Kijac, the head of the RDB, and Milenko Karišik, the head of the RJB.¹⁹⁵³⁶

5761. Late in the afternoon on 11 July, after previously telling the Accused that “everything [wa]s going according to plan and do not worry”, Gvero informed the Accused that the Bosnian Serb Forces had taken Srebrenica.¹⁹⁵³⁷ This information was also included in the daily combat report the Accused received from the Main Staff that evening, which stated that the VRS had entered Srebrenica town.¹⁹⁵³⁸ That evening, the Accused issued three orders which pertained to the situation on the ground in Srebrenica; the first two established Bosnian Serb municipal structures there. First, the Accused appointed Deronjić as civilian commissioner for Srebrenica and determined the functions he should have while holding that post.¹⁹⁵³⁹ Second, the Accused issued an order to the RS MUP to form an SJB in “Serb Srebrenica”.¹⁹⁵⁴⁰ According to the order, the RS MUP was instructed to establish close co-operation with Deronjić.¹⁹⁵⁴¹ Third, the Accused issued an order stating that henceforth, only the State Committee would give approval for humanitarian convoys, following prior consultations with the Accused himself.¹⁹⁵⁴²

5762. Between 10:30 and 10:45 p.m. on 11 July, the Accused met in his office with Karišik.¹⁹⁵⁴³ Later that night, at 1 a.m. on 12 July, the Accused had a brief telephone conversation with ¹⁹⁵³⁹ See para. 5693. The Chamber further recalls that while meeting with approximately 20 “Serb officials in Srebrenica” that evening, Deronjić established a telephone connection with the Accused, who told the attendees at the meeting that Deronjić was “directly responsible with his life” for all civilian affairs in Srebrenica and that all others were to report directly to Deronjić. Failure to implement the order was to result in swift legal sanctions. P5183 (RS Presidential Order, 11 July 1995), para. 8.

¹⁹⁵⁴³ P2242 (Radovan Karadžić’s agenda, 2 January–25 December 1995), e-court p. 90; D3749 (Witness statement of Milenko Karišik dated 23 June 2013), para. 60. The Prosecution claims that the purpose of Karišik’s visit to the Accused that evening was to report on the deployment of MUP forces to the Srebrenica area. Prosecution Final Brief, para. 905. The Chamber notes that Karišik first testified that he did not recall the meeting specifically, and asserted that, at the time, he had “focused on the fierce fighting that was going on around Sarajevo” and could not recall having any discussions with the Accused regarding Srebrenica. D3749 (Witness statement of Milenko Karišik dated 23 June 2013), para. 60; Milenko Karišik, T. 40608 (27 June 2013), T. 40679–40681 (2 July 2013). See also D3756 (SRNA news report, 7 July 1995); D3757 (SRNA news report, 13 July 1995); D3758 (SRNA news report, 14 July 1995). Furthermore, Karišik affirmatively stated that he had not discussed Srebrenica with the Accused because he had had no information about Srebrenica at the time. Milenko Karišik, T. 40615–40616 (27 June 2013). The Chamber notes, however, that during the days leading up to, and on the day of, his meeting with the Accused and Kijac on 10 July, Karišik had been receiving information from the RDB updating him on the progress of VRS forces towards Srebrenica and other relevant military updates. See e.g. P4927 (Report of Bijeljina RDB, 6 July 1995) (addressed to the RS MUP and the VRS Security Department and reporting intelligence that Naser Orić sought to return from Tuzla to Srebrenica at the time); P4928 (Report of Sarajevo RDB, 6 July 1995) (forwarding P4927 to Karišik personally); P4932 (Report of Bijeljina RDB, 10 July 1995) (addressed to the RS MUP and the VRS Security Department and reporting intelligence about VRS progress towards Srebrenica as well as intelligence regarding the requests of members of the Muslim Forces in Srebrenica then deployed around Sarajevo to return to the enclave); P4933 (Report of Sarajevo RDB, 10 July 1995) (forwarding P4932 to Karišik personally). This reporting continued during the following days. See P5089 (Report of Sarajevo RDB, 11 July 1995); P2986 (Report of Sarajevo RDB, 12 July 1995); P5091 (Report of Sarajevo RDB, 12 July 1995); P4936 (Report of Sarajevo RDB, 12 July 1995); P4939 (Report of Sarajevo RDB, 12 July 1995) (all addressed to Karišik personally). Furthermore, that day, Karišik had in fact travelled to Zvornik, where he “expressed an interest” in the work of the Zvornik SJB. P6190 (Excerpt from Mane Đurić’s diary), e-court p. 1; Mane Đurić, T. 35037 (7 March 2013). See also P4581 (Excerpt from tactical intercept notebook, 11 July 1995) (demonstrating that Karišik, a.k.a. “Karlo”, was on the ground in Zvornik on 11 July); Milenko Karišik, T. 40612–40615 (27 June 2013) (accepting that “Karlo” was his nickname). That day, Karišik had received a report from the DB that the Muslim Forces in Srebrenica “had enough forces to stop a Serbian offensive”. P5089 (Report of Sarajevo RDB, 11 July 1995). At the time, one company of the PJP of the Zvornik CJB was preparing to deploy to Srebrenica in order to reinforce the VRS pursuant to the Accused’s order of the previous day. See fn. 16976. When presented with this evidence, Karišik continued to claim that he could not recall whether he had made such a trip, although he eventually accepted that it was a possibility. Milenko Karišik, T. 40611–40615 (27 June 2013). The Chamber considers that Karišik had an interest in distancing himself from the events in Srebrenica and that his evidence in this regard was marked by insincerity and evasiveness. See e.g. D3749 (Witness statement of Milenko Karišik dated 23 June 2013), paras. 40, 60; Milenko Karišik, T. 40590–40594, 40604, 40608–40609, 40617–40624 (27 June 2013). The Chamber finds that Živanović.¹⁹⁵⁴⁴ Živanović testified that he updated the Accused on the “liberation” of Srebrenica and told him that there had been no casualties on either side.¹⁹⁵⁴⁵ According to Živanović, the Accused was satisfied with that fact, and the conversation ended.¹⁹⁵⁴⁶

5763. Around the same time, Kovač forwarded the Accused’s order to the RS MUP to form an SJB in “Serb Srebrenica” to Vasić, the Chief of the Zvornik CJB at the time, further ordering him to establish the SJB in Srebrenica that day while ensuring close co-operation with Deronjić.¹⁹⁵⁴⁷ Regardless of how the order was transmitted to Vasić, it is clear to the Chamber that it was implemented. The Chamber recalls that around 8 a.m. on 12 July, Vasić met with Mladić, Krstić, and Deronjić at the Bratunac Brigade Command.¹⁹⁵⁴⁸ Following that meeting, Vasić reported to Kovač that, as ordered, he had contacted Deronjić and had met with Mladić and Krstić during the 8 a.m. meeting at the Bratunac Brigade Command, where “tasks were assigned to all participants”.¹⁹⁵⁴⁹ Vasić also informed Kovač that the third Hotel Fontana meeting was taking place at 10 a.m. in order to reach an agreement on the “evacuation of the civilian population from Potočari to Kladanj”, and that 100 trailer trucks had already been provided for that purpose.¹⁹⁵⁵⁰ Finally, Vasić reported that joint police forces were advancing on Potočari “with the aim of taking Karišik’s evidence was replete with evasiveness and contradictions, and concludes that despite his denial, Karišik in fact travelled to Zvornik. However, the Chamber will not make a finding as to the content of the conversation between Karišik and the Accused during their meeting on the night of 11 July.

¹⁹⁵⁴⁷ P2995 (Radovan Karadžić’s 11 July 1995 Order, forwarded by RS MUP, 12 July 1995); Christian Nielsen, T. 16338–16339 (7 July 2011). Kovač also forwarded the Accused’s order requiring the approval for the passage of humanitarian aid convoys through RS territory to be given exclusively by the State Committee following consultation with him personally; Kovač’s order incorporated additional instructions for the implementation of the Accused’s order. P2997 (Radovan Karadžić’s Order, forwarded by the RS MUP on 12 July 1995). The Chamber notes that although in an interview with the Prosecution in 2003, Kovač stated that the RS MUP order forwarding the Accused’s order to Vasić had come from his office with his knowledge, when testifying in this case, Kovač denied having signed this order or having been aware of it at the time. Tomislav Kovač, T. 42738–42741 (1 November 2013). See also D3960 (Witness Statement of Tomislav Kovač dated 28 October 2013), para. 115 (asserting that the MUP had issued an order for the implementation of the Accused’s decision). The Chamber notes that despite the existence of this apparent discrepancy, Kovač refused to acknowledge it. Tomislav Kovač, T. 42740–42741 (1 November 2013). The Chamber also recalls that at the outset of his testimony, Kovač testified to the truthfulness of his prior interviews. Tomislav Kovač, T. 42718 (31 October 2013). The Chamber refers to its credibility assessment of Kovač at para. 5766.

¹⁹⁵⁴⁸ See para. 5086.

¹⁹⁵⁴⁹ P2996 (Report of Zvornik CJB, 12 July 1995), paras. 1–2. The Chamber notes that when presented with Vasić’s report, Kovač asserted that the RS MUP was only interested in its content to the extent that it pertained to Vasić’s compliance with the order to establish an SJB in Srebrenica. Tomislav Kovač, T. 42742–42745 (1 November 2013). Noting that the sole addressees of Vasić’s report were RS MUP entities, the Chamber considers that the only reasonable inference is that Vasić included the totality of the information described above in order to inform his superiors in the RS MUP. The Chamber finds Kovač’s assertion that the remainder of that information was of no interest to the RS MUP absurd and does not accept it.

¹⁹⁵⁵⁰ P2996 (Report of Zvornik CJB, 12 July 1995), para. 5.

UNPROFOR personnel prisoner, surrounding the entire civilian population, and clearing the terrain of enemy groups”.¹⁹⁵⁵¹

5764. On the night of 11 July and into the following day, Kovač was personally informed by Kijac that while an estimated 40,000 Bosnian Muslims had begun to gather in and around the UN Compound in Potočari, there were very few able-bodied men amongst this group.¹⁹⁵⁵² When, during the course of the night between 11 and 12 July, the Bosnian Serb Forces became aware of the existence and movement of the column of Bosnian Muslim men, Drina Corps and—at Kovač’s direction—MUP units were sent to intercept the column and “mo[p] up the terrain”.¹⁹⁵⁵³

5765. Vasić continued to report to his superiors in the RS MUP throughout 12 and 13 July, noting the absence of Bosnian Muslim males in Potočari, their suspected whereabouts, and efforts to intercept the column of Bosnian Muslim males. Following his initial report on 12 July, Vasić reported that of an estimated 25,000 people gathered in Potočari, less than 10% were able-bodied males, and although they had requested free passage, “depending on Mladić’s decision, able-bodied men may be allowed to go in order to have the others from the woods to surrender, since our command urged them to do so”.¹⁹⁵⁵⁴ Around 5:30 p.m., Vasić relayed to Kovač intelligence from the Zvornik CJB, which had learned that an estimated 8,000 “men of military age” were in the Konjević Polje and Sandići sector.¹⁹⁵⁵⁵ On 13 July, Vasić reported to Kovač’s and Karišik’s respective offices that although the MUP forces were attempting to block the column, because such forces were “working alone” without the assistance of the VRS, “a lot of problems c[ould] be expected until the operation [wa]s completed”.¹⁹⁵⁵⁶ Later,¹⁹⁵⁵⁷ Vasić sent a further report to the same recipients stating that after having met with Mladić that morning,¹⁹⁵⁵⁸ the VRS was “continuing operations towards Žepa and leaving all other work to the MUP”, including the transport of an estimated remaining 15,000 Bosnian Muslims to Kladanj, and the “killing of about ¹⁹⁵⁵⁸ The Chamber recalls that that morning, Vasić met with Mladić, Krstić, Popović, and Pandurević at the Bratunac Brigade Command. See para. 5705.

8,000 Bosnian Muslim soldiers whom we blocked in the woods near Konjević Polje”.¹⁹⁵⁵⁹ Thereafter, Kovač began personally forwarding to Vasić intelligence that the RS MUP had received from the VRS.¹⁹⁵⁶⁰ That day, Kovač also dispatched a company of the Doboj PJP to Zvornik.¹⁹⁵⁶¹

5766. Between 3:50 and 4:10 p.m. on 13 July, the Accused met Kovač in Pale.¹⁹⁵⁶² Immediately thereafter, Kovač departed towards Vlasenica.¹⁹⁵⁶³ The Chamber notes that Kovač testified that during this meeting, he and the Accused discussed the situation around Sarajevo, which Kovač claimed he had felt was of far greater concern at the time.¹⁹⁵⁶⁴ However, having analysed the entirety of Kovač’s testimony in light of the totality of the evidence, the Chamber notes numerous internal inconsistencies within Kovač’s testimony,¹⁹⁵⁶⁵ as well as inconsistencies with prior statements given under oath.¹⁹⁵⁶⁶ In the Chamber’s view, these inconsistencies, as well the evasiveness and even intermittent combativeness displayed by Kovač throughout his testimony,¹⁹⁵⁶⁷ arise from Kovač’s efforts to minimise his own involvement in the events in Srebrenica in July

¹⁹⁵⁶⁵ For example, after first adopting testimony from a prior case in which he had stated that he had gone to the Srebrenica area pursuant to an order from the Accused, Kovač later denied that he had done so. Compare Tomislav Kovač, T. 42766–42767 (1 November 2013) with Tomislav Kovač, T. 42792–42793 (1 November 2013) (stating that he had gone to the field of his own volition) and Tomislav Kovač, T. 42840–42841 (4 November 2013). Compare also D3960 (Witness statement of Tomislav Kovač dated 28 October 2013), para. 124 with Tomislav Kovač, T. 42785–42789 (1 November 2013).

1995.¹⁹⁵⁶⁸ The Chamber has therefore approached his testimony with extreme caution and has only relied upon it where it is consistent with other evidence.

5767. In this regard, the Chamber is mindful that from the commencement of the Srebrenica operation on 6 July, Kovač had been receiving reports which were forwarded to him personally by Kijac and contained intelligence from the DB and the VRS regarding the progress of the Srebrenica operation.¹⁹⁵⁶⁹ This continued throughout the day on 12 and 13 July.¹⁹⁵⁷⁰ At the same time, Kovač had begun receiving updates from Vasić—and responded to the developments described by Vasić by forwarding information received by the VRS to him directly—as described above.¹⁹⁵⁷¹ Against this backdrop, mindful of the fact that the RS MUP units had been deployed to the Srebrenica sector pursuant to the Accused’s order which was conveyed through Kovač, and considering that Kovač departed immediately towards Vlasenica following their meeting, the Chamber finds it inconceivable that Kovač did not discuss the developments on the ground in Srebrenica—including the reports he had received from the DB, as well as the communications received from Vasić and his own response—with the Accused during their meeting on 13 July.

¹⁹⁵⁶⁸ For example, even when presented with evidence demonstrating that he had ordered the further deployment of “all available guides with police dogs” to Srebrenica on 12 July, Kovač insisted that there had been no need for the MUP to be sent to Srebrenica. Tomislav Kovač, T. 42721 (31 October 2013), T. 42747 (1 November 2013); P4934 (RS MUP Order to the centre for the breeding and training of police dogs, 12 July 1995). He stated that MUP forces were only deployed in order to secure roads and disclaimed any knowledge of DB operatives being involved in the separation and interrogation of men in Potočari. Tomislav Kovač, T. 42721 (31 October 2013) (stating that “only the Sarajevo front was under threat” at the time); Tomislav Kovač, T. 42749–42752, 42755, 42794–42795 (1 November 2013) (distancing himself from the work of the DB before accepting that Kijac had addressed documents to him personally).

See also P5089 (Report of Sarajevo RDB, 11 July 1995).

¹⁹⁵⁷⁰ P2986 (Report of Sarajevo RDB, 12 July 1995) (reporting that by 4 p.m. on 11 July, 20,000 Bosnian Muslims had gathered in Potočari, that by 5 p.m. on the same day, 60,000 “refugees” had “left Srebrenica for the north”, and that the latter’s overall position was expected to be “hopeless in 48 hours”); P5091 (Report of Sarajevo RDB, 12 July 1995) (reporting that the VRS had advanced towards Potočari, where an estimated 10,000 Bosnian Muslims were reported to be staying on the premises of the UN Compound); P4936 (Report of Sarajevo RDB, 12 July 1995) (providing an update indicating that 30,000 Bosnian Muslims had gathered around the UN Compound, another 8,000 were still attempting to reach it, and stating that “according to reports by military observers, there is not a single armed soldier of the so-called BH Army among th[e] people” present in Potočari and referred to possible means that had been proposed “in the event of evacuation of the population via Zvornik, as reportedly proposed by the Serbian side”); P4939 (Report of Sarajevo RDB, 12 July 1995) (reporting sometime after 4 p.m. on the movement of a column composed of “several thousand people, most of them conscripts from the Srebrenica area” and that approximately 8,500 people—mostly women and children—had been transported that afternoon and reiterating that there were “hardly any” able-bodied men fit for fighting in Potočari); P4389 (Report of Sarajevo RDB, 13 July 1995), p. 1 (reporting that the Bosnian Serb Forces had captured over 300 members of the column during the night between 12 and 13 July); D4152 (Report of Sarajevo RDB, 13 July 1995) (reporting that a UN observer patrol reported to its base in Živnice that a column of refugees from Srebrenica was moving towards Živnice). Kovač continued to receive such reports on 14 July as well. See e.g. P5093 (Report of Sarajevo RDB, 14 July 1995); P5092 (Report of Sarajevo RDB, 14 July 1995); D2058 (Letter from RDB to Bijeljina Public Security Department, 14 July 1995) (noting that the DB’s reports had been submitted to the Zvornik SJB and PJP as well as Borovčanin in the field).

5768. After Kovač's departure, between 5 and 6:40 p.m., the Accused met with three members of the Serbian diaspora,¹⁹⁵⁷² Srđa Trifković, Tomislav Premović, and Slavica Ristić.¹⁹⁵⁷³ Zametica and Krajišnik also attended the meeting intermittently.¹⁹⁵⁷⁴ According to Ristić, the outset of the meeting was very relaxed, as the Accused was attempting to establish an external telephone connection with "somebody",¹⁹⁵⁷⁵ while Ristić chatted with Krajišnik.¹⁹⁵⁷⁶ At one point during the meeting, a telephone connection was established, and the Accused had an hour-long conversation, part of which occurred over the speakerphone.¹⁹⁵⁷⁷ Ristić recalled that it had been very difficult to hear because the line kept going down.¹⁹⁵⁷⁸ However, the end result of the conversation was that Trifković, who had met the Accused in 1993, arranged the visit to Pale in July 1995 and invited Ristić and Premović to accompany him. The Chamber notes that Premović insisted that his memory of the meeting was limited because it had just been "a friendly visit" that consisted mostly of "small talk". P4911 (Tomislav Premović's interview with the OTP, 27 April 2009), pp. 61, 72. Premović also exhibited confusion regarding the date when the meeting had occurred, as well as whether it had taken place on the day he arrived or the following. See P4911 (Tomislav Premović's interview with the OTP, 27 April 2009), pp. 42–44, 51–54; Tomislav Premović, T. 27391, 27406, 27419 (12 April 2012). However, based on the totality of evidence before it, the Chamber is satisfied that Premović described the same meeting attended by Ristić and Trifković, and that it took place on 13 July. The Chamber also notes that throughout his evidence, Trifković gave many indications of bias, including making negative comments against the Tribunal, as well as against the Islamic faith. See e.g. Srđa Trifković, T. 33337–33359 (6 February 2013); P6099 (Article from Mission Europa Netzwerk Karl Martell entitled "Can the West be Saved?", 10 May 2008); P6100 (Article from Chronicles Magazine entitled "Dinesh the Dhimmi", 26 January 2007); P6101 (Article from Pogledi entitled "Islamic Terrorism in Italy: Shape of Things to Come", 27 February 2002); P6098 (Video clip of Srđa Trifković's university speech, with transcript) (making reference to a "traitor class"). In the Chamber's view, Trifković's evidence was so vitriolic and partisan that the Chamber approached his evidence with the utmost caution and circumspection. The Chamber has therefore only relied upon his evidence where corroborated by Ristić and Premović.

¹⁹⁵⁷⁵ According to Ristić, the Accused had only one phone on his desk, but he "would go outside to talk to somebody to get him the line or — he was very frustrated: get me the line, or what's wrong with the line or [...] so whether another phone, I don't know." Ristić further described the Accused as mostly listening and giving responses such as "uh-huh" or "okay", and did not remember him asking any questions. P4556 (Slavica Ristić's interview with OTP, 5 April 2009), pp. 38–39; Slavica Ristić, T. 26088 (12 March 2012); P4911 (Tomislav Premović's interview with the OTP, 27 April 2009), p. 64 (describing the Accused as mainly responding with "okay").

the participants in the meeting understood that Srebrenica “[wa]s done”.¹⁹⁵⁷⁹ At the end of the conversation, the Accused thanked the person to whom he was speaking personally.¹⁹⁵⁸⁰ The Accused also “awarded, rewarded and promoted a couple [...] of the generals”, including Krstić.¹⁹⁵⁸¹

5769. Ristić testified that the Accused had addressed the person on the other end of the line as “General Mladić”.¹⁹⁵⁸² Premović also testified that the person who had called the Accused during their meeting was Mladić.¹⁹⁵⁸³ The Chamber notes that Trifković insisted that the Accused did not speak with Mladić;¹⁹⁵⁸⁴ however, the Chamber recalls its assessment of Trifković’s credibility outlined above.¹⁹⁵⁸⁵ The Accused acknowledges having spoken to someone from the VRS who informed him about the situation in Srebrenica, but denies that he actually spoke with Mladić, referring to “conflicting evidence”, and citing the testimony of Milovanović,¹⁹⁵⁸⁶ who agreed that the Accused communicated “mainly” with him between 1 July and 4 August 1995.¹⁹⁵⁸⁷ The Chamber notes, firstly, that Milovanović explicitly stated that this did not occur “all the time”, but only “a few times”.¹⁹⁵⁸⁸ Moreover, even if Milovanović’s testimony in this regard could be read to

The Chamber notes that Premović referred to the conversation having yielded the information that “Žepa fell” but, in light of the fact that the meeting occurred on 13 July, it is satisfied that this should be understood as Srebrenica, and that Premović’s recollection of Mladić saying that Srebrenica would be “next” should be understood as referring to Žepa. See P4911 (Tomislav Premović’s interview with the OTP, 27 April 2009), p. 71; Tomislav Premović, T. 27406–27408, 27414–27415 (12 April 2012). See also Slavica Ristić, T. 26087–26088 (describing having gained the impression that Žepa would be next to be “liberated”).

When questioned by the Accused, Premović acknowledged that he was not familiar with Mladić’s voice, but asserted that he was “under the impression” that the caller was Mladić. suggest that the Accused communicated with Milovanović to the exclusion of all other VRS officers during that period, such testimony would have been directly contradicted by, inter alia, the evidence of the conversation between the Accused and Gvero in the afternoon of 11 July, and the evidence of the conversation between the Accused and Živanović on the night of 11 July.¹⁹⁵⁸⁹ Accordingly, the Chamber is satisfied that, as testified by Ristić and Premović, the Accused indeed spoke to Mladić during their meeting on 13 July.

5770. Citing the testimony of Ristić, Premović, and Trifković, the Accused further argues that even if he was speaking to Mladić, the evidence does not establish that they exchanged information about a plan to kill during the conversation, but—on the contrary—demonstrates that the Accused insisted that civilians be well-treated.¹⁹⁵⁹⁰ Having already found Trifković to be unreliable on the substance of this conversation,¹⁹⁵⁹¹ the Chamber will now assess the reliability of the evidence of Ristić and Premović on this point. Ristić recalled that after the phone call ended, the topic of conversation at the meeting turned to the treatment of civilians, and although she could not remember what was said specifically, she did recall that Trifković had stressed that the mistreatment of civilians would reflect poorly on Bosnian Serbs.¹⁹⁵⁹² The Chamber notes, however, that just after mentioning this in her interview, Ristić offered that it was “difficult for [her] after reading Dr. Trifković’s testimony” to separate what she recalled from what she had read.¹⁹⁵⁹³ The Chamber takes this candid admission to be an indication that her memory of this aspect of the conversation was influenced by her familiarity with the evidence given by Trifković in the Popović et al. case, particularly in light of its favourable portrayal of his contribution to the conversation.¹⁹⁵⁹⁴ The Chamber therefore does not rely upon it. The Chamber also notes that Premović stated that he did not remember any discussion of the treatment of civilians or prisoners of war.¹⁹⁵⁹⁵ Accordingly, the Chamber is not satisfied that there was any discussion of the treatment of civilians or prisoners of war. Furthermore, the evidence does not establish that there was any explicit indication that the Bosnian Muslim men then being held by the Bosnian Serb

Forces would be killed. However, the Chamber recalls that, as described above, the exchange yielded the information that Srebrenica was “done”.¹⁹⁵⁹⁶

5771. Around 6 p.m., while the Accused was meeting with Ristić, Premović, and Trifković, Mladić, Krstić, and Živanović returned to the Drina Corps Command and held a short ceremony to mark the transfer of command duties from Živanović to Krstić.¹⁹⁵⁹⁷ Around the same time, Kovač arrived from Pale and, according to him, found Mladić inebriated and in a good mood.¹⁹⁵⁹⁸ Kovač testified that during the approximately 30 minutes that he was present in Vlasenica, Mladić made numerous phone calls to technical or logistics units to bury “those that had been killed”.¹⁹⁵⁹⁹

5772. At approximately 8:10 p.m., the Accused was recorded in an intercepted conversation with Deronjić, which was conducted through an intermediary and unfolded as follows:

: I’m waiting for a call to President Karadžić. Is he there?
B: Yes.
: Hello! Just a minute, the duty officer will answer now, Mr. President.
B: Hello! I have Deronjić on line.
: Deronjić speak up.

¹⁹⁵⁹⁹ D3960 (Witness Statement of Tomislav Kovač dated 28 October 2013), para. 118. Kovač claimed that he understood these calls to relate to the burial of “men who had been killed in combat” rather than to the bodies of those who had been executed. D3960 (Witness Statement of Tomislav Kovač dated 28 October 2013), para. 118. Based on the Chamber’s assessment of the credibility of Kovač’s evidence as a whole, as discussed above, the Chamber finds Kovač’s assertion in this regard to be of extremely low probative value. See para. 5766.

5773. The Chamber has already found that the conversation between the Accused and Deronjić pertained to the accommodation of Bosnian Muslim men who were then being held on buses and in detention facilities in Bratunac.¹⁹⁶⁰¹ The Chamber also recalls that Davidović had urged Deronjić to “use [his] connections” with the Accused in order to have the buses moved, that before speaking to the Accused Deronjić had previously complained to Beara about the detainees’ presence in Bratunac, and that Beara and Deronjić later argued about whether the detainees would be killed in Bratunac or would be transferred to Zvornik for that purpose.¹⁹⁶⁰² During the latter conversation, Deronjić countered Beara’s assertion that Beara’s “boss” had instructed him that all detainees should remain in Bratunac by saying that the Accused had instructed him that all detainees should be transferred to Zvornik.¹⁹⁶⁰³ The Chamber therefore finds that during the intercepted conversation described above, the Accused conveyed to Deronjić the direction that the detainees should be transferred to Zvornik.

5774. Between 9:35 and 10:10 p.m.,¹⁹⁶⁰⁴ the Accused conducted an interview with El País from his office, wherein he stated that “very few Muslims can stay in Srebrenica because they are now beginning to realise that Srebrenica belongs to the Serbian State”, but that whoever wanted to stay in Srebrenica could do so.¹⁹⁶⁰⁵ The Accused also stated that the enclaves should disappear and that he was willing to put an end to the war “by political or military methods”.¹⁹⁶⁰⁶

5775. Meanwhile, Kovač had left Vlasenica; he arrived at Konjević Polje at approximately 7:30 p.m. and saw Bosnian Muslim male detainees boarding buses.¹⁹⁶⁰⁷ The Chamber recalls that, by that time, more than 6,000 Bosnian Muslims had been captured and detained by the Bosnian

P2564 (Radovan Karadžić’s interview in El País, 16 July 1995), p. 1. However, according to the Accused’s appointment book—the accuracy of which has been established by multiple witnesses—the interview with El País took place on the night of 13 July. Serb Forces.¹⁹⁶⁰⁸ Kovač spent the night at the Hotel Vidikovac, at the entry of the town of Zvornik.¹⁹⁶⁰⁹ That night, Kovač noticed buses transporting detainees from Srebrenica.¹⁹⁶¹⁰ The next morning, around 11 a.m., Kovač travelled to the Bratunac area with Vasić.¹⁹⁶¹¹ The Chamber notes that while driving to Bratunac, Kovač acknowledged that he passed by the Kravica Warehouse.¹⁹⁶¹² Although Kovač asserted that he did not see anything, the Chamber recalls that the removal of bodies was already well underway by the time Kovač passed by around noon.¹⁹⁶¹³ The Chamber is also satisfied that whether he passed the convoy on the road or noticed it waiting at the edge of Bratunac town, Kovač would have seen the convoy of buses carrying the Bosnian Muslim male detainees to Zvornik.¹⁹⁶¹⁴

5776. At 12:15 p.m. on 14 July, the Accused met with Petar Škrbić in the presence of Bogdan Subotić.¹⁹⁶¹⁵ Škrbić brought the Accused documents to sign, including the official decree concerning Živanović's retirement as Commander of the Drina Corps, as well as the decree on Krstić's promotion to Drina Corps Commander and Andrić's promotion as its Chief of Staff.¹⁹⁶¹⁶ During the meeting, the Accused referred to a written report from Gvero which was detrimental to the morale of the VRS, and threatened to "remove" him.¹⁹⁶¹⁷

The appointments were to be effective as of 15 July. P3044 (Radovan Karadžić's Decree, 14 July 1995). Škrbić testified that nobody mentioned Srebrenica during the meeting, and that he only learned about the fall of Srebrenica after the war. Petar Škrbić, P4523 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 15580–15581, 15601; Petar Škrbić, T. 25987, 25590 (8 March 2012). Given Škrbić's position at the time, as well as the fact that the documents Škrbić brought to the Accused for signature related to the promotion of the officer in charge of the attack on Srebrenica, the Chamber finds this to be inconceivable, and considers that Škrbić's testimony in this regard is yet another example of a witness trying to distance himself from the crimes committed in Srebrenica at the time. The Chamber also notes Subotić's evidence that he had no knowledge of any crimes being committed against the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica. D3695 (Witness statement of Bogdan Subotić dated 16 June 2013), para. 237. The Chamber has therefore approached Škrbić and Subotić's evidence with caution.

5777. The Accused then met with Deronjić alone between 12:40 p.m. and 1:10 p.m.¹⁹⁶¹⁸ At 2:25 p.m., the Accused met with a larger delegation from Srebrenica—including Dane Katanić, Milenko Čanić, Momčilo Cvjetinović, and Deronjić himself—in the presence of Krajišnik.¹⁹⁶¹⁹ This larger meeting lasted for four hours,¹⁹⁶²⁰ and during that time, the Accused decided to form the War Presidency of Srebrenica–Skelani Municipality and appointed Deronjić as the president of that body.¹⁹⁶²¹ The Accused issued a written decision on the appointment of the War Presidency later that day.¹⁹⁶²²

5778. At around 6 p.m., while meeting with Robert Đurđević, who was seeking to interview the Accused about a rumoured rift between himself and Mladić,¹⁹⁶²³ the Accused received a phone call from a “field commander defending the major road north of Srebrenica”, reporting that thousands of “Muslim soldiers” were in the woods trying to “break through towards Tuzla”.¹⁹⁶²⁴ The Chamber finds this evidence to be consistent with the development of the events on the ground at the time, and with contemporaneous reports issued by the VRS and MUP units engaged in the actions against the column of Bosnian Muslim men.¹⁹⁶²⁵

5779. The Chamber recalls that on 14 July, the Accused declared a state of war in the area of Srebrenica-Skelani municipality “in order to enable the full engagement of human and material resources in the defence of the RS and final victory over the enemy”.¹⁹⁶²⁶ He ordered the armed forces throughout the area of responsibility of the Drina Corps to “take all necessary measures to accomplish the set goals by the organised and effective use of available resources”.¹⁹⁶²⁷ This declaration allowed the military and police to utilise all human and material resources without submitting requests for mobilisation, and allowed for the military to requisition civilian property, such as equipment for burial, without complicated procedural protocols.¹⁹⁶²⁸ In the Chamber’s view, as discussed in further detail below, the Accused issued this decision to give Deronjić extraordinary powers and to facilitate the use of civilian personnel and equipment for the killing and burial operations.¹⁹⁶²⁹ Indeed, the Chamber recalls that that day, Beara cited an order originating from “two Presidents” when telling the Zvornik municipal authorities that he expected their co-operation in “get[ting] rid of” the detainees then being held in various locations throughout the municipality.¹⁹⁶³⁰

5780. Having spent the night of 13 July in Zvornik, and the day of 14 July touring Srebrenica and the Bratunac area together with Vasić, Kovač returned to Pale on 14 July and met with the Accused between 10:45 and 11:10 p.m.¹⁹⁶³¹ Earlier that day, while at lunch in Bratunac, Borovčanin, Kovač, 5781. The Prosecution claims that Kovač reported back to the Accused about the murder operation, his meetings with Mladić, Borovčanin, and Vasić, what he had seen and heard in Srebrenica and in the Bratunac and Zvornik areas, and, more importantly, the implementation of the Accused's order to move the detainees from Bratunac to Zvornik.¹⁹⁶³³ The Chamber notes that Kovač denied that he ever reported to the Accused about Srebrenica, and suggested that the Accused had other sources of information, including Kijac, Krstić, and Deronjić.¹⁹⁶³⁴ The Chamber observes that indeed the Accused may have received additional information through other channels but recalls its earlier findings on Kovač's credibility.¹⁹⁶³⁵ Moreover, given the reports sent to Kovač on 12 and 13 July,¹⁹⁶³⁶ Kovač's meeting with the Accused on the afternoon of 13 July, Kovač's presence in both the Bratunac and Zvornik areas, as well as in Srebrenica on 13 and 14 July, and the encounters he had with Mladić, Vasić, and Borovčanin, the Chamber finds that the only reasonable inference is that Kovač indeed shared the knowledge and observations he had gathered during his trip with the Accused during their meeting on 14 July.

5782. The Chamber also notes that on 14 July Kovač was informed that detainees from Srebrenica were being taken to Zvornik and that Beara had requested the assistance of MUP units.¹⁹⁶³⁷ While Kovač claimed that he had no reason to believe that there was a plan to execute the detainees, the Chamber considers his own suggestion that he issued an order for the police to cease

D3960 (Witness Statement of Tomislav Kovač dated 28 October 2013), para. 124. Kovač also gave conflicting evidence regarding whether he had learned that Beara had requested the assistance of MUP units on 14 July or two days later. Compare D3960 (Witness statement of Tomislav Kovač dated 28 October 2013), para. 124 (asserting that he learned about Beara's request "perhaps on 14 July") with Tomislav Kovač, T. 42787–42790 (1 November 2013) (first suggesting that this occurred on 16 July then refusing to acknowledge any discrepancy, before finally acknowledging that he might have indeed learned about it on 14 July). Kovač acknowledged that at the time he learned of Beara's request, he was aware that Beara "could abuse these men" and asserted that he had expressly refused and instructed the MUP not to co-operate with Beara. Tomislav Kovač, T. 42787–42788 (1 November 2013). See also Tomislav Kovač, T. 42801 (1 November 2013). The Chamber refers to its assessment of Kovač's credibility set out above. See para. 5763, communication with the VRS security organ so as not to be involved with any of their activities as proof of the contrary.¹⁹⁶³⁸ Kovač's knowledge of the killing aspect of the plan to eliminate is also supported by his purported warning to Borovčanin that MUP units in the field "should distance themselves from anything other than combat tasks".¹⁹⁶³⁹ The Chamber finds it incredible that Kovač would not have discussed these matters with the Accused.

5783. Having received a call from the Accused, Zvonko Bajagić came to Pale and met with the Accused between 12:35 and 1:25 a.m. on 15 July.¹⁹⁶⁴⁰ The Prosecution contends that the purpose of Bajagić's visit was to brief the Accused on the events in Srebrenica of which he had direct knowledge, including the killings at the Kravica Warehouse and the detention of Bosnian Muslim men at the Nova Kasaba football field.¹⁹⁶⁴¹ The Chamber notes that Bajagić's testimony regarding his meeting with the Accused was full of inconsistencies and contradictions, and has therefore approached it with considerable caution.¹⁹⁶⁴² In relation to the date of the meeting, Bajagić claimed that the visit took place in the early morning of 14 July.¹⁹⁶⁴³ However, based on the evidence before it, the Chamber is satisfied that the meeting took place in the early hours of 15 July.¹⁹⁶⁴⁴ Bajagić asserted that before leaving for Pale to meet with the Accused he did not have any knowledge as to the events in Srebrenica so he wanted to ask the Accused what was happening at the time,¹⁹⁶⁴⁵ and thus denied discussing any of these topics with the Accused.¹⁹⁶⁴⁶ However, the evidence clearly establishes that Bajagić had substantive knowledge of the events in Srebrenica prior to meeting with the Accused. In this regard, the Chamber recalls that Bajagić himself

The Chamber notes that Bajagić first claimed that he only saw the Accused for a couple of minutes, as he ran into him in the hall and testified that the Accused looked angry and told Bajagić to "mind his own business". D3853 (Witness statement of Zvonko Bajagić dated 5 July 2013), para. 36. He later agreed, however, that the meeting had taken place in the Accused's office and had lasted longer, but insisted that part of that time was spent having a drink with a relative who was working at the Accused's office at the time, and not with the Accused. Zvonko Bajagić, T. 41184–41186, 41209 (10 July 2013).

acknowledged that, on 13 July, he had seen captured Bosnian Muslim men sitting at the Nova Kasaba football field, had been prevented from taking photos of them, and had met with Mladić and Salapura in Srebrenica town.¹⁹⁶⁴⁷ Bajagić also conceded that he heard about the killings at the Kravica Warehouse while present at the Drina Corps Command in Vlasenica on 14 July.¹⁹⁶⁴⁸ Noting the extremely late hour of their meeting, as well as the fact that the Accused had invited Bajagić to Pale, the Chamber finds that the only reasonable inference is that Bajagić reported the events in Srebrenica he had witnessed on 13 and 14 July to the Accused during their meeting on 15 July.

5784. In the meantime, around 11 p.m. on 15 July, the Accused received a direct report from Vasić stating that additional forces were needed urgently to assist in intercepting the column of Bosnian Muslim men.¹⁹⁶⁴⁹ The Chamber recalls that at 1:55 p.m. on 16 July, Pandurević notified the Drina Corps command that a corridor had been opened to allow civilians to pass through, but that the Bosnian Serb Forces were still fighting the Muslim Forces in Srebrenica.¹⁹⁶⁵⁰ Approximately 90 minutes later, an officer from the Main Staff who stated that he was calling from “the boss [...] the main head of state” was intercepted telling the Zvornik Brigade duty officer to “have Vinko tell you about what happened and send it urgently right away [...] dictate what has been done and have him send it right away to the Main Staff”.¹⁹⁶⁵¹ That day, Karišik was dispatched to Zvornik.¹⁹⁶⁵² Once Karišik arrived in Zvornik, he informed the Accused that Pandurević had arranged for the opening of the corridor.¹⁹⁶⁵³ The Chamber recalls that additional reinforcements were sent to the Zvornik area that evening as well as the following day, and that the Main Staff sent three colonels to investigate Pandurević’s decision to open the corridor.¹⁹⁶⁵⁴

5785. The Chamber received evidence demonstrating that throughout the relevant period, the Accused actively monitored the international media's coverage of the events in Srebrenica.¹⁹⁶⁵⁵ On 16 July, a certain "Nikola" informed the Accused that the message being conveyed by American television reports on Srebrenica was "terrible".¹⁹⁶⁵⁶ "Nikola" then requested the Accused to issue a clear statement on the treatment of the civilian population in Srebrenica and Žepa, which would then assist Robert Đurđević and "Nikola" in giving a speech addressing the "terrible propaganda" about Srebrenica being spread to the American population by the U.S. media.¹⁹⁶⁵⁷ The Chamber recalls that at a meeting held at the UN Compound on the following day, the Bosnian Serb representatives produced the 17 July 1995 Statement, a document which outlined the agreement reached at the third Hotel Fontana meeting five days earlier, and requested that both Mandžić and Franken sign it, and that Franken attest that Mandžić had not been forced to do so.¹⁹⁶⁵⁸ Miroslav Deronjić also signed the 17 July 1995 Statement.¹⁹⁶⁵⁹

5786. Around 6:30 p.m. that evening, the Accused met with Mile Dmičić, who was then Head of Office to the Accused and the Accused's Secretary General.¹⁹⁶⁶⁰ During the meeting, Subotić delivered a fax from Bratunac containing the 17 July 1995 Statement to the Accused.¹⁹⁶⁶¹ In an ¹⁹⁶⁵⁵ For example, Robert Đurđević testified that during their meeting on 14 July, the Accused watched CNN and Sky News reports on Srebrenica—which included interviews with women who had by then reached Tuzla—and occasionally commented that the reports were not true. P4513 (Witness statement of Robert Đurđević dated 18 December 2002), e-court pp. 13, 15–18. Slavica Ristić testified that after Trifković's meeting with Zametica and the Accused late the same evening, she, the Accused, and Trifković watched CNN together, as the Accused wanted to see how the take-over of Srebrenica was portrayed, and they discussed the issue of balanced media coverage. The Chamber also notes that the Accused took steps to control communications between the Bosnian Serb Forces and members of international organisations. On 17 July, the Accused wrote to Gvero, asserting that he was acting contrary to a number of mandatory documents previously issued by the Accused, by inter alia supplying information outside the assigned channels, and establishing unauthorised contact with international organisations. P4536 (Letter from Radovan Karadžić to Lieutenant General Milan Gvero, 17 July 1995), p. 1. The Accused ordered Gvero to immediately send a written statement explaining his non-compliance, which was to be followed by an interview. P4536 (Letter from Radovan Karadžić to Lieutenant General Milan Gvero, 17 July 1995), p. 1. See also Petar Škrbić, P4523 (Transcript from Prosecutor v. Popović et al.), T. 15554–15556. Gvero replied on the following day that he had carried out all the activities mentioned by the Accused as ordered by Mladić, and that all the activities were motivated by the need for the fight of the Bosnian Serb people and for the VRS to be successful. P4537 (Letter from Lieutenant General Milan Gvero to Radovan Karadžić, 18 July 1995).

See para. 5128. Dmičić also stated that he was not aware at the time that it was not a genuine agreement and did not interview with David Frost conducted later that evening, the Accused claimed that the civilians had wanted to leave Srebrenica on their own and offered to produce the 17 July 1995 Statement as proof.¹⁹⁶⁶² When Frost asked the Accused about the reports in the media about 15,000 men from Srebrenica who were thus far unaccounted for, the Accused replied that the Bosnian Serb Forces had opened the lines and were allowing the men to pass even as he spoke to Frost.¹⁹⁶⁶³

5787. Around the same period, Mladić met Smith multiple times; Smith repeatedly requested that the ICRC and UNHCR be allowed access to Srebrenica and be allowed to see “all the detained people”.¹⁹⁶⁶⁴ In an attempt to describe Srebrenica as having been “finished in a correct way”, Mladić also referred to the assertions contained in the 17 July 1995 Statement, namely that the Bosnian Muslims in Potočari had been “evacuated” at their own request and according to arrangements made by three civilian representatives of the local population.¹⁹⁶⁶⁵ Mladić also referred to a “corridor” which, he claimed, had been opened on the night of 10–11 July to allow “a significant number” of Bosnian Muslim forces to break through Bosnian Serb lines in the direction of Tuzla.¹⁹⁶⁶⁶ However, by the following week, many Bosnian Muslim men remained missing and the ICRC remained unable to access the Srebrenica enclave.¹⁹⁶⁶⁷ The Chamber recalls that,

The Chamber notes that Dmičić insisted that he had no knowledge about the events in Srebrenica and thus never discussed them with the Accused. See Mile Dmičić, T. 42886–42887, 42902–42903 (4 November 2013); D3977 (Witness statement of Mile Dmičić dated 29 October 2013), paras. 21–22 (testifying that he never heard any discussion about executions in Srebrenica and never heard or saw anything which would indicate the Accused’s knowledge of such executions). The Chamber notes, however, that while testifying, Dmičić was inconsistent and evasive and displayed clear indications of bias. Compare D3977 (Witness statement of Mile Dmičić dated 29 October 2013), paras. 10–11 (testifying that he met with Subotić on 10 July to discuss the events in Srebrenica and was ordered to immediately forward the Accused’s order for the protection of UNPROFOR members and civilians to the Main Staff) with Mile Dmičić, T. 42898–42899, 42904–42906 (4 November 2013) (testifying that he only dealt with mail within the civilian activity of the RS organs and not military mail or reports, and thus trying to distance himself from the VRS and its military operations). See also Mile Dmičić, T. 42902–42903 (4 November 2013) (denying any past or present knowledge about the executions in Srebrenica, stating that he could not accept “the truth” and agreeing with a statement put to him that the cemetery at Potočari was a farce and a set-up). For these reasons, the Chamber has approached Dmičić’s evidence with circumspection.

according to the Accused's decision of 11 July, such permission would have required the assent of the State Committee following consultation with him.¹⁹⁶⁶⁸

5788. On 24 July, the Special Rapporteur of the Commission on Human Rights, Tadeusz Mazowiecki, wrote to the Accused directly to request access to field staff from the UN Centre for Human Rights in areas under the Accused's control.¹⁹⁶⁶⁹ Although this request was received, Mazowiecki did not receive an answer.¹⁹⁶⁷⁰ The Chamber recalls that at the time, the Bosnian Serb Forces were carrying out continued searches of the terrain, killing numerous groups of Bosnian Muslim males who were captured or surrendered from the column.¹⁹⁶⁷¹ In late July, representatives of the ICRC were allowed to access Batković Camp but were only able to locate 164 detainees from Srebrenica; they were told that no other detainees were being held.¹⁹⁶⁷²

5789. In the weeks following the events in Srebrenica, the Accused's press office issued a press release commending both Živanović and Krstić as "the main architect[s] of the Serbian victories in Srebrenica and Žepa".¹⁹⁶⁷³ The Accused also congratulated the VRS Main Staff, the Drina Corps command, and the "staff of the Police Armed forces" on the "brilliant victory in Srebrenica and Žepa".¹⁹⁶⁷⁴ On 4 August 1995, the Accused appointed Mladić to the Office of the President of the RS as a Special Adviser to the Supreme Commander for co-ordination of the joint defence of RS and the RSK.¹⁹⁶⁷⁵ That same day, during an interview with the Bosnian Serb television, the Accused explained his reasons for appointing Mladić to the Supreme Command, and praised the VRS corps commanders.¹⁹⁶⁷⁶ The Accused also specifically recognised Krstić for having planned the Srebrenica operation, with his approval, and for having conducted the task exceptionally, with the assistance of the Supreme Command and Mladić.¹⁹⁶⁷⁷

5790. On 4 August, the Accused took a short trip to Srebrenica together with Nebojša Ristić and his security detail.¹⁹⁶⁷⁸ They attended a religious ceremony close to the town, and visited an Orthodox church in the centre of Srebrenica that had been completely destroyed.¹⁹⁶⁷⁹ The Accused also met with Deronjić and the other civilian authorities of Srebrenica at the cultural centre which had been prepared for his visit.¹⁹⁶⁸⁰

5791. On 6 August 1995, during the 52nd Bosnian Serb Assembly Session, the Accused stated:

As you know, we achieved success in Srebrenica and Žepa, no fault can be found with the success, no objections to it, of course, a lot of stupid things were done afterwards, because many [Bosnian] Muslim soldiers were roaming the woods and that is when we sustained losses; in the action itself we did not sustain losses [...] *in the end several thousand fighters did manage to get through [...] we were not able to encircle the enemy and destroy them.*¹⁹⁶⁸¹

5792. On 8 November 1995, the Accused issued a statement publicising the fact that that day, he had issued a decision clearing an American journalist, David Rohde, of a charge of espionage.¹⁹⁶⁸² Rohde had been arrested by the MUP approximately ten days earlier while photographing the ¹⁹⁶⁸² P6425 (Public statement of RS President’s Office, 8 November 1995). Rohde had published an article in the Christian Science Monitor in August 1995 describing an “on-the-spot investigation” which had “uncovered strong evidence that a massacre of Bosnian Muslim prisoners took place last month” near the former enclaves of Srebrenica and Žepa. P6422 (Article from Christian Science Monitor, entitled “Evidence Indicates Bosnia Massacre”, 18 August 1995), p. 1. The article featured an unclassified satellite photo showing “possible mass graves” in the Konjević Polje area and described interviews with Bosnian Serb soldiers who mentioned ongoing killings of Bosnian Muslim men from the column who were continuing to be captured. P6422 (Article from Christian Science Monitor, entitled “Evidence Indicates Bosnia Massacre”, 18 August 1995), pp. 1–2.

Petkovci Dam.¹⁹⁶⁸³ Upon Rohde's arrest, Kijac sent a report to the VRS Security Administration reporting intelligence gathered during Rohde's interrogation, including evidence found at suspected crime sites.¹⁹⁶⁸⁴ According to Kijac's report, Rohde also stated that he had told his editors about his task, and that they had agreed to intervene through the US Embassy if Rohde did not "check in" within two or three days.¹⁹⁶⁸⁵ Kijac signed off, stating "this information is provided for your action".¹⁹⁶⁸⁶ On 3 November, Beara replied with the information that Koljević had told "someone abroad" that Rohde had been arrested and that a request had been sent to the "truce monitoring team" in Banja Luka requesting them to find Rohde.¹⁹⁶⁸⁷ That same day, the chief of the RDB centre in Bijeljina issued two orders authorising Rohde's detention retroactively from 29 October to 6 November and initiating criminal proceedings against him.¹⁹⁶⁸⁸ On the same day, Kijac spoke to the Accused by telephone; Kijac met with the Accused in person on 4 and 6 November.¹⁹⁶⁸⁹ Two days later, the Accused pardoned Rohde.¹⁹⁶⁹⁰

5793. During a conversation with Mladić on 22 March 1996, the Accused stated that he, Koljević, and Plavšić had determined that a commission should be formed "on the basis of equal parity to really investigate all the deaths and killings around Srebrenica during the war".¹⁹⁶⁹¹ That day, Slobodna Bosna had published Dražen Erdemović's account of the killings at the Branjevo Military

Kijac reported that Rohde had stated that an initiative was being taken to gather such evidence ahead of the Dayton conference, where it could be used as a means of putting pressure on the Bosnian Serbs, and had disclosed that within the next day or two, the New York Times and the Washington Post would be publishing articles estimating the number of victims as 6,000 and 3,000, respectively. ¹⁹⁶⁸⁷ P6539 (Information of VRS Main Staff, 3 November 1995), pp. 1–2. Kijac denied that Beara's communication was a reply and asserted that his dispatch had been addressed to the Main Staff Intelligence Administration and that the DB "had no correspondence with the military police and military security". Dragan Kijac, T. 44357–44358 (3 December 2013). The Chamber notes, however, that P5227 is clearly addressed to the Main Staff Security Administration and that Beara's notification in fact refers to the reference number, 05-3368/95, which appears on P5227. The Chamber is therefore satisfied that P6539 was in fact a response to P5227 and considers Kijac's testimony to the contrary to be an example of Kijac attempting to distance himself from Rohde's arrest.

¹⁹⁶⁸⁸ P6423 (Order of Bijeljina RDB, 3 November 1995); P6424 (Request of Bijeljina RDB, 3 November 1995). Farm and the Pilica Cultural Centre.¹⁹⁶⁹² The Chamber recalls that, during the conversation with Mladić on 22 March 1996, the Accused also remarked that “a big show was put on for Albright”, who had “expected they would find 1,200 Muslim bodies at Pilica, but they found some five bodies”.¹⁹⁶⁹³

5794. On the following day, 23 March, the Accused issued an order to the Main Staff and RS MUP to “immediately form a mixed expert commission of three members each” to investigate the alleged discovery of two decomposed bodies “at the scene of earlier battles with the Muslim side” in the Pilica area (“23 March 1996 Order”).¹⁹⁶⁹⁴ The order stated that a request should be made to the “competent IFOR (UN) command” to have an international expert team present at the enquiry, in order “to frustrate the intentions of Ambassador Madeleine Albright and media ‘experts’ to make and launch arbitrary and biased conclusions about this case”.¹⁹⁶⁹⁵ Following the issuance of the Accused’s 23 March 1996 Order, Vasić held a meeting of a mixed military and civilian commission at the Zvornik CSB; the meeting was attended by RS Military Prosecutor Predrag Drinić as well as Milorad Trbić, who represented the Zvornik Brigade.¹⁹⁶⁹⁶ Following the meeting, on 26 March 1996, Drinić wrote to the Main Staff Intelligence and Security Sector describing the meeting and proposing that the Main Staff form a delegation to the commission from the members of the Intelligence and Security Organ, who could then verify the reports giving rise to the commission and, if needed, forward the matter to the relevant military prosecutor.¹⁹⁶⁹⁷ Drinić never received an answer.¹⁹⁶⁹⁸

5795. One week later, on 1 April 1996, the Accused issued an order to the Main Staff, RS MUP, Ministry of Justice and Administration, the Supreme Court, the Supreme Military Court, the RS Public Prosecutor and the VRS Military Prosecutor to carry out “a detailed investigation” of the locations “where victims of the armed conflict in and around Srebrenica are to be found”, and to determine whether any breaches of The Hague or Geneva Conventions had been committed, and if so, to identify the perpetrators of such crimes and initiate criminal proceedings against them (“1 April 1996 Order”).¹⁹⁶⁹⁹

5796. Despite the existence of both of these orders, no criminal proceedings were initiated.¹⁹⁷⁰⁰ Rumours of massive killings were “common knowledge” in Bijeljina “almost immediately”, as VRS officers spoke about it openly.¹⁹⁷⁰¹ The Chamber received evidence, however, that the RS Military Prosecutor’s Office in Bijeljina never received the Accused’s 1 April 1996 Order.¹⁹⁷⁰² Drinić stated that the other addressees of the 1 April 1996 Order did not take steps to implement it, and that no prosecutions were undertaken as a result.¹⁹⁷⁰³

5797. No civilian prosecutions were undertaken either.¹⁹⁷⁰⁴ On 23 September 1996, Dragan Kijac, who was by then Minister of the Interior,¹⁹⁷⁰⁵ sent a report to the Ministry of Justice and Administration which described purported internal skirmishes between members of the column which resulted in “several individual and mass killings”.¹⁹⁷⁰⁶ Kijac also described preliminary investigative steps being taken by the Tribunal and closed with the statement, “we are sending you this information believing that it could be used for the defence”.¹⁹⁷⁰⁷

removing the Bosnian Muslim population from Srebrenica, began to be transformed into a concrete plan to eliminate them, first, through forcible removal of the women, children and elderly men, and then through the killing of the men and boys.¹⁹⁷⁰⁸ The Chamber will now analyse whether, taking into account the acts and conduct of the Accused during the period relevant to the Srebrenica JCE established above,¹⁹⁷⁰⁹ the Accused shared the objective of eliminating the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica, first by forcibly removing the women, children, and elderly men, and then by killing the able-bodied men and boys. In this exercise, the Chamber will also examine particular actions of the Accused which occurred prior to the implementation of the concrete plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica, as well as after the completion of such plan.

5799. Prior to the formation of the concrete plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica, the Accused took a number of actions which, in the Chamber's view, establish that he was a directing force in the events leading up to the take-over of Srebrenica and which also demonstrate his close monitoring of the Bosnian Serb attack on the enclave. In addition to issuing Directive 7 in March 1995 and giving Krstić a combat assignment at the end of June, both of which formed the basis for the attack plan known as Krivaja 95 and which ultimately resulted in the take-over of Srebrenica, the Accused also implemented Directive 7 by restricting access to Srebrenica.¹⁹⁷¹⁰ This restriction, which the Chamber found was implemented by Mladić, allowed the Accused to maintain control over the goods and personnel entering the enclave during the months and weeks leading up to its take-over.¹⁹⁷¹¹

5800. The Accused acknowledges that he approved the initial plan to "shrink" the Srebrenica enclave and thereafter to "take the undefended town of Srebrenica", but claims that this plan never contemplated the execution of Bosnian Muslim detainees.¹⁹⁷¹² The Accused further adds that the military action to take Srebrenica was not a crime, and that when he authorised the VRS to enter Srebrenica, the VRS had a legitimate right to engage in military operations against the Muslim Forces in Srebrenica.¹⁹⁷¹³ However, the Chamber has already found that, at least by the time Directive 7 was issued in March 1995, the Accused and Mladić had devised a long-term plan aimed at the eventual forcible removal of the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica.¹⁹⁷¹⁴ This was consistent with their long-term objective of permanently removing Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb-claimed territory.¹⁹⁷¹⁵ The Accused's establishment of Bosnian Serb structures in Srebrenica demonstrates that the removal of the Bosnian Muslim population then envisaged by the Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs was intended to be permanent.¹⁹⁷¹⁶ Thus, while the take-over itself was not a criminal operation per se, the Chamber considers that, like the take-overs of the Municipalities, the take-over of Srebrenica was devised with the intent to permanently remove the Bosnian Muslim population living there.

¹⁹⁷¹² Defence Final Brief, para. 3011.

The Accused further contends that indeed, the actions he took in connection with the Srebrenica events were "exemplary" and demonstrate that he did not participate in or have any knowledge of the genocidal execution of detainees. Defence Final Brief, paras. 3127–3128.

5801. The Chamber recalls that, as the Bosnian Serb Forces approached Srebrenica, the Accused was constantly kept abreast and informed of the developing situation on the ground. This was achieved particularly through briefings by high-ranking officers, such as Gvero and Tolimir, who were already on the ground near Srebrenica.¹⁹⁷¹⁷ The Accused also received regular written reports from multiple branches of the Bosnian Serb Forces. As Supreme Commander of the VRS, the Accused received daily combat reports compiled by the Main Staff, which provided him detailed information of the developments on the ground.¹⁹⁷¹⁸ The Chamber notes the Accused's contention that none of the written reports that reached him during the Srebrenica events made any reference to the execution of prisoners from Srebrenica.¹⁹⁷¹⁹ Indeed, the Chamber did not receive evidence demonstrating that the written reports which reached the Accused mentioned killings of Bosnian Muslim male detainees. However, the Chamber notes that, beginning on 12 July, the daily combat

The Chamber observes that Kovač testified that the MUP also compiled reports from all its sources into a single report which was transmitted to the Accused. D3960 (Witness Statement of Tomislav Kovač dated 28 October 2013), para. 128. The Chamber further notes that, between 11 and 17 July, the Accused also received daily communications from the Main Staff Security Organ. ¹⁹⁷¹⁹ Defence Final Brief, paras. 3082–3083, 3112. The Accused made a similar claim about media reports from late July onwards on the execution of prisoners which, he submits, did not provide reason for him to believe that men had been executed. See Defence Final Brief, para. 3132. The Accused supported his claim by stating that he had been repeatedly told to consider these reports false propaganda, in particular in light of similar false reports issued in the past. See Defence Final Brief, paras. 3132–3139. The Accused also argued that the letters seized from his computer at the time of his arrest indicate that he had no information about executions of a significant number of people from Srebrenica and believed those allegations to be false. See Defence Final Brief, para. 3147. In light of the Chamber's finding as to when the Accused became aware of the common plan reports described the transport of the Bosnian Muslim population as well as the existence and movement of the column of Bosnian Muslim men attempting to reach Tuzla, in addition to the Bosnian Serb Forces' attempts to block the column's progress.¹⁹⁷²⁰ On 13 and 14 July, the reports described the capture and surrender of large numbers of men from the column.¹⁹⁷²¹ Reports from the following days made no mention of prisoners but described continuing efforts by the Bosnian Serb Forces to block the remainder of the column's progress and search the terrain.¹⁹⁷²² The Chamber further recalls Popović's direction to Dragan Jokić not to make a record of the activities involving the killing aspect of the plan to eliminate or to speak on the radio about it.¹⁹⁷²³

5803. With regard to personal conversations and contacts, the Chamber recalls specifically that, at approximately 1 a.m. on 12 July, Živanović spoke to the Accused.¹⁹⁷²⁷ The Chamber notes Živanović's claim that, after informing the Accused about the "liberation" of Srebrenica, the conversation ended.¹⁹⁷²⁸ In that regard, the Chamber recalls, first, that the Accused had already been informed by Gvero that afternoon that the Bosnian Serb Forces had taken Srebrenica.¹⁹⁷²⁹ Further, according to Živanović's own admission, the Accused told Živanović that he had not yet been able to reach Mladić or Krstić.¹⁹⁷³⁰ Accordingly, the Chamber considers that at the time of his conversation with Živanović the Accused was seeking additional information beyond the fact that Srebrenica had fallen. The Chamber recalls that Živanović had attended the first and second meetings which had been held at the Hotel Fontana earlier that evening, as well as the meeting at the Bratunac Brigade Command.¹⁹⁷³¹ Thus, while the Chamber cannot make a finding as to whether Živanović briefed the Accused on the killing aspect of the plan to eliminate, it finds it inconceivable that Živanović would not have provided the Accused with further updates regarding the events on the ground which had occurred after the Accused's previous conversation with Gvero—including the outcomes of those meetings.

5804. Additionally, Kovač, who had been receiving continuous updates since the commencement of the Srebrenica operation and had received increasingly urgent communications from Vasić on 13 July, also shared such information with the Accused in person that afternoon.¹⁹⁷³² A few hours later, while meeting with the members of the Serbian diaspora around the time when Kovač reached Vlasenica, the Accused received an hour-long phone call from Mladić, who was then at the Drina Corps Command and reported that Srebrenica was “done”.¹⁹⁷³³

5805. Finally, the Chamber recalls that, at approximately 8 p.m. on 13 July, Deronjić and the Accused spoke through an intermediary about the fate of the thousands of Bosnian Muslim male detainees then being held on buses and in detention facilities in Bratunac town.¹⁹⁷³⁴ The Accused claims that no inference can be drawn from the conversation on 13 July with Deronjić that the Accused knew of any plan to kill the detainees from Srebrenica, or that the detainees had been, were being, or would be executed.¹⁹⁷³⁵ The Chamber notes that, despite the fact that Deronjić and the Accused did not explicitly mention the killing of detainees during the conversation, they spoke in code, referring to the detainees as “goods” which had to be placed “inside the warehouses before twelve tomorrow”.¹⁹⁷³⁶ The Accused further specified, “not in the warehouses /?over there/, but somewhere else”, which the Chamber has already interpreted as a direction to move the detainees to Zvornik.¹⁹⁷³⁷ The Chamber recalls that, earlier that evening, Deronjić had complained to Beara about the detainees' presence in Bratunac, and that upon encountering Deronjić in Bratunac town, Davidović had urged him to use his connections to the Accused to have the buses moved.¹⁹⁷³⁸ Moreover, the Chamber recalls that immediately after this conversation, Beara and Deronjić discussed where—not whether—the detainees were to be killed.¹⁹⁷³⁹ It is therefore clear that at the time of Beara and Deronjić’s conversation, a decision had already been made to kill the detainees, and Deronjić invoked the Accused’s authority to convince Beara to accede to their movement to Zvornik. In the Chamber’s view, the use of code to refer to the detainees, as well as the direction to move them toward Zvornik, demonstrates the malign intent behind the conversation. The Chamber finds that this conversation, in addition to the Accused’s subsequent acts as described further below,¹⁹⁷⁴⁰ demonstrate beyond reasonable doubt the Accused’s agreement to the expansion of the objective to encompass the killing of the Bosnian Muslim males.

5806. After this conversation, the Accused continued to seek, and was provided with, information through multiple channels. During the approximately 24 hours that Kovač spent in the area touring Vlasenica, Srebrenica, and the Bratunac and Zvornik areas on 14 July, while the Bosnian Muslim males were being moved to Zvornik and the executions at Orahovac got underway, Kovač met with Mladić, Krstić, Živanović, Borovčanin, and Vasić, thus obtaining additional important information that he ultimately relayed back to the Accused when he returned to Pale on 14 July.¹⁹⁷⁴¹ Furthermore, in the afternoon on 14 July, the Accused received information over the phone from a commander on the ground in Srebrenica, who reported on the movement of the column of Bosnian Muslim men.¹⁹⁷⁴²

5807. The Chamber recalls that earlier on 14 July, the Accused had met with Deronjić alone between 12:40 p.m. and 1:10 p.m.; both later met together with a larger delegation from Srebrenica for about four hours.¹⁹⁷⁴³ The Prosecution claims that the only reasonable inference is that Deronjić travelled to Pale in advance in order to meet with the Accused in private, report on significant events relating to the killing aspect of the plan to eliminate, and receive further instructions; thus, during their initial meeting, the Accused and Deronjić must have discussed the murder and burial operations then in progress in the Bratunac and Zvornik areas and, more specifically, Deronjić must have reported on the implementation of the Accused’s order to transport the detainees from Bratunac to Zvornik by midday that day.¹⁹⁷⁴⁴ The Accused acknowledges that he met alone in his office with Deronjić on 14 July; he also acknowledges the evidence that, by the time of this meeting, Deronjić was aware of the killings at the Kravica Warehouse on 13 and 14 July, and that the latter had participated in discussions to bury the bodies of detainees who had been killed.¹⁹⁷⁴⁵ However, the Accused argues that it is “reasonably possible” that Deronjić did not inform the Accused of what he knew, suggesting that “there were more pressing issues concerning [the] administrative organisation of Srebrenica” for the two to have discussed, that the Kravica Warehouse killings required no action of the Accused, and that Deronjić would not have wanted to tell the Accused that a negative incident had occurred on his watch.¹⁹⁷⁴⁶

5808. In relation to the content of the conversation between Deronjić and the Accused prior to their meeting with the larger group, the Chamber notes that it has no direct evidence thereof. However, it received evidence that, during the second meeting, Deronjić reported on the situation in Srebrenica.¹⁹⁷⁴⁷ As stated above, the Chamber is satisfied that Deronjić had been aware of the killings at the Kravica Warehouse since the evening of 13 July.¹⁹⁷⁴⁸ More importantly, the Chamber recalls the conversation between the Accused and Deronjić the night before in which the Accused ordered the transfer of the detainees from Bratunac to Zvornik.¹⁹⁷⁴⁹ The Chamber also recalls Deronjić’s participation in the efforts to bury the bodies of those killed at the Kravica Warehouse, starting in the early hours of 14 July.¹⁹⁷⁵⁰ The Chamber also received evidence that the Accused and Deronjić had frequent communications, either by telephone or in person, during the Srebrenica operation.¹⁹⁷⁵¹ According to officials from Bratunac municipality, in his official capacity as civilian commissioner of Srebrenica, Deronjić should have reported about the killings at the Kravica Warehouse to the Accused.¹⁹⁷⁵² More specifically, Simić testified that Deronjić told him that he had informed the Accused about the events at the Kravica Warehouse the day after the incident.¹⁹⁷⁵³ The Chamber received evidence that there was no mention or discussion about the executions of detainees in Srebrenica during the meeting with the Srebrenica representatives.¹⁹⁷⁵⁴ Nevertheless, the Chamber has no doubt that during the individual meeting between Deronjić and the Accused, they both discussed the killings at the Kravica Warehouse, and the implementation of the Accused's order to transport the detainees from Bratunac to Zvornik by midday that day.¹⁹⁷⁵⁵

5809. The Accused continued receiving information from those present in the Srebrenica area during the following days. For example, Bajagić, who had been prevented from taking photos of captured Bosnian Muslim men being detained at Nova Kasaba football field and had heard about the killings at Kravica Warehouse, met with and reported these events to the Accused in the very early hours of 15 July.¹⁹⁷⁵⁶ Further, following a direct report from Vasić to the Accused outlining a need for additional forces, as well as Pandurević's report to the Main Staff regarding the opening of the corridor, unsuccessful efforts were made in the Accused's name to contact Pandurević for an explanation of his decision; Karišik was then dispatched to Zvornik, and ultimately reported to the Accused about the opening of the corridor.¹⁹⁷⁵⁷

5810. Based on all the evidence discussed above, the Chamber finds that the Accused—who had shared the common purpose of permanently removing the Bosnian Muslims from Bosnian Serb-claimed territory since October 1991¹⁹⁷⁵⁸—knew of the concrete plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by forcibly removing the women, children, and elderly men as the plan began to be transformed as the enclave fell. In reaching this conclusion, the Chamber notes that the Accused immediately issued orders establishing Bosnian Serb institutions in Srebrenica, which the Chamber has already found to be an indication that the removal of the Bosnian Muslim population then envisaged was intended to be permanent.¹⁹⁷⁵⁹ In this respect, the Chamber recalls that one of the Accused's orders tasked Deronjić with “ensur[ing] that all civilian and military organs treat[ed] all citizens who participated in combat operations against the [VRS] as prisoners of war, and ensure that the civilian population c[ould] freely choose where they w[ould] live or move to”.¹⁹⁷⁶⁰ The Chamber considers that, as it has found in relation to similar orders which explicitly promoted respect for international humanitarian law which were issued earlier in the conflict, the Accused's actions were insufficient to prevent criminal acts. Further, in relation to the apparent choice given to the civilian population as to where to live or move to, the Chamber finds that in light of Deronjić's subsequent actions, including the fact that he held a meeting in Srebrenica that night, where he appointed directors for all public enterprises and institutions, and his subsequent attendance at the second and third Hotel Fontana meetings, where Mladić—despite explicit statements indicating that the population's wishes would be respected—coerced the representatives of the Bosnian Muslims into agreeing to leave the enclave,¹⁹⁷⁶¹ Deronjić clearly did not give effect to this provision of the Accused's order.

5811. The Chamber also finds that the Accused adopted and embraced the expansion of the plan to entail the killing the Bosnian Muslim men and boys in Srebrenica during his conversation with Deronjić on the evening of 13 July. Given the Accused's position as RS President and Supreme Commander, as well as the evidence demonstrating the continuous flow of information he was seeking and receiving from the ground from many different sources the Chamber considers that the Accused must have known about the killing aspect of the plan to eliminate at some point prior to his conversation with Deronjić in the evening of 13 July. However, the Chamber can only make a positive determination as to the Accused's agreement to the expansion of the means so as to encompass the killing of the men and boys as of the moment of the conversation with Deronjić. The Accused's shared intent is reaffirmed by the fact that, from the moment he directed Deronjić to move the detainees to Zvornik the Accused became, and subsequently continued to be, actively involved in overseeing the implementation of the plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by killing the men and boys.

5812. The Chamber recalls that, throughout the relevant period, the Accused actively monitored the international media's coverage of the events in Srebrenica, as he was concerned about the coverage of such events.¹⁹⁷⁶² The Chamber has already found that, during this time, the Accused, together with Mladić, embarked on an effort to disseminate false information about the fate of the Bosnian Muslim males as well as the conditions under which the remainder of the Bosnian Muslim population was transferred to Potočari.¹⁹⁷⁶³ The Accused also denied international organisations access to Srebrenica and the Bratunac and Zvornik areas.¹⁹⁷⁶⁴ In the Chamber's view, given the Accused's nearly-contemporaneous knowledge of the ongoing killing operation, the only reasonable inference is that by disseminating false information, the Accused intended to shield the true actions of the Bosnian Serb Forces from international attention and intervention.

¹⁹⁷⁶³ See paras. 5786–5787.

¹⁹⁷⁶⁴ See para. 5788.

5813. Furthermore, from the point at which the Accused ordered the detainees to be transferred to Zvornik until the spring of 1996, the Accused took no action to initiate investigations or prosecutions of the direct perpetrators of the despicable crimes committed in the Bratunac and Zvornik areas following the fall of the Srebrenica enclave to the Bosnian Serb Forces in July 1995.¹⁹⁷⁶⁵ Neither the 23 March 1996 Order nor the 1 April 1996 Order resulted in bona fide investigations or prosecutions.¹⁹⁷⁶⁶ By contrast, on 20 July 1995, the Accused's office issued a press release congratulating the units of the Bosnian Serb Forces which had been involved in the killing operation in Zvornik—the Main Staff, Drina Corps and “Staff of the Police Armed Forces”¹⁹⁷⁶⁷—on the “brilliant victory in Srebrenica and Žepa”.¹⁹⁷⁶⁸ In the following weeks, the Accused reiterated this praise in an interview with Bosnian Serb television, where he referred to Mladić as a “legend”.¹⁹⁷⁶⁹

5814. Based on all this evidence, and taking into consideration that the Accused knew of the concrete plan of eliminating the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by forcibly removing the women, children, and elderly men as of the evening of 11 July, and participated in that plan; and that he agreed to and embraced its expansion to encompass the killing of the able-bodied men and boys as demonstrated by his conversation with Deronjić on the evening of 13 July as well as his subsequent actions, the Chamber is satisfied beyond reasonable doubt that the Accused shared the common purpose of eliminating the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica with the other members of the JCE.

iv. Accused's contribution to the Srebrenica JCE

5815. Having established above that the Accused shared the common purpose of eliminating the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica, the Chamber now turns to the means through which the Accused significantly contributed to the Srebrenica JCE. In assessing whether the Accused made a ¹⁹⁷⁶⁵ See paras. 5793–5796.

¹⁹⁷⁶⁶ See paras. 5793–5795. The Chamber also finds that, while it did not receive evidence as to the Accused's direct participation in the reburial operation conducted in September–October 1995, an inference can be drawn from the conversation between the Accused and Mladić on 22 March 1996, about the Accused's knowledge of the operation. See para. 5793. See also Prosecution Final Brief, para. 812 (alleging that, once it became apparent that the international community had learned of the Srebrenica killings, VRS, MUP, and civilian authorities, with the Accused's approval, engaged in a highly secret and co-ordinated operation for the reburial of bodies to more remote areas).

¹⁹⁷⁶⁷ The Chamber understands the reference to the “Staff of the Police Armed Forces” to be a reference to the MUP units dispatched to the Srebrenica area under Borovčanin's command.

¹⁹⁷⁶⁸ See para. 5789. The Chamber also notes that the Accused indeed promoted Krstić on 13 July and heralded both him and Živanović as “the main architects” of the “brilliant victory in Srebrenica and Žepa”. See para. 5789, fn. 19673.

¹⁹⁷⁶⁹ See fn. 19676. The Chamber recalls that before issuing the 23 March 1996 Order, the Accused warned Mladić that, “[i]f they expand the campaign then they would form a joint commission [...] to investigate the killing of every individual”. P1490 (Ratko Mladić's notebook, 16 January–28 November 1996), e-court p. 47. In the Chamber's view, the fact that the Accused forewarned Mladić is yet another indication that the Accused shared the common purpose to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica. See para. 5793.

significant contribution to the Srebrenica JCE, the Chamber has limited its examination to the Accused's acts and conduct during the period of this JCE. In this regard, the Chamber recalls its finding that the common plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica was formed as the enclave fell and that although this objective initially encompassed the forcible removal and persecution of the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica, some members agreed to an expanded objective which involved the killing of the Bosnian Muslim men and boys.¹⁹⁷⁷⁰

5816. The Chamber has already found above that the Accused knew of the concrete plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by forcibly removing the women, children, and elderly men as the long-term strategy aimed at removing the Bosnian Muslim population from Srebrenica began to be transformed into a concrete plan to eliminate them, as the enclave fell, and that he agreed to the further expansion of that plan so as to involve killings, at the latest during his conversation with Deronjić on the night of 13 July.¹⁹⁷⁷¹

5817. In relation to the removal aspect of the plan to eliminate, the Chamber recalls that the Accused used his de jure powers to issue orders establishing Bosnian Serb municipal structures in "Serb Srebrenica"; this included the appointment of Deronjić as civilian commissioner and the formation of the SJB.¹⁹⁷⁷² As the Chamber has already found, the establishment of such structures demonstrates that the removal of the Bosnian Muslim population from Srebrenica was envisaged to be permanent.¹⁹⁷⁷³ Further, during the take-over, the Accused issued an order which allowed for his continued oversight and control of the restrictions on the access of humanitarian convoys to the enclave, which had the practical effect of limiting international access to the enclave.¹⁹⁷⁷⁴ All of these orders were carried out as instructed by the Accused.¹⁹⁷⁷⁵

5818. In relation to the killing aspect of the plan to eliminate, the Chamber recalls that when the Accused spoke to Deronjić, who desperately wanted to avoid the Bosnian Muslim males being killed in Bratunac, at approximately 8 p.m., far from intervening to prevent the killings from taking place at all, the Accused himself ordered that the Bosnian Muslim male detainees who were then being held in Bratunac be transferred elsewhere; they were then taken to Zvornik and killed.¹⁹⁷⁷⁶ The Chamber also recalls that, as President of the RS and Supreme Commander of the VRS, the

¹⁹⁷⁷¹ See paras. 5805–5814.

¹⁹⁷⁷² See para. 5693. The Chamber further recalls that in addition to the written orders he issued, the Accused took the time to reiterate and reinforce over the phone, at least once, his written orders. See para. 5694.

¹⁹⁷⁷³ See para. 5694.

¹⁹⁷⁷⁴ See para. 5761.

¹⁹⁷⁷⁶ See paras. 5772, 5805, 5814.

Accused had de jure authority over the VRS and the MUP which he exercised in fact;¹⁹⁷⁷⁷ Deronjić, as civilian commissioner of Srebrenica, answered directly to the Accused.¹⁹⁷⁷⁸ Accordingly, the Accused was the sole person within the RS with the power to intervene to prevent the Bosnian Serb Forces from moving the detainees to Zvornik to be killed.¹⁹⁷⁷⁹ Mladić's order, which was consistent with the Accused's decision to move the detainees to Zvornik, was almost immediately communicated down the chain of command and ultimately implemented by members of the VRS security organs, including Beara and Popović, who have been found by the Chamber to have been members of the Srebrenica JCE.¹⁹⁷⁸⁰ Furthermore, during a briefing of VRS officers at the Standard Barracks on the following afternoon, Beara stated that he had received an order from "two Presidents" to "get rid" of the detainees who were then being held in various locations in Zvornik.¹⁹⁷⁸¹ The Chamber is thus satisfied that the Accused's order to move the Bosnian Muslim males of Srebrenica enabled their transfer to Zvornik, where they were ultimately killed.

5819. The Chamber also recalls that, with full knowledge of the ongoing killing operation, the Accused declared a state of war in the area of Srebrenica–Skelani Municipality on 14 July, and created the War Presidency of Srebrenica–Skelani Municipality, appointing Deronjić as the president of that body.¹⁹⁷⁸² The Chamber recalls that by the time the Accused issued these orders, the Bosnian Serb Forces had already taken Srebrenica and thus, there was no military reason to declare a state of war. The declaration of the state of war had the practical effect of allowing the armed forces deployed in the area of responsibility of the Drina Corps, which also encompassed the Bratunac and Zvornik municipalities, to utilise all human and material resources without having to follow complicated procedural protocols,¹⁹⁷⁸³ thus facilitating the ongoing killing operation. In this regard, the Chamber recalls specifically that, as early as 14 July, the burial of bodies at Glogova began, with the assistance of civilian resources.¹⁹⁷⁸⁴ Civilian resources were also used to assist in the burial of bodies of those killed at the various facilities in Zvornik over the following days.¹⁹⁷⁸⁵ The Chamber therefore finds that the Accused's issuance of these orders facilitated the smooth execution of the killing aspect of the plan to eliminate.

¹⁹⁷⁷⁸ See paras. 5693–5694.

¹⁹⁷⁷⁹ The Chamber recalls the Prosecution's claim that the Accused's failure to take measures to prevent his subordinates' involvement in crimes he knew were being committed pursuant to the Srebrenica JCE constitutes a contribution to such JCE. See para. 5749. However, in light of the Chamber's finding that the Accused came to know of the crimes at the latest by approximately 8 p.m. on 13 July, this contribution is irrelevant for the crimes committed prior to this time.

¹⁹⁷⁸⁰ See paras. 5711–5712.

¹⁹⁷⁸¹ See para. 5715.

¹⁹⁷⁸³ See para. 5779.

5820. As the Chamber has described in detail above, the Accused utilised numerous channels in order to obtain information from the ground, which enabled him to maintain constant oversight over the plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica as it unfolded. Such means of monitoring included regular written reports from both the Main Staff and the Main Staff Security Organ, as well as the MUP, all of which described the transport of the Bosnian Muslims from Potočari as well as the existence of and efforts to intercept the column of Bosnian Muslim men and capture its members.¹⁹⁷⁸⁶ The information contained in these reports was augmented by conversations with Živanović in the very early hours of 12 July and with Mladić on the afternoon of 13 July.¹⁹⁷⁸⁷ By the time the Accused spoke to Mladić, he had already sent Kovač to the field, where the latter met with Mladić and spent more than 24 hours touring the Srebrenica area before returning to Pale and briefing the Accused on the following day.¹⁹⁷⁸⁸ The Accused also received information from personal contacts, such as Deronjić—who he appointed as civilian commissioner of Srebrenica—and Bajagić, who came to Pale at the Accused’s request in the early morning hours of 15 July in order to share his observations of the events in Srebrenica with the Accused.¹⁹⁷⁸⁹ It is thus clear to the Chamber that the Accused maintained a close overview of what happened in the aftermath of the Bosnian Serb Forces’ take-over of Srebrenica. This finding is consistent with the fact that, merely 90 minutes after Pandurević reported to the Main Staff that he had opened a corridor to permit members of the column to pass, a Main Staff officer called the Zvornik Brigade on behalf of the “the boss [...] the main head of state” in order to enquire what had happened.¹⁹⁷⁹⁰ At the same time, Karišik was sent to Bratunac for the same purpose, and by 4:15 p.m., he had informed the Accused that the corridor was open.¹⁹⁷⁹¹ The Chamber recalls that that night, further reinforcements were sent to the Zvornik area, and the following day, the Main Staff sent three colonels to investigate Pandurević’s decision.¹⁹⁷⁹² While the Chamber cannot draw any conclusions as to whether these latter two actions were taken pursuant to a specific order of the Accused, the Chamber finds that they were consistent with the tenor of his oversight, as had the Accused intended for the corridor to remain open, he would have issued such an order. Particularly given his position as President of the RS and Supreme Commander of the VRS, and the extent of his contemporaneous knowledge as described in more detail above, the Chamber considers that such oversight, coupled with the fact that the Accused made no other attempt to interfere with or influence what was transpiring on the ground, furthered the objective of eliminating the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica.

¹⁹⁷⁸⁵ See paras. 5402, 5444–5445.

¹⁹⁷⁸⁶ See para. 5801. The Chamber recalls that after 14 July, the Main Staff’s daily combat reports no longer mentioned any Bosnian Muslim detainees, but notes that they—along with reports from MUP—described efforts to intercept the column. See para. 5801.

¹⁹⁷⁸⁷ See paras. 5762, 5768–5770, 5803–5804.

5821. In the preceding paragraphs, the Chamber has identified the various ways through which the Accused furthered the common plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica. Based on the abundant evidence before it, and considering the totality of the Chamber's findings in this regard, as well as the functions and positions of the Accused at the time—particularly the de jure authority over the VRS and MUP which he exercised in fact—and the impact of his acts and omissions on the implementation of this JCE as set out above, the Chamber finds that the Accused significantly contributed to the Srebrenica JCE.

v. Accused's responsibility for crimes pursuant to the Srebrenica JCE

5822. The Chamber has found above that the Accused shared the common purpose of eliminating the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by forcibly removing the women, children, and elderly men and by killing the men and boys,¹⁹⁷⁹³ and that he significantly contributed to the plan to accomplish this objective by these means.¹⁹⁷⁹⁴ The Chamber has also found that the crimes of genocide, murder, extermination, persecution, and inhumane acts (forcible transfer) were committed by Bosnian Serb Forces following the fall of the Srebrenica in July 1995.¹⁹⁷⁹⁵ The Chamber has further found that these crimes fell within either the original or the expanded scope of that common purpose, which amounted to or involved their commission.¹⁹⁷⁹⁶ The Chamber will now examine whether the Accused shared the intent for each of these crimes and is thus criminally responsible for them as alleged in the Indictment.

(A) Murder, extermination, and inhumane acts (forcible transfer)

5823. As set out above, the Chamber has found that the Accused had contemporaneous knowledge of the plan to eliminate as it unfolded and came to encompass both the forcible removal of thousands of Bosnian Muslim women, children, and elderly men of Srebrenica from the UN Compound in Potočari as well as the killing of thousands of able-bodied Bosnian Muslim men and boys, and that he significantly contributed to the plan which accomplished this. The Chamber thus finds that the Accused intended the crimes of murder and inhumane acts (forcible transfer). The Chamber is also satisfied that, given the vast scale of the killing operation and the Accused's knowledge thereof, the Accused possessed the requisite mens rea for extermination.

¹⁹⁷⁹⁵ See paras. 5607–5608, 5611–5612, 5618–5620, 5633, 5640–5645, 5648–5654, 5658, 5661, 5666, 5669, 5671–5673

(B) Persecution

5824. With regard to persecution, and first the issue of persecutory intent, the Chamber recalls that an accused's intent to discriminate on one of the prohibited grounds may be inferred where the circumstances surrounding the commission of the alleged acts substantiate the existence of discriminatory intent.¹⁹⁷⁹⁷ In this regard, the Chamber recalls that the plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica was by nature a discriminatory plan targeting the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica. The Chamber is thus satisfied that, as detailed above, the Accused participated in and significantly contributed to this plan with the intent to discriminate against the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica, and thus with persecutory intent. Earlier in the Judgement, the Chamber found that the circumstances in which the forcible removal of the Bosnian Muslim population of Srebrenica and the execution of the Bosnian Muslim men and boys were carried out were such that they demonstrated that Bosnian Serb Forces deliberately inflicted serious physical and mental suffering on them, and thus amounted to cruel and inhumane treatment, an act of persecution.¹⁹⁷⁹⁸ Having found that the Accused shared the intent for murder, extermination, and forcible transfer, the Chamber finds that the only reasonable inference from the circumstances in which the removal and killing aspects of the plan to eliminate were conducted, and of which he was fully aware, is that he also shared the intent to subject the Bosnian Muslim population in Srebrenica to cruel and inhumane treatment.

(C) Genocide

5825. With respect to the crime of genocide, the Chamber recalls that, in order for the Accused to be criminally responsible for this crime, it must be satisfied that the Accused intended to destroy the protected group, in whole or in part, as such.¹⁹⁷⁹⁹ The Chamber further notes that, as other chambers have held, indications of such intent are "rarely overt",¹⁹⁸⁰⁰ and thus intent must often be inferred on the basis of the totality of the evidence, taking into account such factors as the scale of atrocities as well as the systematic targeting of victims on account of their membership in a particular group.¹⁹⁸⁰¹

5826. The Prosecution argues that the Accused shared with other members of the Srebrenica JCE the intent to destroy the Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica, which—taking into account the Accused’s “supreme position”—manifested itself through his acts, omissions, and statements, as well as the systematic, coordinated, and targeted manner in which the genocidal acts were carried out.¹⁹⁸⁰² As stated at the outset of this section, the Chamber has considered the Accused’s arguments, which were framed as denials of his membership in a “genocidal plan”, in relation to whether the Accused was a member of the Srebrenica JCE above, as they relate primarily to whether the Accused was aware of the killing aspect of the plan to eliminate.¹⁹⁸⁰³ The Chamber has been mindful of those same arguments when analysing whether the Accused intended to destroy the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica, as set out in the analysis below.

5827. The Chamber has already established that the Accused participated in the plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by forcibly removing the women, children, and elderly men and killing the men and boys with the intent to discriminate against the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica.¹⁹⁸⁰⁴ However, such discriminatory intent is not necessarily equivalent with the intent to destroy the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica as such, which constituted a substantial part of the protected group of Bosnian Muslims.¹⁹⁸⁰⁵ The Chamber must therefore further analyse the acts and conduct of the Accused detailed above in order to determine whether, in light of his knowledge of the implementation of the plan to eliminate—particularly his knowledge of its killing aspect—it is satisfied that the only reasonable inference is that the Accused intended to destroy the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica as such.

5828. In this regard, the Chamber recalls that, in determining that the killings of thousands of Bosnian Muslim males and the acts causing serious bodily or mental harm to thousands of Bosnian Muslims of Srebrenica were carried out with the intent to destroy that part of the protected group as such, the Chamber had particular regard to the fact that the Bosnian Serbs tried to kill every able-bodied Bosnian Muslim male from Srebrenica.¹⁹⁸⁰⁶ Indeed, the plan, which was carried out by Bosnian Serb Forces who vigorously pursued the Bosnian Muslim males in the column, ¹⁹⁸⁰¹ See para. 550.

¹⁹⁸⁰² Prosecution Final Brief, paras. 1096, 1098–1099. The Prosecution points specifically to the Accused’s expression of regret that not all of the Bosnian Muslim men were killed, as well as his efforts to cover up the forcible removal and murder operations, in support of its argument. Prosecution Final Brief, para. 1099.

¹⁹⁸⁰³ See para. 5754.

¹⁹⁸⁰⁵ See para. 5672.

encompassed the killing of all Bosnian Muslim males within Bosnian Serb custody, irrespective of whether they were combatants or civilians and regardless of whether they were captured or had surrendered.¹⁹⁸⁰⁷

5829. With respect to the intent of the Accused, the Chamber recalls that the Accused was apprised by Deronjić that as of 8:10 p.m., the Bosnian Serb Forces had “about two thousand” Bosnian Muslim males in custody and expected that number to increase overnight.¹⁹⁸⁰⁸ The Chamber also considers that the only reasonable inference is that the Accused must have learned from Kovač—either during their conversation on 13 July or during their subsequent meeting on 14 July—that most of the able-bodied Bosnian Muslim men had not gone to the UN Compound with their families, but had fled through the woods.¹⁹⁸⁰⁹ Moreover, the Chamber recalls that the Accused received daily combat reports from the Main Staff, which, after reporting on the existence of the column of Bosnian Muslim males—as well as on the Bosnian Serb Forces’ subsequent organised efforts to intercept it which resulted in the capture and surrender of large numbers of Bosnian Muslim males between 12 and 14 July—made no further mention of detainees.¹⁹⁸¹⁰ Accordingly, in view of his awareness of the number of males in custody, in the Chamber’s view, there is no doubt that the Accused knew that the thousands of Bosnian Muslim male detainees being held by the Bosnian Serb Forces in the Srebrenica area constituted a very significant percentage of the Bosnian Muslim males from Srebrenica.

5830. The Chamber therefore takes particular note of the fact that, despite his contemporaneous knowledge of its progress as set out above, the Accused agreed with and therefore did not intervene to halt or hinder the killing aspect of the plan to eliminate between the evening of 13 July and 17 July. Instead, he ordered that the detainees be moved to Zvornik, where they were killed.¹⁹⁸¹¹ Moreover, once Pandurević reported on 16 July that he had opened a corridor to allow members of the column who had not yet been captured or surrendered to pass through, Karišik was promptly sent to investigate and the corridor was closed within a day.¹⁹⁸¹² Finally, the Chamber recalls that although he touted the opening of the corridor when speaking to the international press, in a closed

¹⁹⁸¹⁰ See para. 5801.

¹⁹⁸¹¹ See para. 5818. The Chamber recalls that it received evidence that the Accused agreed to allow the local staff of UNPROFOR, which included Bosnian Muslim males, to leave the UN Compound with UNPROFOR. See para. 5132. The Chamber considers that the reason proffered by the Bosnian Serb Forces for separating and taking custody of the other Bosnian Muslim males in Potočari—namely that they were to be screened for involvement in war crimes—would not have applied to such staff, and the Chamber finds that this action by the Accused does not raise any doubt regarding his intent that all Bosnian Muslim males in Bosnian Serb custody be killed.

¹⁹⁸¹² See paras. 5470–5472, 5784.

session of the Bosnian Serb Assembly held weeks later, the Accused expressed regret that the Bosnian Muslim males had managed to pass through Bosnian Serb lines.¹⁹⁸¹³ Accordingly, the Chamber considers that the only reasonable inference available on such evidence is that the Accused shared with Mladić, Beara, and Popović the intent that every able-bodied Bosnian Muslim male from Srebrenica be killed, which, in the Chamber's view, amounts to the intent to destroy the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica.

(D) Conclusion

5831. Having found above that the Accused shared the intent for the crimes of murder, inhumane acts (forcible transfer), extermination, persecution, and genocide, the Chamber finds that by virtue of his participation in the Srebrenica JCE, the Accused is responsible for these crimes.¹⁹⁸¹⁴ However, the Chamber notes that because it is only able to determine that the Accused agreed to the killing aspect of the plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by, at the latest, 13 July at 8:10 p.m., it cannot hold the Accused responsible for the killings and the related acts of persecution which occurred prior to that time through his participation in the Srebrenica JCE.

5832. The Chamber takes note of the Prosecution's alternative allegation that the Accused is responsible for the crimes of genocide, murder, extermination, and persecution as foreseeable consequences of the Overarching JCE.¹⁹⁸¹⁵ However, the Chamber considers this allegation to be an alternative charge only if the Chamber had been unable to determine the existence of the common plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by forcibly removing the women, children, and elderly men and killing the men and boys. Since the Chamber has established the existence of the common purpose of the Srebrenica JCE above, as well as the sharing of this common purpose by a plurality of persons, including the Accused, who significantly contributed to it, the Chamber shall not consider the Prosecution's alternative allegation further.

c. Superior responsibility

5833. Having found above that the Accused could not be held responsible through his participation in the Srebrenica JCE for the killings which occurred prior to his conversation with Deronjić on 13 July, wherein he agreed to the killing aspect of the common plan to eliminate, the Chamber will now consider the Accused's responsibility as a superior pursuant to Article 7(3) of ¹⁹⁸¹³ See paras. 5474, 5791.

¹⁹⁸¹⁴ In addition, based on all the evidence discussed above, the Chamber finds that the Accused was aware that his conduct was part of a widespread and systematic attack directed against a civilian population.

¹⁹⁸¹⁵ Indictment, paras. 43, 59, 64.

the Statute. In this regard, the Chamber will consider whether the Accused is responsible for failing to punish these killings.¹⁹⁸¹⁶

i. Submissions of the parties

5834. The Prosecution generally argues that the Accused is responsible for the crimes in Srebrenica as a superior pursuant to Article 7(3) of the Statute, in his capacity of SDS party leader, President of the SNB, President of the Presidency, Supreme Commander of the VRS, and the acknowledged leader of the Bosnian Serbs.¹⁹⁸¹⁷ It adds that the Accused had command and effective control over a vast network of subordinates in the Bosnian Serb Forces and the Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs.¹⁹⁸¹⁸ According to the Prosecution, during the Indictment period the Accused knew or had reason to know that his subordinates were about to commit or had committed crimes charged in the Indictment and nevertheless failed to take the necessary and reasonable measures to prevent the commission of these crimes and/or punish his subordinates who perpetrated them.¹⁹⁸¹⁹

5835. The Chamber notes that, as he did above in relation to his arguments regarding his participation in the Srebrenica JCE, the Accused focuses his arguments in relation to his responsibility under Article 7(3) of the Statute for the Srebrenica component on his alleged responsibility for failing to prevent or punish genocide. However, the Chamber will interpret these arguments to pertain to the Accused's responsibility for failing to prevent or punish the killings listed above.¹⁹⁸²⁰

5836. The Accused submits that (i) he lacked knowledge or reason to know that crimes had been committed by his subordinates in Srebrenica, (ii) he lacked effective control over the perpetrators, and (iii) he took necessary and reasonable measures to punish the perpetrators.¹⁹⁸²¹ According to the Accused, a review of the information available to him as of August 1995, demonstrates that there was nothing to indicate to him that crimes had occurred.¹⁹⁸²² Therefore, the Prosecution has failed to prove beyond reasonable doubt that the Accused knew or should have known that crimes had been committed in connection with the fall of Srebrenica.¹⁹⁸²³ Lastly the Accused claims that he took necessary and reasonable measures to punish the perpetrators, even though he no longer was required to request an investigation after the Tribunal indicted him for the Srebrenica events.¹⁹⁸²⁴ In this regard, the Accused argues that, given that he did not have investigative or prosecutorial organs in his cabinet, the only measure he could take to punish crimes was to ensure that the competent authorities were investigating.¹⁹⁸²⁵ He also argues that the Prosecution has failed to establish that he deliberately or wilfully failed to punish the perpetrators, as during and after the killings of the men from Srebrenica, “he was no longer in control of the army”.¹⁹⁸²⁶

¹⁹⁸¹⁶ In the context of this case—particularly the Chamber's findings regarding the point at which the Accused came to know about to the expansion of the means of carrying out the objective of the Srebrenica JCE—the Chamber considers that the Accused's material ability to prevent the killings which occurred prior to this point is irrelevant. Accordingly, it will only examine the Accused's failure to punish these crimes.

ii. Crimes committed by subordinates

5837. The Chamber has found above that the killings of Bosnian Muslim males which occurred prior to the Accused’s agreement to the expansion of the means of eliminating the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica, which occurred at the latest by 8:10 p.m. on 13 July, were perpetrated by various members of the Bosnian Serb Forces. Specifically, the Chamber has found that ten Bosnian Muslim men were killed by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces present in Potočari on 13 July 1995, all of whom were either members of the VRS or the MUP.¹⁹⁸²⁷ The Chamber has also found that, on that same day, 15 Bosnian Muslim men were killed in an isolated area on the bank of the Jadar River by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces, including at least one member of the Bratunac SJB.¹⁹⁸²⁸ The Chamber also recalls that the killings of 10 to 15 Bosnian Muslim at the Sandići Meadow on 13 July were carried out by members of the Jahorina Recruits, who were part of the Bosnian Serb Forces deployed in the area at the time.¹⁹⁸²⁹ Similarly, the Chamber found that the killings at the Kravica Warehouse on 13 and 14 July were carried out by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces deployed in the area, including members of the 3rd Skelani Platoon of the 2nd Šekovići Detachment.¹⁹⁸³⁰ Finally, the Chamber recalls its finding that the killing of at least 50 Bosnian Muslim men in Bratunac town between 12 and 14 July, and the killing of a mentally challenged man outside the Vuk Karadžić School in Bratunac on the evening of 13 July, were carried out by members of the Bosnian Serb Forces.¹⁹⁸³¹ In this regard, the Chamber recalls that the Bosnian ¹⁹⁸²⁹ See Section IV.C.1.e.iv.D: Sandići Meadow.

¹⁹⁸³⁰ See Section IV.C.1.e.iv.C: Kravica Warehouse. The Chamber recalls the evidence that a member of the 10th Sabotage Detachment threw two hand-grenades inside one of the rooms of the warehouse. See para. 5233.

Muslim men being detained in Bratunac town starting on the afternoon of 12 July were guarded by members of the Bratunac Brigade MP and the MUP.¹⁹⁸³²

5838. The Chamber notes that it has not received evidence which would suggest the presence of armed groups or units not affiliated with the Bosnian Serb Forces operating in the Srebrenica area between the evening of 12 July and the morning of 14 July, i.e. when the killings referred to in the previous paragraph took place. Thus, while the Chamber was unable to precisely identify each individual perpetrator of the killing incidents referred to above, it is satisfied that the units to which such persons belonged were all part of the subordinate Bosnian Serb Forces deployed in the area at the time, and were thus directly subordinated to, and fell under the structure of, the VRS or the MUP.

5839. In relation to the subordinate VRS forces operating in the area at the time, the Chamber recalls that they were part of the units previously deployed in the Drina Corps' area of responsibility pursuant to the deployment orders issued in accordance with the Krivaja 95 plan.¹⁹⁸³³ These forces were operating under the command of Krstić, who was a direct subordinate of the VRS Commander, Mladić. The Chamber recalls that Mladić, as Commander of the Main Staff, was the Accused's direct subordinate.¹⁹⁸³⁴

5840. In relation to the subordinate MUP units operating in the area at the time, the Chamber recalls that they can be grouped in two main categories, namely the municipal police units belonging to the Zvornik CJB, and those redeployed to the area pursuant to Kovač's order on 10 July.¹⁹⁸³⁵ While in the Srebrenica area, these units were also operating under the command of the VRS.¹⁹⁸³⁶ The Chamber recalls that the latter included RS MUP forces previously deployed on the Sarajevo front, including the 2nd Šekovići Detachment and a company of the Jahorina Recruits, which were sent to the Srebrenica sector as a conglomerate of forces under Borovčanin's command.¹⁹⁸³⁷ According to the order of redeployment, these forces were to make contact with ¹⁹⁸³² See para. 5293.

¹⁹⁸³³ See paras. 5005–5006, 5010. The Chamber further recalls that on 10 July, the Main Staff redeployed a part of the 10th Sabotage Detachment to the Srebrenica front. See para. 5021.

The Chamber also recalls its finding that members of the RDB were present in Potočari on 12 and 13 July. See para. 5120. These forces under Kijac were ultimately subordinated to Kovač as the acting head of the RS MUP. See Section II.C.3: Bosnian Serb MUP; para. 5764.

Krstić on arrival to its destination on 11 July.¹⁹⁸³⁸ By reporting to Krstić, they were to receive further instructions.¹⁹⁸³⁹ In relation to the municipal police units, such as the Bratunac SJB and the PJP present in the area and assisting in various tasks, including the guarding of detainees in Bratunac town, the Chamber recalls that, as part of the Zvornik CJB, they could be deployed for combat related operations and were to supplement military forces in the area of responsibility of the Drina Corps.¹⁹⁸⁴⁰ The Chamber received evidence that these forces were re-subordinated to the VRS upon their deployment on mission.¹⁹⁸⁴¹ Accordingly, these forces were also operating under the command of Krstić, and, ultimately, Mladić.

iii. Superior-subordinate relationship

5841. With regard to the Accused's authority over the Bosnian Serb Forces during the take-over of Srebrenica, the Chamber recalls its previous finding that since 1992 the Accused had de jure authority over the VRS which he exercised in fact.¹⁹⁸⁴² Further, the Chamber reiterates that despite the differences that existed between Mladić, as Commander of the VRS Main Staff, and the Accused, as Supreme Commander, the Accused retained de jure authority over Mladić.¹⁹⁸⁴³ As such, the Accused and Mladić maintained a superior-subordinate relationship throughout the Indictment period, including the time period relevant to the Srebrenica component of the case.¹⁹⁸⁴⁴ The Chamber further notes with particular regard to the attack and eventual take-over of Srebrenica that prior to the attack, the Accused and Krajišnik visited the Drina Corps Command in Vlasenica and gave Krstić a combat assignment; that once the attack was underway, Tolimir sought and received the Accused's prior approval for its expansion so as to include taking over the town; and that Mladić thereafter conveyed the Accused's order to his subordinate commanders.¹⁹⁸⁴⁵ Accordingly, the Chamber is satisfied that the Accused continued to have de jure authority over the VRS in July 1995, which he exercised in fact. Furthermore, as outlined in more detail above, once prompted by international attention to the fate of the missing Bosnian Muslim males of Srebrenica—in particular by Madeline Albright's visit to Pilica on 22 March 1996—within one day, the Accused issued an order to the Main Staff and the Bosnian Serb MUP to form a mixed investigative commission.¹⁹⁸⁴⁶ In the Chamber's view, this establishes that as late as 1996, the Accused not only had the authority to issue orders as Supreme Commander but also that his orders were followed in fact.¹⁹⁸⁴⁷

5842. As noted above, the Law on the Army set out the Accused's exclusive competence in terms of the initial commission of officers, their subsequent appointment, transfer, and termination of service of officers with the rank of General.¹⁹⁸⁴⁸ Further, the Chamber found earlier that by the time of the events in the Srebrenica component of the case, military courts were functioning.¹⁹⁸⁴⁹ Therefore taking all these circumstances into account, in particular the nature of the orders the Accused had the authority to give, the nature of his position and the powers resulting therefrom, and the fact that military court system was functioning at the relevant time, the Chamber is satisfied that the Accused had the material ability to punish the killings that occurred prior to the point at which he agreed to the killing aspect of the Srebrenica JCE on 13 July 1995.

iv. Knowledge or "reason to know"

5843. The Chamber has found above that the Accused learned of the expansion of the plan to eliminate such that it involved killing the Bosnian Muslim men and boys of Srebrenica sometime before he spoke to Deronjić at approximately 8 p.m. on 13 July.¹⁹⁸⁵⁰ Further, the Chamber recalls its finding that Deronjić specifically informed the Accused about the Kravica Warehouse killings at least by the time they met alone prior to a meeting with a larger group from Srebrenica on 14 July.¹⁹⁸⁵¹ The Chamber is therefore satisfied that the Accused knew of the large scale Kravica Warehouse killings by the day after they were committed. Considering that, at a minimum, this news put the Accused on notice that members of the Bosnian Serb Forces had killed hundreds of Bosnian Muslim detainees who had been in their custody following the fall of the Srebrenica enclave, the Chamber finds that the Accused possessed sufficiently alarming information to justify further inquiry into whether other unlawful acts had been committed.

¹⁹⁸⁴⁶ See paras. 5793–5797.

¹⁹⁸⁴⁷ The Chamber recalls that the Accused had de jure authority which he exercised in fact over the military in the RS, including its justice systems, throughout the Indictment period, as demonstrated by his executive action acquitting David Rohde of espionage on 8 November 1995. See paras. 3157, 3412, 5792. The Chamber further notes that, two days after the issuance of the 23 March 1996 Order, Vasić held a meeting in Zvornik pursuant to its terms. See para. 5794.

¹⁹⁸⁴⁸ See para. 167. The Chamber recalls that the Accused himself acknowledged at the Bosnian Serb Assembly that if he did not trust Mladić, he would have dismissed him as he had the authority to do that. See para. 3146.

¹⁹⁸⁴⁹ See para. 3412.

¹⁹⁸⁵⁰ See para. 5811.

¹⁹⁸⁵¹ See para. 5808.

v. Failure to take necessary and reasonable measures

5844. The Chamber recalls that the duty of a superior to punish will be fulfilled when necessary and reasonable, or feasible, measures to punish perpetrators have been taken.¹⁹⁸⁵² “Necessary” measures are the measures appropriate for the superior to discharge his obligation (showing that he genuinely tried to punish) and “reasonable” measures are those reasonably falling within the material powers of the superior.¹⁹⁸⁵³

5845. First, the Chamber has found that the Accused had the material ability to remove from service the perpetrators of the killings about which he had received information. Instead of doing so, upon learning of the large scale killings which had just occurred, not only did the Accused take no steps to remove the perpetrators from service, but he joined in the killing aspect of the plan to eliminate.¹⁹⁸⁵⁴

5846. With regard to the orders issued by the Accused in March 1996, the Chamber recalls that the 23 March 1996 Order was issued within two days of the U.S. government’s release of aerial photographs showing a large number of bodies lying in a field near Branjevo Military Farm on 17 July 1995, and within one day of Madeleine Albright’s visit to the Branjevo Military Farm on 22 March 1996.¹⁹⁸⁵⁵ In addition, the Chamber notes that the day before the order’s issuance the ¹⁹⁸⁵³ Popović et al. Appeal Judgement, para. 1927.

¹⁹⁸⁵⁴ The Chamber recalls that, for a period in August 1995, the Accused removed Mladić as Commander of the VRS and appointed him as Special Advisor to the Supreme Commander. However, on 27 August, he abrogated this decision. See paras. 174, 3138. Around the same time, the Accused also praised and recognised VRS Commanders for their actions in Srebrenica. See para. 5789. The Chamber also recalls that other members of the Srebrenica JCE continued to exercise their functions in the VRS unhindered. See inter alia P1473 (Ratko Mladić’s notebook, 27 January–5 September 1995), e-court pp 310–311 (recording a meeting held on 22 August 1995 between VRS officers and Rupert Smith which was attended, among others, by Mladić and Popović); Vujadin Popović, T. 43138–43139 (6 November 2013); P1489 (Ratko Mladić’s notebook, 28 August 1995–15 January 1996), e-court p. 117 (recording a meeting of the Main Staff held on 19 November 1995 which was attended, among others, by Mladić and Beara), e-court pp. 123, 126 (recording a meeting of the Main Staff held on 22 November 1995 which was attended, among others, by Mladić and Beara); e-court pp. 189, 201 (recording a meeting of the collegium of Main Staff Commanders held on 24 December 1995 which was attended, among others, by Mladić and Beara); pp. 231 (recording a meeting of the RS core leadership held on 31 December 1995 which was attended, among others, by the Accused, Mladić, and Beara); P1490 (Ratko Mladić’s notebook, 16 January–28 November 1996), p. 8 (recording a meeting of the expanded collegium of Main Staff Commanders held on 16 January 1996 which was attended, among others, by Mladić and Beara), e-court pp. 36, 72–73, 88 (recording three briefings of Main Staff organs held on 4 March, 29 April, and 10 June 1996, which were attended, among others, by Mladić and Beara), e-court p. 82 (recording a meeting held on 30 May 1996 attended by Beara), pp. 124, 128 (recording a meeting held on 16 September 1996 attended by Beara), e-court pp. 132, 138 (recording a meeting of the collegium of Main Staff Commanders held on 12 October 1996 which was attended, among others, by Mladić and Beara), e-court p. 141 (recording a meeting of the Main Staff with the VJ’s General Staff held on 15 October 1996 which was attended, among others, by Mladić and Beara), e-court p. 158 (recording a meeting of the expanded collegium of Main Staff Commanders held on 14 November 1996 which was attended, among others, by Mladić and Beara); e-court pp. 163–164 (recording a meeting of Main Staff Generals held on 15 November 1996 which was attended, among others, by Mladić and Beara).

¹⁹⁸⁵⁵ See para. 5451. The Accused argues that the 23 March 1996 Order’s reference to the “arbitrary and biased conclusions” drawn by Albright and “media experts” demonstrates that at the time, he did not believe the Accused warned Mladić that, “[i]f they expand the campaign then they would form a joint commission [...] to investigate the killing of every individual”,¹⁹⁸⁵⁶ as well as by the fact that Predrag Drinić’s attempt to implement the 23 March 1996 Order was met with silence from the Main Staff.¹⁹⁸⁵⁷ In the Chamber’s view, the fact, despite the Accused’s long-standing awareness of the killings in Pilica, he took no action until that point, the 23 March 1996 Order was a response to international pressure created by the release of the photos and Albright’s visit, not a genuine attempt to shed light on what had actually transpired.

5847. In light of all the evidence, the Chamber finds that the Accused failed in his duty to punish the killings which occurred prior to the point at which he joined the Srebrenica JCE on the evening of 13 July 1995. Although he should have taken steps to investigate these crimes and punish the perpetrators either immediately upon learning of them or soon thereafter, the Accused issued the 23 March 1996 Order and the 1 April 1996 Order, more than eight months after the killings in question. In his capacity as Supreme Commander, the Accused had a duty to do more than that.

vi. Conclusion

5848. Based on the evidence discussed above, the Chamber finds that the Accused knew that crimes had been committed by his subordinates in the aftermath of the fall of the Srebrenica enclave, and had reason to know that others had also been committed. The Accused failed in his duty as Supreme Commander to take necessary and reasonable measures to punish the commission of genocide, murder, extermination, and killing as an underlying act of persecution. He is therefore criminally responsible for such failures pursuant to Article 7(3) of the Statute.

d. Conclusions: Accused’s individual criminal responsibility

5849. The Chamber found above that as Srebrenica fell, a common plan to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica—first through forcible removal and later through the killing of the men and boys—was established, that the Accused significantly contributed to this common purpose, and that he shared with the other members of the Srebrenica JCE the intent for the crimes within its scope. Accordingly, the Chamber finds that the Accused bears individual criminal responsibility pursuant to Article 7(1) of the Statute for genocide (Count 2); persecution, a crime against humanity (Count 3); extermination, a crime against humanity (Count 4); murder, a crime against humanity (Count 5); allegations of large-scale executions. Defence Final Brief, para. 3145. The Chamber refers to its analysis of the Accused’s membership in the Srebrenica JCE at paras. 5804–5811, 5813.

murder, a violation of the laws or customs of war (Count 6); and inhumane acts (forcible transfer), a crime against humanity (Count 8), which were found to have been committed in Srebrenica.

5850. In addition, the Chamber found that the Accused failed to punish the crimes of his subordinates which occurred before he agreed to the killing aspect of the Srebrenica JCE. Therefore, the Accused also bears individual criminal responsibility pursuant to Article 7(3) of the Statute in relation to genocide (Count 2); persecution, a crime against humanity (Count 3); extermination, a crime against humanity (Count 4); murder, a crime against humanity (Count 5); and murder, a violation of the laws or customs of war (Count 6). However, since the Chamber has already found the Accused responsible for genocide on the basis of his participation in the Srebrenica JCE as set out above, the Chamber will not enter a conviction pursuant to Article 7(3) of the Statute in relation to Count 2.¹⁹⁸⁵⁸

5851. The Chamber will address address the issue of cumulative convictions in Section IV.F. below.

D. HOSTAGES COMPONENT

5852. In Count 11, the Accused is charged with taking hostages as a violation of the laws or customs of war punishable under Article 3 of the Statute and Common Article 3. The Indictment alleges that on 25 and 26 May 1995, in response to shelling attacks on Sarajevo and other locations in BiH by the Bosnian Serb Forces, NATO carried out air strikes against Bosnian Serb military targets.¹⁹⁸⁵⁹ It is further alleged that between 26 May and 19 June 1995, over 200 UN peacekeepers and military observers in various locations across BiH were taken hostage by Bosnian Serb Forces.¹⁹⁸⁶⁰ According to the Indictment, the purpose of taking the UN personnel hostage was to compel NATO to abstain from conducting further air strikes against Bosnian Serb military targets.¹⁹⁸⁶¹ The Accused is charged both under Article 7(1) of the Statute for having committed in concert with others, through his participation in a JCE, planned, instigated, ordered, and/or aided and abetted the taking of these hostages, and under Article 7(3) as a superior for failing to take the necessary and reasonable measures to prevent such acts or punish the perpetrators thereof.¹⁹⁸⁶²

1. Facts

a. NATO air strikes

5853. As stated earlier, the situation in Sarajevo and BiH deteriorated further in May 1995.¹⁹⁸⁶³ In Sarajevo in early May 1995, tensions between the VRS and the ABiH increased.¹⁹⁸⁶⁴ On 16 May 1995, there was intense shelling in Grbavica.¹⁹⁸⁶⁵ Fighting southwest of the Jewish cemetery escalated significantly.¹⁹⁸⁶⁶ The VRS used weapons from the Osijek WCP to break through the ABiH defence.¹⁹⁸⁶⁷ The shelling continued the following day.¹⁹⁸⁶⁸

5854. On 22 May 1995, the activity of NATO jets flying overhead in Goražde increased.¹⁹⁸⁶⁹ The VRS had removed heavy weapons from the WCPs near Sarajevo, as did the ABiH, and fighting escalated.¹⁹⁸⁷⁰

5855. On 24 May 1995, there was intense shooting in Grbavica and NATO planes flew over the area.¹⁹⁸⁷¹ The VRS removed more heavy weapons from the WCP following an increase in the fighting and refused to return them.¹⁹⁸⁷² Smith called Mladić to express his concern that, in and around Sarajevo, weapons were not being returned to the WCPs and that heavy weapons were being fired from there.¹⁹⁸⁷³ Smith stated that he would issue a warning to both parties and release it to the press.¹⁹⁸⁷⁴ The warning was that if the weapons were not returned to the WCPs by 12 p.m. on 25 May 1995, then NATO air strikes would commence.¹⁹⁸⁷⁵ Smith told Mladić that they should meet as soon as possible to discuss a way in which the Sarajevo TEZ could be respected.¹⁹⁸⁷⁶

Mladić agreed to meet but reiterated that the use of force by the UN would lead to a further escalation of the conflict.¹⁹⁸⁷⁷

5856. On 25 May 1995, after the failure of the VRS to return heavy weapons to the WCPs, NATO was authorised by the UN to launch air strikes against Bosnian Serb military targets in Pale.¹⁹⁸⁷⁸ Smith stated that the purpose behind the air strikes was to re-impose the TEZ and the WCP regime, which were both breaking down.¹⁹⁸⁷⁹ Two air strikes were conducted: the first at 4 p.m. striking Jahorinski Potok and the second at 4:25 p.m. striking Ravna Planina.¹⁹⁸⁸⁰

b. VRS response to NATO air strikes

5857. On 25 May 1995, the Accused ordered Milovanović to “activate” a decision made the previous year ordering the VRS to “arrest everything foreign in RS territory and to treat military personnel as prisoners of war and hold them as hostages till the end of the war”.¹⁹⁸⁸¹ Consequently, Živanović issued an order to all units of the Drina Corps that following the NATO air strikes, the VRS should respond by conducting operations against selected targets and “if UNPROFOR continues its operations against our military and civilian targets, all units of the Corps must be on stand-by for action against UNPROFOR checkpoints and bases”.¹⁹⁸⁸² It further ordered the prevention of all movement of UNPROFOR vehicles and of all other international organisations in the area and to fire on UNPROFOR if fired upon.¹⁹⁸⁸³

5858. On the evening of 25 May 1995, the VRS shelled all the safe areas, which also included an attack on Tuzla and Goražde that killed approximately 70 civilians and injured 150 others.¹⁹⁸⁸⁴ The following day, NATO air strikes started again around 10 a.m. in Pale and continued until 12 p.m.¹⁹⁸⁸⁵ The VRS fired weapons from the Bare, Ilidža, Osijek, and Polinje WCPs in the afternoon, after the expiration of the deadline to return those weapons.¹⁹⁸⁸⁶ There were 44 reported incidents involving firing of heavy weapons within the Sarajevo TEZ.¹⁹⁸⁸⁷ Negotiations between UNPROFOR and the SRK commander for the return of the weapons continued.¹⁹⁸⁸⁸

5859. On 26 May 1995, Dragomir Milošević issued an order to all units of the SRK to immediately establish a full blockade of UN forces at check-points and on all roads in the “entire zone of the Corps” and to “use additional forces if the blockade is detected by the UN forces”.¹⁹⁸⁸⁹

5860. On 27 May 1995, the VRS Main Staff issued an order, approved by the Accused, to the commands of the 1st Krajina Corps, 2nd Krajina Corps, SRK, Eastern Bosnia Corps, Herzegovina Corps, Drina Corps, as well as other VRS units, stating that based on information that NATO will continue its air strikes on important targets in the RS, captured UNPROFOR personnel were to be disarmed and placed in “the areas of command posts, firing positions and other potential targets that may come under the air strike”.¹⁹⁸⁹⁰ The order provided for the exact number of UNPROFOR personnel to be detained,¹⁹⁸⁹¹ the location where they should be sent, the manner in which they should be transported, as well as an instruction that “they are to be treated properly with military

5861. On the same day, an urgent message was sent from the Intelligence and Security Sector of the VRS Main Staff, recommending the 1st Krajina Corps, 2nd Krajina Corps, the SRK, the Eastern Bosnian Corps, and the Herzegovina Corps to place the “captured members of UN forces” in areas of possible NATO air strikes.¹⁹⁸⁹³ The next morning, the VRS again shelled Tuzla.¹⁹⁸⁹⁴

5862. As will be explained in further detail below, on 26 May 1995 following the NATO air strikes, a number of UNPROFOR and UNMO personnel throughout BiH were detained by the VRS.¹⁹⁸⁹⁵ Some were taken from their posts or WCPs to various locations in the RS, such as the Bijeljina Barracks, the Lukavica Barracks, Jahorinski Potok, or Banja Luka.¹⁹⁸⁹⁶ Others were simply detained at their locations by the VRS.¹⁹⁸⁹⁷

5863. By 29 May 1995, UNPROFOR estimated that approximately 347 UN personnel, including 32 UNMOs, were detained as “hostages” at their OPs and WPCs or held in isolated detachments, surrounded by Bosnian Serb Forces.¹⁹⁸⁹⁸ Some of the UN personnel were held in locations of military significance for the VRS.¹⁹⁸⁹⁹

c. Detention and treatment of UN personnel

i. General observations

5864. UNPROFOR and UNMO personnel were stationed throughout BiH. However, the charges in the Indictment under Count 11 focus on the UNPROFOR and UNMO teams located in Sector Sarajevo, in particular in the areas of Pale, Sarajevo, Banja Luka, and Goražde.¹⁹⁹⁰⁰

5865. As mentioned earlier,¹⁹⁹⁰¹ UNPROFOR's responsibilities included monitoring the DMZ and the TEZ, and reporting any incoming or outgoing fire.¹⁹⁹⁰² UNPROFOR teams in Sarajevo were also tasked with escorting UNHCR convoys into the city and overseeing the supply of water, gas, and electricity.¹⁹⁹⁰³ Further responsibilities included observing the parties, reporting any cease-fire violations, controlling traffic, and ensuring free passage for all UN vehicles.¹⁹⁹⁰⁴

5866. The role of the UNMO teams included working with the parties to the conflict, monitoring the implementation of cease-fire agreements, monitoring WCPs, reporting on any incoming or outgoing shelling, and drafting investigating reports about shooting incidents.¹⁹⁹⁰⁵ All UNMO teams were unarmed.¹⁹⁹⁰⁶

5867. In 1995 in the city of Sarajevo, there were approximately 5,000 UNPROFOR personnel comprised of troops mainly from France, Russia, Ukraine, and Egypt.¹⁹⁹⁰⁷ Sector Sarajevo UNPROFOR had six battalions and one detachment in charge of the Sarajevo airport.¹⁹⁹⁰⁸ In

On cross-examination, KW554 clarified that he was only familiar with the Canadian UNMO team and that the UNMO teams he thought had weapons were not part of the group that was taken hostage in May 1995. KW554, T. 32034–32035 (16 January 2013). Given the inconsistency of KW554's evidence, his deficiency in candour, and based on the totality of the evidence, the Chamber concludes that the UNMOs were unarmed.

Goražde, the UNPROFOR team was comprised of approximately 400 members of BritBat and one Ukrainian company of approximately 100 men.¹⁹⁹⁰⁹

5868. It was estimated that approximately 260 UNPROFOR personnel in Sector Sarajevo were taken and detained by the VRS.¹⁹⁹¹⁰ More specifically, a FreBat team stationed in Polinje was taken first to the Bijelina Barracks and then detained in Doboj.¹⁹⁹¹¹ A FreBat team stationed at the Lukavica Barracks was detained there.¹⁹⁹¹² Another FreBat team stationed at the Sierra Victor post near the Vrbanja Bridge was attacked and detained at the Lukavica Barracks.¹⁹⁹¹³ A UkrBat team in Sarajevo was taken to Bijeljina and then detained in Banja Luka.¹⁹⁹¹⁴ Members of the BritBat team based in Goražde were taken to various locations.¹⁹⁹¹⁵

5869. The detained UNMOs in Sector Sarajevo were posted in areas such in Grbavica,¹⁹⁹¹⁶ Kasindo, Vogošća, and Pale.¹⁹⁹¹⁷ The UNMO team posted in the Bosnian Serb controlled area of Grbavica was taken to Jahorinski Potok and detained in the Pale Barracks.¹⁹⁹¹⁸ A UNMO team in Kasindo was taken to Grbavica, then to Pale, and detained at the Jahorina radar station.¹⁹⁹¹⁹ A UNMO team in Vogošća was detained in their accommodations and not allowed access to any communication.¹⁹⁹²⁰ In Pale, there were two UNMO teams: the 7 Lima UNMO team and the SE-1

ii. Evidence from the UkrBat team in Sarajevo

5871. On 26 May 1995, members of the UkrBat team, including Aleksandr Vishnevski, were at the Zaria check-point when members of the VRS MP arrived.¹⁹⁹²³ The VRS commander ordered that “in order to avoid bloodshed due to the NATO air strike on the Energoinvest plant”, the UkrBat team should hand over their weapons and the MP would take them to a safe place.¹⁹⁹²⁴ While the UkrBat team initially handed over their weapons, the team’s lieutenant ordered that they stop doing so after Vishnevski had told him that he had seen on television the FreBat team being taken from their post, handcuffed, and treated harshly by some VRS soldiers.¹⁹⁹²⁵ A clash ensued with the MP demanding that the UkrBat team hand over their remaining weapons.¹⁹⁹²⁶ The MP commander put his pistol to the UkrBat Lieutenant’s head and threatened to fire if the UkrBat team failed to comply.¹⁹⁹²⁷ Two UkrBat team members attempted to intervene and hit some of the MP.¹⁹⁹²⁸ The MP then fired in the UkrBat team’s direction, above their heads, and ordered them to lie down.¹⁹⁹²⁹ The UkrBat team members ultimately surrendered their weapons.¹⁹⁹³⁰ The UkrBat team was then taken to the police station in Ilidža, moved to a hotel for several hours, and driven back to the Zaria check-point where they spent the night.¹⁹⁹³¹

5872. On 27 May 1995, at 4 a.m., they were woken up and told to collect their belongings.¹⁹⁹³² They boarded a bus going in the direction of Krivoglavci.¹⁹⁹³³ The bus stopped at the Palub checkpoint and five other UNPROFOR personnel were brought onboard.¹⁹⁹³⁴ The bus, escorted by two VRS MP vehicles, arrived in Bijeljina where Vishnevski saw a group of 14 FreBat team members who had also been detained.¹⁹⁹³⁵ The bus continued to Banja Luka where the UkrBat team members were taken to barracks near an airfield.¹⁹⁹³⁶ They were ordered to separate into smaller groups.¹⁹⁹³⁷ They refused to obey the order and as a result their flak jackets, shoulder straps, and shoe laces were taken away.¹⁹⁹³⁸ They were told that they must carry out the orders of the MP and that they were held captive in order to force NATO to stop the air strikes against Bosnian Serb military positions.¹⁹⁹³⁹ Leashed German shepherd dogs were set on the UkrBat team so that they were forced to move into the barracks.¹⁹⁹⁴⁰ UkrBat members were detained in the Banja Luka Barracks until their release.¹⁹⁹⁴¹ During their detention, they received very little food and only cold water was available to wash but no towels or soap.¹⁹⁹⁴² They were released on 6 June 1995, transferred to Novi Sad, and flown to Zagreb.¹⁹⁹⁴³

iii. Evidence from the UNMO team in Kasindo

5873. The UNMO team in Kasindo, south of Sarajevo, had six members, including Marcus Helgers, Ahmad Manzoor, and Gunnar Westlund, the acting team leader.¹⁹⁹⁴⁴ On 25 May 1995, after the first NATO air strike, a uniformed man claiming to be a VRS security officer entered the accommodations of the UNMO team in Kasindo.¹⁹⁹⁴⁵ He informed them that there had been a

Although Westlund’s witness statement states that the first NATO air strikes occurred on 24 May 1995, the Chamber finds that this is incorrect and the first NATO air strikes occurred on 25 May 1995.

NATO air strike against the Bosnian Serbs and that the UNMO team was under house arrest.¹⁹⁹⁴⁶ They were told that their interpreter would be allowed to go to the VRS barracks with a list of items they may need.¹⁹⁹⁴⁷

5874. On 26 May 1995, at noon, Westlund heard the second NATO air strike and saw a large cloud of smoke on the other side of the mountains in the direction of Pale.¹⁹⁹⁴⁸ At around 2 p.m., he heard Nicholas Ribić on the radio identifying himself as a VRS soldier and saying: “We have your Pale team. We will kill them if you do not stop the NATO air strikes”.¹⁹⁹⁴⁹ At 5:15 p.m., two armed soldiers wearing uniform-type trousers and green shirts with no insignia entered the UNMO office.¹⁹⁹⁵⁰ They ordered the UNMO team to follow them immediately.¹⁹⁹⁵¹ The UNMO team was told to pack while their radios, flak jackets, and helmets were confiscated.¹⁹⁹⁵² Westlund and another UNMO were ordered to drive two UN vehicles with armed VRS soldiers sitting next to them.¹⁹⁹⁵³ They were not told where they were going, but were ordered to take the back roads.¹⁹⁹⁵⁴

5875. The UNMOs eventually arrived in Grbavica, where they were taken to the basement of a civilian high-rise building where ten armed VRS soldiers were sitting.¹⁹⁹⁵⁵ A stolen UN vehicle that had been painted black arrived and three armed men came out.¹⁹⁹⁵⁶ The two soldiers who arrested the UNMO team appeared wearing stolen UN blue helmets and flak jackets; they were under the command of these three armed men.¹⁹⁹⁵⁷ One of the soldiers ordered the UNMO team to take off their UN uniforms and to put on civilian clothing.¹⁹⁹⁵⁸ The UNMOs did not have civilian clothing, so the soldiers gave them a combination of civilian clothes and old JNA uniforms to wear.¹⁹⁹⁵⁹ They were allowed to keep their identification cards, wallets, and cigarettes.¹⁹⁹⁶⁰ The two soldiers who arrested the UNMO team drove away in the two UN vehicles taken from the UNMO office.¹⁹⁹⁶¹ The UNMO team was placed in the back of the black vehicle and driven towards Pale.¹⁹⁹⁶² Around 7 p.m., the vehicle reached the police station in Pale where the leader went inside; he then took them to a cafe in downtown Pale.¹⁹⁹⁶³ There, the UNMO team was ordered to get out of the vehicle and line up on the pavement.¹⁹⁹⁶⁴ Westlund saw many drunken VRS soldiers standing outside the cafe wearing stolen UN equipment.¹⁹⁹⁶⁵ They also saw members of the 7 Lima UNMO team from Pale who had been captured earlier that day.¹⁹⁹⁶⁶ Ribić told them: “You are now our prisoners and we are going to take you to the radar station where you will be locked-up to protect it”.¹⁹⁹⁶⁷ Ribić further stated that if there were any more NATO air strikes, one of the UNMOs would be shot, and if there was an air strike on the Mount Jahorina radar station, any of the UNMOs who survived would be executed afterwards.¹⁹⁹⁶⁸ The UNMO team was then ordered to get into another stolen UN vehicle that had arrived at the cafe.¹⁹⁹⁶⁹

5876. Between 8 and 8:30 p.m., Westlund, Helgers, Manzoor, and other members of the UNMO team were driven to the Mount Jahorina ski resort and stopped en route at a cabin.¹⁹⁹⁷⁰ The officer in charge came out of the cabin with three armed VRS soldiers.¹⁹⁹⁷¹ The officer spoke to Ribić and Ribić ordered Westlund to call the UNMO headquarters by radio and instructed him as follows: “Tell them that we will shoot you one by one if NATO does not stop the air strikes. Tell them that you are going to the Jahorina radar station where you will be locked up”.¹⁹⁹⁷² When UNMO headquarters acknowledged the call, Ribić grabbed the radio, identified himself as a VRS soldier and then repeated the message.¹⁹⁹⁷³ Westlund, Helgers, and the UNMOs were ordered out of the vehicle and into a camouflaged Volkswagen minibus.¹⁹⁹⁷⁴ Ribić and another soldier drove away in the stolen UN vehicle in the direction of Pale.¹⁹⁹⁷⁵ The three remaining VRS soldiers were very drunk, aggressive, and hostile, and one of them hit three of the UNMOs on the head with the butt of a Kalashnikov rifle.¹⁹⁹⁷⁶ They drove Westlund, Helgers, and the UNMOs up the mountain towards the Mount Jahorina radar station, which was approximately 50 metres from the main radar tower.¹⁹⁹⁷⁷ When they arrived at the barracks, a man who introduced himself as the commander of the VRS unit gave the UNMOs paper to write down their names, nationalities, and ID numbers.¹⁹⁹⁷⁸ He said he would send the information to the Lukavica Barracks so that the UNMO headquarters would know their whereabouts.¹⁹⁹⁷⁹ He informed them that they were prisoners of war.¹⁹⁹⁸⁰ Later, the UNMOs were warned that the area around the radar station was mined.¹⁹⁹⁸¹ They were told that they had been taken pursuant to orders from the Bosnian Serb President or the VRS command.¹⁹⁹⁸²

5877. On 27 May 1995, Westlund, Helgers, Manzoor, and the UNMOs were woken up at 4:45 a.m. and taken by three VRS soldiers towards the radar station 200 metres away.¹⁹⁹⁸³ Near the radar station, they were taken to a small shelter that contained four beds, blankets, pillows, and a heater.¹⁹⁹⁸⁴ Two of the UNMOs were told to go outside with their blankets.¹⁹⁹⁸⁵ Two hours later, they returned and told Westlund that they had been forced to sit around the radar station with their blankets and had been guarded by two armed soldiers at all times.¹⁹⁹⁸⁶ Next, Westlund and another UNMO were taken outside and forced to sit between the two radar antennas for two hours before returning to the shelter.¹⁹⁹⁸⁷ At 3 p.m., three VRS soldiers entered the shelter.¹⁹⁹⁸⁸ One of them was the battalion commander and ordered Westlund and Manzoor to get into a car.¹⁹⁹⁸⁹ They were driven towards the radar station.¹⁹⁹⁹⁰ Westlund was ordered to get out and the car was driven off with Manzoor still inside.¹⁹⁹⁹¹ Westlund and a VRS soldier walked 50 metres over a hill to a large army building which housed the radio communication centre.¹⁹⁹⁹² A VRS Lieutenant Colonel was present.¹⁹⁹⁹³ Westlund was locked in a room on the second floor of the radio communications centre building.¹⁹⁹⁹⁴ A younger deputy VRS commander told Westlund that he was under orders to shoot him if he attempted to escape.¹⁹⁹⁹⁵ Westlund was kept in this building and given meals.¹⁹⁹⁹⁶ After several days, Manzoor was brought back and detained with Westlund.¹⁹⁹⁹⁷ Several times during the following days, Westlund heard NATO aircraft flying overhead.¹⁹⁹⁹⁸ When this occurred Westlund and Manzoor were ordered to go outside until the flights passed.¹⁹⁹⁹⁹

5878. On 13 June 1995, Westlund was told that he would be released but that Manzoor would not.²⁰⁰⁰⁰ Westlund was released in Pale where he met a member of his team and eight UNMOs from other teams.²⁰⁰⁰¹ There were members of the BritBat and FreBat teams who had also been released.²⁰⁰⁰² Helgers, Manzoor, and other members of the UNMO team were released over the next few days.²⁰⁰⁰³

iv. Evidence from the UNMO team in Grbavica

The UNMO team posted in the Bosnian Serb controlled area of Grbavica included Joseph Gelissen, Sergey Golubev, and Harley Alves.²⁰⁰⁰⁴ On 26 May 1995, at 4 p.m., a group of VRS soldiers entered the UNMO team's house in Grbavica.²⁰⁰⁰⁵ The soldiers handcuffed Gelissen and Alves.²⁰⁰⁰⁶ They confiscated the UNMO's equipment and personal items.²⁰⁰⁰⁷ They were then

In Pale, they stopped at a hospital, where they were made to wait on the staircase and filmed.²⁰⁰¹³ They were surrounded by about 20 VRS soldiers and civilians who were very aggressive.²⁰⁰¹⁴ At 5 p.m., they were driven to the front of the Pale Barracks where they were handcuffed to a flagpole.²⁰⁰¹⁵ Romero Huelin and Griffith Evans, members of the 7 Lima UNMO team in Pale, were already there and also handcuffed to a second flagpole.²⁰⁰¹⁶ They stayed handcuffed until 7 p.m.²⁰⁰¹⁷ Gelissen saw NATO aircraft flying overhead and some of the VRS soldiers shouted at the aircraft and one VRS soldier made a gesture pretending to cut the UNMOs' throat.²⁰⁰¹⁸ A VRS captain named Vojvodić was in charge and he sent a different set of soldiers to guard the UNMOs.²⁰⁰¹⁹ At 7 p.m., the UNMOs were taken to the canteen to have dinner with the VRS soldiers.²⁰⁰²⁰ Thereafter, the UNMOs were taken back outside and handcuffed to the flagpoles again.²⁰⁰²¹ Later in the evening, they were taken to a park where they rested.²⁰⁰²² Other members from the 7 Lima UNMO team in Pale, including Patrick Rechner and Janusz Kalbarczyk, were brought in.²⁰⁰²³ All the UNMOs were then taken to a room in the Pale Barracks to sleep.²⁰⁰²⁴ Vojvodić explained to them that they were captured, that he could not give them any more

5881. On 27 May 1995, at 10:30 a.m., all the UNMOs held at the Pale Barracks were driven in a truck to Jahorinski Potok and detained in a canteen.²⁰⁰²⁶ Alves and Kalbarczyk were taken to the radar station where they were filmed by Pale TV.²⁰⁰²⁷ While a NATO aircraft flew overhead, a Serbian reporter interviewed Alves and Kalbarczyk, who were handcuffed to the base of the radar station.²⁰⁰²⁸ Ribić came to see the UNMOs and told them they would be released in a few days.²⁰⁰²⁹ At 8 p.m., all the UNMOs were taken back to the Pale Barracks.²⁰⁰³⁰

5883. the Lukavica Barracks came to interrogate Evans and another UNMO about guided weapons systems because both men had backgrounds as pilots.²⁰⁰⁴⁰ At 9 p.m., the UNMOs had a meeting with Vojvodić, during which Gelissen gave Vojvodić the letter he had drafted and told him he would not allow Pale TV to film them anymore and even “threatened him with the International Tribunal in The Hague”.²⁰⁰⁴¹ Vojvodić got very nervous and promised to deliver the letter to Batinić.²⁰⁰⁴²

Lukavica Barracks were surrounded by armed VRS soldiers.²⁰⁰⁵² At 12:30 p.m., a group of 30 armed men wearing VRS uniforms surrounded members of the other FreBat team located 800 metres away from the entrance.²⁰⁰⁵³ The VRS soldiers ordered this FreBat team to join the FreBat platoon team posted at the entrance of Lukavica Barracks.²⁰⁰⁵⁴ They refused to do so and waited for instructions from their headquarters.²⁰⁰⁵⁵ By this time, the second NATO air strike in Pale had occurred and the Bosnian Serbs wanted to take some FreBat members over to Pale to assess the damage that the civilian population had suffered.²⁰⁰⁵⁶ The FreBat Lieutenant in charge of the platoon at the entrance of the Lukavica Barracks refused.²⁰⁰⁵⁷ Tensions escalated.²⁰⁰⁵⁸ Five of the VRS tank crews were ordered to take up combat positions.²⁰⁰⁵⁹ FreBat also took up combat positions, prepared their rocket-launchers but were ordered not to load their guns.²⁰⁰⁶⁰ This confrontation lasted several hours.²⁰⁰⁶¹

5888. The FreBat team members at the entrance of the Lukavica Barracks were guarding their post when Milenko Indić arrived and attempted to negotiate with the FreBat Lieutenant to surrender.²⁰⁰⁶² Indić stated that an order had come from “higher authorities” to disarm the UNPROFOR members at the Lukavica Barracks.²⁰⁰⁶³ The FreBat Lieutenant responded that he did not have the orders to surrender.²⁰⁰⁶⁴ Indić then ordered the Bosnian Serb soldiers to take up firing positions targeting the building until the FreBat team surrendered.²⁰⁰⁶⁵ Two rocket-propelled grenades hit a truck and an APC.²⁰⁰⁶⁶ Minutes later, the FreBat team came out of the building and surrendered.²⁰⁰⁶⁷

5889. Around 7:30 p.m., the FreBat Lieutenant and his liaison officer, Captain Jouannic, went to the other FreBat post.²⁰⁰⁶⁸ Jouannic explained that, as the liaison officer, he was conveying an order that the FreBat team to lay down their arms and that Indić would talk to them.²⁰⁰⁶⁹ Then Indić came and introduced himself to this FreBat team.²⁰⁰⁷⁰ Indić was accompanied by a civilian who was videotaping the entire interaction.²⁰⁰⁷¹ He informed the FreBat team that they were now prisoners of war of the VRS.²⁰⁰⁷² The two FreBat teams at the Lukavica Barracksspent the night at their respective posts.²⁰⁰⁷³

5890. On 27 May 1995, a team of reporters arrived, under VRS escort, to film and photograph the FreBat teams.²⁰⁰⁷⁴ FreBat members were asked to give the contact details of relatives or individuals to be informed but they refused to provide them.²⁰⁰⁷⁵ Around midnight, a number of VRS trucks arrived with more soldiers.²⁰⁰⁷⁶ The FreBat teams were ordered to get into the trucks.²⁰⁰⁷⁷ After being told they were “hostages” and not “prisoners of war” [REDACTED] refused to have any further dealings with the VRS soldiers.²⁰⁰⁷⁸ The FreBat members were held at gunpoint and their equipment and UN IDs were forcibly taken from them.²⁰⁰⁷⁹ They were placed onto the trucks and driven to the Lukavica Barracks command post and detained there.²⁰⁰⁸⁰ Later, one FreBat member was taken to the Lukavica MP building.²⁰⁰⁸¹ He was locked in a room with two UNMOs already inside.²⁰⁰⁸² During this first week, the conditions were “very poor” and he

Indić testified that he went into the building unarmed and was told by a FreBat officer that he had not received the order to surrender. Therefore, according to Indić, there was an agreement that the VRS would fire at the vehicles without jeopardising the lives of the UN personnel and then when the firing stopped, the FreBat officer would come out of the barracks with a white flag and surrender. (A) BritBat team, including Nightingale

5902. On 26 May 1995, at 11 a.m., Hugh Nightingale, an OP commander and liaison officer, was asked to meet with the local VRS commander, at the VRS headquarters, 15 metres away from his OP in Goražde.²⁰¹⁵⁸ The VRS commander informed him that the VRS was taking over the OP, that the BritBat members needed to pack up, and they would be taken to a safe location.²⁰¹⁵⁹ Nightingale told the VRS commander that he was willing to withdraw from the area but intended to take his troops to UNPROFOR headquarters in Goražde.²⁰¹⁶⁰ The commander responded: “You do not understand, you are coming with us to Višegrad, we can do it two ways. With shooting or without”.²⁰¹⁶¹ Nightingale agreed to co-operate.²⁰¹⁶² He returned to his OP to brief the BritBat team and they packed their kits.²⁰¹⁶³ VRS soldiers entered the OP and the BritBat team got into two UN vehicles.²⁰¹⁶⁴ They were escorted down the road where they met up with two vehicles from the BritBat team stationed at another OP.²⁰¹⁶⁵ On the way down, one of the UNPROFOR vehicles slid and rolled over down the hill causing five members of the BritBat team to sustain serious injuries.²⁰¹⁶⁶ At the bottom of the hill, the vehicles stopped and Nightingale met Lieutenant Colonel Radomir Furtula, the Commander of the 5th Podrinje Light Infantry Brigade.²⁰¹⁶⁷

Jonathon Riley identifies “Radomir Fortula” as the VRS commander of the “Goražde/Višegrad Light Mountain Brigade, assigned to the Drina Corps”. Riley stated that Fortula told him “by Mladić’s orders” if any further air strikes took place, UNPROFOR would be shelled. P2148 (Witness statement of Jonathon Riley dated 30 May 1996), pp. 3–4. The commander of the 5th Podrinje Light Infantry Brigade of the Drina Corps was Lieutenant Colonel Radomir Furtula. P4920 (Diagrams of various VRS Military Command structures), p. 2.

5903. Upon arriving at the military barracks in Višegrad, the BritBat team members were informed by Furtula that they were hostages and if they did as they were told, there would be no problem.²⁰¹⁶⁸ The VRS soldiers took the BritBat team's protection kits, weapons, ammunition, grenades, and rations.²⁰¹⁶⁹ Their UN identification numbers and names were written down.²⁰¹⁷⁰ The injured BritBat team members received medical care.²⁰¹⁷¹ Furtula asked Nightingale to guarantee the good behaviour of his soldiers and in return, they would not handcuff them.²⁰¹⁷² Nightingale did as asked.²⁰¹⁷³ When Nightingale asked Furtula what was going to happen, he responded that it was outside his control.²⁰¹⁷⁴

5904. Nightingale returned to the room where the BritBat team was being held.²⁰¹⁷⁵ There were guards outside and seven or eight armed VRS soldiers inside the room.²⁰¹⁷⁶ A Bosnian Serb television crew who had come to film the detained BritBat team asked Nightingale for an interview, which he gave.²⁰¹⁷⁷ At 10 p.m., they were placed in a truck.²⁰¹⁷⁸ The injured members were dropped off at the Sokolac Hospital.²⁰¹⁷⁹ Some of the remaining BritBat members were paired off and dropped off in various locations where VRS troops were present.²⁰¹⁸⁰ Nightingale remained on the truck, which drove through Rogatica and continued into the night.²⁰¹⁸¹

5905. On the morning of 27 May 1995, Nightingale and another BritBat member were dropped off at an unknown location and taken to a building, which was a jail located next to a warehouse that stored military clothing and equipment.²⁰¹⁸² They were taken to the guards' accommodations.²⁰¹⁸³ The door to their room was locked.²⁰¹⁸⁴ There were always two armed guards present with them at 5906. After the seventh day of detention, they were told to prepare for departure.²⁰¹⁸⁹ They were blindfolded and placed in the back of a troop carrier.²⁰¹⁹⁰ Along the way, the vehicle picked other BritBat members from Nightingale's team and the injured BritBat members from the Sokolac Hospital.²⁰¹⁹¹ They were taken to the police station, which Nightingale thought was in Višegrad.²⁰¹⁹² There, they were handed over to the Serbian authorities and driven over the border to Serbia.²⁰¹⁹³ At the border, the vehicle also picked up some French Legionnaires and they met Jovica Stanišić.²⁰¹⁹⁴ They were all driven to Novi Sad and released in Belgrade where they were flown to Zagreb.²⁰¹⁹⁵

(B) BritBat team at OP-2 in Goražde

5907. On 27 May 1995, at 2 p.m., a team of BritBat, including Michael Cornish,²⁰¹⁹⁶ were stationed at OP-2 in Goražde when they received a radio message from UNPROFOR command directing them to move to check-point 2.²⁰¹⁹⁷ Given that check-point 2 did not exist, Cornish understood this as a signal for them to withdraw back to their camp.²⁰¹⁹⁸ As they made their way past a VRS post called "Scabs 1", VRS soldiers brought out two rocket-propelled grenades and placed them on the road.²⁰¹⁹⁹ The UNPROFOR vehicle was forced to stop.²⁰²⁰⁰ The BritBat Corporal went into the VRS post and spoke to their local commander on the radio.²⁰²⁰¹ He returned to the vehicle and informed the BritBat team that the VRS commander told him that because they were on Bosnian

Serb controlled territory, they were now ordered to follow the VRS soldiers to Scabs 1.²⁰²⁰² The BritBat team was escorted by armed VRS soldiers to Scabs 1 where they were disarmed.²⁰²⁰³ After several hours, they were taken to the cellar.²⁰²⁰⁴ They managed to maintain radio contact with the main UNPROFOR camp and reported back every hour, on the hour.²⁰²⁰⁵

5908. On 28 May 1995, at 7 a.m., the BritBat team was moved to a house behind the VRS post, and there was a lot of firing coming towards the house from the Bosnian Muslim side.²⁰²⁰⁶ The VRS fought back using the weapons and ammunition taken from the UNPROFOR team.²⁰²⁰⁷ They took the BritBat team through the valley, on foot.²⁰²⁰⁸ Multiple mortars landed near them as they were travelling through the valley towards a house where they were held for a short time.²⁰²⁰⁹ From this house, the BritBat team was moved to a house in Karpaci, approximately one kilometre away, where they spent the night.²⁰²¹⁰ The house was on the other side of a bridge leading to Goražde where all the VRS soldiers going to Goražde would stop.²⁰²¹¹ Five UkrBat soldiers were also detained there.²⁰²¹² Cornish and a BritBat Corporal met a VRS Captain named Kević who told them that they would be released shortly.²⁰²¹³

5909. On 29 May 1995, in the evening, everyone was moved to another house several hundred metres up the road, where they spent one night.²⁰²¹⁴ The following day, a truck arrived, loaded with ammunition and they were all ordered to get inside.²⁰²¹⁵ They were driven for two hours and taken to Cajnice where their kits were taken from them.²⁰²¹⁶ Together with five UkrBat soldiers, they were driven for several hours, having to sit with their heads between their legs.²⁰²¹⁷ After several stops, they stopped at a military camp, where they all got out of the truck and were taken into a building, a converted indoor firing range, and placed in a large cell.²⁰²¹⁸ The door to the cell was locked and the VRS soldiers left the building.²⁰²¹⁹

5910. On 30 May 1995, Cornish saw a group of approximately 20 FreBat soldiers who were also being detained in a separate area of the same building.²⁰²²⁰ They were given meals but were not allowed to leave their cell.²⁰²²¹ Cornish requested a visit from the ICRC which was denied.²⁰²²² They were held for eight or nine days.²⁰²²³ On the day of their release, they were allowed to shower and were given clean clothes to wear.²⁰²²⁴ They boarded buses and were driven to Novi Sad; they were released and met staff from the British Embassy.²⁰²²⁵

(A) 7 Lima UNMO team in Pale

5911. The 7 Lima UNMO team was led by Patrick Rechner and included three other officers.²⁰²²⁶ Unlike other UNMO teams, the 7 Lima UNMO team was tasked primarily with administrative and political functions.²⁰²²⁷ It served as the UNMO liaison office to the Bosnian Serb Presidency and the VRS Main Staff.²⁰²²⁸ The 7 Lima UNMO team's primary contact in the Bosnian Serb leadership was Koljević.²⁰²²⁹ They also had frequent contact with the Accused's secretary, Mira Mihajlović and Jovan Zametica, his political adviser.²⁰²³⁰ As the only UN liaison office in Pale, the UNMO office also acted as the liaison office for Akashi.²⁰²³¹ It was responsible for facilitating communications between the UN and the Bosnian Serb political and military authorities and between the Bosnian Serbs and Bosnian Muslims.²⁰²³² In addition, this UNMO team worked on behalf of the representative of UN Civil Affairs in Sarajevo and, in an unofficial capacity, assisted in the delivery of humanitarian aid to Pale, such as bringing medicine from Sarajevo to the hospital in Pale.²⁰²³³

5912. On 25 May 1995, Rechner saw two large explosions, due to the NATO air strikes, five to ten kilometres south of his UNMO team's office.²⁰²³⁴ Rechner made a request to the Accused, through Mihajlović, to make sure that the UNMO team's house and office were being watched by Bosnian Serb security forces in order to protect them from any locals trying to attack them out of revenge for the NATO air strikes.²⁰²³⁵

5913. On 26 May 1995, at approximately 10:30 a.m. and a few minutes after the NATO air strikes, Rechner, who was on the third floor of the UNMO team's house, heard some shots fired from outside and people yelling.²⁰²³⁶ Bosnian Serb soldiers had entered the house, one was armed.²⁰²³⁷ Rechner went downstairs to the kitchen and made two telephone calls.²⁰²³⁸ First, he phoned Mihajlović and told her that there were some armed people in their office and to send someone to investigate the situation.²⁰²³⁹ She asked if they were regular VRS soldiers, Rechner replied that he could not tell because they were not dressed in full uniform.²⁰²⁴⁰ Mihajlović then informed Rechner that these men were sent officially.²⁰²⁴¹ When Rechner asked for clarification, she did not give any further information.²⁰²⁴² The second telephone call was to Zametica.²⁰²⁴³ Rechner informed him of the situation and Zametica replied that "something had been organised to send some people" and suggested that Rechner be as co-operative as possible.²⁰²⁴⁴

5914. Downstairs in the UNMO office, Rechner was met by two VRS soldiers—both heavily armed—one was Ribić, who was very angry and told him to sit down.²⁰²⁴⁵ Rechner and the two UNMOs in the office managed to establish radio contact with the UNMO headquarters and notified them that there were armed men in their office.²⁰²⁴⁶ Ribić then got on the radio and threatened that if the UNMO headquarters valued the lives of their UNMOs, they should call off the NATO air strikes.²⁰²⁴⁷ Ribić continued making threats and said that “for every bomb, one of the UNMOs will be killed”.²⁰²⁴⁸ UNMO headquarters responded that the UNMOs were not involved in the NATO air strikes and had no means of communicating with NATO to stop them.²⁰²⁴⁹ Ribić then demanded to speak to Smith and Rechner called Smith’s office.²⁰²⁵⁰ Ribić made the same threats directly to Smith.²⁰²⁵¹ Another group of VRS soldiers arrived and the UNMO team was ordered to get into the UNMO vehicle outside.²⁰²⁵² Ribić told Rechner to radio UNMO headquarters and tell them that the UNMO team would be taken to the target of the NATO air strikes at Jahorinski Potok.²⁰²⁵³

5915. At 11:45 a.m., Rechner and his UNMO team were handcuffed, placed in the back of their UNMO vehicle, and driven to Jahorinski Potok where they stopped at the logistics and ammunition storage depot.²⁰²⁵⁴ They were then taken inside the building where they waited approximately 20 or 30 minutes before they received a call from UNMO headquarters stating that Smith had confirmed the NATO air strikes had been called off.²⁰²⁵⁵ Ribić responded to UNMO headquarters that if the air strikes continued, the UNMOs would “die for the sake of NATO”.²⁰²⁵⁶ The UNMO team was driven to the bunkers, one of which had been destroyed the previous day by the NATO

5916. At 3:30 p.m., a group of Bosnian Serb military officers and government officials, including Zametica, came to inspect the area.²⁰²⁶⁴ Zametica spoke to both Rechner and his fellow UNMO.²⁰²⁶⁵ Rechner expressed his shock and surprise at the way they were treated and demanded an explanation as to the reason why the UNMOs had been attacked.²⁰²⁶⁶ Zametica told them that “times have changed”.²⁰²⁶⁷ At 5 p.m., Rechner was released from the lightning pole, handcuffed and placed in the back of a UN vehicle.²⁰²⁶⁸ Kalbarczyk, a member of another UNMO team in Pale, was in the vehicle and also handcuffed.²⁰²⁶⁹ They were both blindfolded for the duration of the drive.²⁰²⁷⁰ During the drive, they were told that the Bosnian Serbs thought the 7 Lima UNMO

(B) SE-1 UNMO team in Pale

5917. The SE-1 UNMO team in Pale had five members, including Kalbarczyk and Evans.²⁰²⁷⁷ On 26 May 1995, between 8 and 9 a.m., the sirens went off in Pale and approximately 40 minutes later, Kalbarczyk saw an explosion in the southeast area of Pale.²⁰²⁷⁸ He reported this to the UNMO sector headquarters in Sarajevo.²⁰²⁷⁹ He was told not to leave the building.²⁰²⁸⁰ Around 12:15 p.m., Bosnian Serb policemen came into the UNMO's accommodations; four were dressed in police uniforms and one was dressed as a civilian.²⁰²⁸¹ The UNMOs were informed that they were under arrest and told that if there were any more NATO air strikes, they would be shot.²⁰²⁸² Approximately 40 minutes later, two cars arrived and VRS soldiers got out and said that the UNMOs were being taken hostage by the VRS.²⁰²⁸³ UNMO headquarters attempted to reach them over the radio but they were not allowed to respond.²⁰²⁸⁴ Seven additional VRS soldiers came in and confiscated the UNMOs' garage and vehicle keys.²⁰²⁸⁵ The UNMOs were handcuffed in pairs, taken outside to the cars, and driven to the Pale police station.²⁰²⁸⁶ Ribić came to their vehicle, took

(C) Detention of the 7 Lima and SE-1 UNMO teams in Pale

5918. The UNMOs were driven to the ammunition depot in the Koran military barracks, which had just been struck by NATO.²⁰²⁸⁹ One UNMO was taken from the vehicle and handcuffed to the door of another ammunition bunker.²⁰²⁹⁰ The rest of the UNMOs were driven to the headquarters in the Koran barracks.²⁰²⁹¹ Upon arriving in front of the headquarters building, Evans and others were handcuffed to the flagpoles outside.²⁰²⁹² Kalbarczyk was taken up to the radar dome and handcuffed to the base where he was filmed and interviewed by a journalist.²⁰²⁹³ A VRS soldier told Rechner that Mladić wanted them to be filmed.²⁰²⁹⁴

5919. Approximately 20 minutes later, Ribić came and spoke to the UNMO headquarters in Sarajevo, telling them that they should inform NATO that two UNMOs had been chained to the bridge leading to Pale and that if NATO decided to bomb that bridge, then the UNMOs would go down with it.²⁰²⁹⁵ Evans and a fellow UNMO team member were immediately escorted into a vehicle, taken to the bridge and handcuffed there.²⁰²⁹⁶ A reporter from Pale TV came to film them.²⁰²⁹⁷ Ribić told them to memorise the following statement: “The NATO aircrafts have bombed civilian targets and killed civilians. This is a crime against humanity and General Smith

5920. After being filmed by Pale TV, the UNMOs were driven back to the Koran Barracks and handcuffed to the flagpoles.²⁰³⁰⁰ After a few hours, they were released and allowed to sit together in the shade.²⁰³⁰¹ Kalbarczyk, Rechner, and another UNMO from the 7 Lima UNMO team were also brought to the same place and driven down from the radar station.²⁰³⁰² Evans and the other UNMOs were introduced to Vojvodić and Batinić, who were in charge.²⁰³⁰³ The UNMOs were told that unless there was a clear declaration from NATO to stop the air strikes, they would continue to be held by the VRS in locations of strategic military importance to the VRS, which were the likely targets of the NATO air strikes.²⁰³⁰⁴ The UNMOs were then taken back to the Jahorina ski resort hotel where they had dinner with the VRS soldiers.²⁰³⁰⁵ After dinner, they were taken back to their accommodations to collect their belongings.²⁰³⁰⁶ They were told they would be taken to bunkers or other “strategic targets” to spend the night.²⁰³⁰⁷ They were taken back to Pale and en route Rechner saw the UNMO team from Kasindo in another UN vehicle being driven to a different location.²⁰³⁰⁸ Rechner, Kalbarczyk and six other UNMOs spent the night at the Koran Barracks in Pale.²⁰³⁰⁹

5921. On 27 May 1995, Ribić took Rechner outside the barracks and ordered him to send a message to the UNMO headquarters in Sarajevo.²⁰³¹⁰ He gave Rechner a list of UN personnel and where they were being held.²⁰³¹¹ Rechner was ordered to relay this to UNMO headquarters, which he did.²⁰³¹² Meanwhile, Evans and the other UNMOs were taken to the ammunition depot near the

Koran barracks.²⁰³¹³ They were kept outdoors but not handcuffed.²⁰³¹⁴ Kalbarczyk and another UNMO were taken from the Pale barracks, blindfolded, placed in a car, and driven to the radar station.²⁰³¹⁵ At the radar station, they were handcuffed, interviewed, and filmed again by Pale TV.²⁰³¹⁶ They were taken back to the barracks afterwards and spent the night there with the rest of the UNMOs.²⁰³¹⁷ Later in the afternoon, two Russian UNMOs were brought in and joined the eight UNMOs at the Koran barracks.²⁰³¹⁸ Rechner and a member of the UNMO team from Kasindo were allowed to go back to their accommodations to pick up personal items for themselves and the other UNMOs.²⁰³¹⁹

5922. On 28 May 1995, Evans, Kalbarczyk, and the other UNMOs were moved to another part of the Koran Barracks where they were guarded at all times.²⁰³²⁰ Food was brought to them but they did not have access to a radio or a television.²⁰³²¹ Vojvodić visited them a few times per day and told them they were prisoners of war.²⁰³²² The UNMOs were detained in this building for one week.²⁰³²³ Once again, Rechner was allowed to go to the 7 Lima UNMO team's accommodations to pick up personal items as they were going to be detained for several more days.²⁰³²⁴ Rechner saw that confidential UN situation reports had been sent to their office in their absence.²⁰³²⁵ The landlord of the house told Rechner that Krajišnik had called the house and said telephone calls and faxes were not permitted, and that the UNMOs should just do as they were told and they would be released in a few days.²⁰³²⁶

5923. On 29 May 1995, Rechner was again allowed to go back to the 7 Lima UNMO team's accommodations.²⁰³²⁷ He stopped by the UNMO team in Kasindo's accommodations first and tried to arrange a meeting with Koljević through his secretary.²⁰³²⁸ When Rechner returned to the Koran barracks, he spoke to Vojvodić and agreed to draft a letter outlining the issues he wanted to discuss with Koljević.²⁰³²⁹ Topics for discussion included the circumstances surrounding the UNMOs capture and detention, their mistreatment, and possible ways to resolve the situation.²⁰³³⁰ The proposed meeting with Koljević never took place.²⁰³³¹ The next time Rechner met Koljević was on 15 June 1995.²⁰³³²

5924. On 1 June 1995, Mladić visited the barracks to check on the UNMOs and their accommodations.²⁰³³³ He stayed there for 30 minutes and spoke to Evans about whether UNMOs were able to guide NATO aircrafts and direct their air strike targets.²⁰³³⁴ Evans told them that this was impossible.²⁰³³⁵ An UNMO from the 7 Lima UNMO team was also interviewed and asked the same questions to which he gave similar answers as Evans.²⁰³³⁶

5925. On 5 June 1995, two Bosnian Serb doctors came and examined the UNMOs.²⁰³³⁷ Two days later, one of the UNMOs was released due to the doctor's recommendation.²⁰³³⁸

5926. On 8 June 1995, the ICRC visited the UNMOs and registered them.²⁰³³⁹ Dragan Bulajić, the president of the Bosnian Serb Exchange Commission, accompanied the ICRC on this visit.²⁰³⁴⁰ Rechner spoke to him about their detention.²⁰³⁴¹ When Bulajić said they were prisoners of war, all of his concerns about the UNMOs' capture and detention to him, including their limited opportunity to make contact with their families.²⁰³⁵⁵ Rechner also discussed the actual details of their capture and detention.²⁰³⁵⁶ Koljević knew what had happened but was surprised to hear that the UNMOs had been threatened.²⁰³⁵⁷ In relation to the NATO air strikes, Koljević told Rechner that due to the intensity of the air strikes, which was not expected by the Bosnian Serbs, they felt that they needed to react in a way that would send a shock to the UN.²⁰³⁵⁸ Koljević also told Rechner that due to these air strikes, the Bosnian Serbs' relationship with the UN would be completely different and the UNMO office in Pale would be closed.²⁰³⁵⁹

5931. On 18 June 1995, the UNMOs were taken to the Pale police station by bus and handed over to the Serbian authorities.²⁰³⁶⁰ Koljević apologised to the UNMOs for the treatment they had received but emphasised that due to the NATO air strikes, the Bosnian Serbs had needed to react and take extreme measures.²⁰³⁶¹ He informed them that they were being handed over to the Serbian authorities of the FRY.²⁰³⁶² Koljević asked them to give a statement and Rechner did so.²⁰³⁶³ Indić also spoke to the UNMOs stating that he was happy the situation had ended well.²⁰³⁶⁴ Indić signed a release document and the UNMOs were handed over to the Serbian authorities.²⁰³⁶⁵ The UNMOs were escorted by Serbian Special forces, wearing red berets, who accompanied them to Novi Sad.²⁰³⁶⁶ The next day, they were taken to Belgrade and then flown to Zagreb where they were met by Akashi.²⁰³⁶⁷

These four soldiers were handed over to the Bosnian Serb military authorities at Lukavica Barracks in Sarajevo today.”)

5932. Communication between the UN and the Bosnian Serbs on negotiating the release of the UN personnel began shortly after the first group was detained.²⁰³⁶⁸ Charles Kirudja, the UN Delegate of the Special Representative of the Secretary General to the FRY, was involved in these negotiations.²⁰³⁶⁹ From the FRY, Jovica Stanišić was the special negotiator for Slobodan Milošević.²⁰³⁷⁰ Janvier emphasised that the release of the UN personnel was his utmost priority.²⁰³⁷¹ UNPROFOR's strategic aim was to negotiate the release of the detained personnel and re-establish UNPROFOR's mission in BiH.²⁰³⁷²

5933. By 3 June 1995, 120 UNPROFOR personnel had been released by the VRS and handed over to the Serbian authorities.²⁰³⁷³ Akashi thanked the Accused for the release of these UNPROFOR members but noted that approximately 264 others were still being detained and demanded their unconditional release.²⁰³⁷⁴

5934. By 9 June 1995, due to "increased shelling on Bosnian Serb positions in Trskavica, Majeвица, Kalenik and Livansko Polje," the Bosnian Serbs were refusing to release the remaining UN personnel.²⁰³⁷⁵ As Jovica Stanišić was planning on meeting with Mladić the following day, he asked Kirudja to provide him with information on the location of the remaining UN personnel, including the precise numbers, the conditions under which they were being held, and whether they were surrounded and blocked by Bosnian Serb forces.²⁰³⁷⁶ Kirudja stressed that a condition of their release was that they be released "unconditionally", namely with all of their equipment.²⁰³⁷⁷

5935. On 10 June 1995, Kirudja met again with Jovica Stanišić to provide him with the latest information on the numbers and locations of the remaining UN personnel.²⁰³⁷⁸ Stanišić was certain that based on the information from the UN, Mladić had been withholding information from him and he would have to revise his approach for negotiations, particularly with respect to the UN personnel held in and around Sarajevo.²⁰³⁷⁹ Stanišić told Kirudja that he had spoken with the Accused in the morning and the Accused was very concerned that there may be further NATO air strikes in retaliation for detaining UN personnel whereas Mladić seemed intent on continuing to hold the UN personnel in Sarajevo “fearing that their release would set the conditions for renewed NATO air strikes and/or a renewed assault by government troops”.²⁰³⁸⁰ Stanišić questioned whether it would be better to put pressure on the Accused and Mladić to release the UN personnel directly to UNPROFOR in Sarajevo or to release them to him for transportation to Belgrade, as had been done with the two previous groups who were released.²⁰³⁸¹ Kirudja stated that it would be best to release them to UNPROFOR in Sarajevo and to propose this to Mladić.²⁰³⁸² Stanišić thought that Mladić would rather release them to the FRY and be publicly seen as “handing them over” to Stanišić.²⁰³⁸³ Stanišić requested that there be a moratorium on any use of external force by the UN and NATO during and immediately after the process of releasing the UN personnel, which Kirudja said he would communicate to the UN and Akashi.²⁰³⁸⁴ Smith’s response to this was that he would not agree to anything with the Bosnian Serbs, including entering into negotiations with them, and that his demand was they release the hostages immediately and unconditionally.²⁰³⁸⁵

5936. By 13 June 1995, additional UNPROFOR personnel were released.²⁰³⁸⁶ On 16 June 1995, the Security Council passed resolution 998 demanding the immediate and unconditional release of all remaining UN personnel.²⁰³⁸⁷ By 18 June 1995, all remaining UNPROFOR and the remaining 15 UNMOs were released.²⁰³⁸⁸ The UNPROFOR and UNMO personnel were released by the VRS and handed over to Jovica Stanišić in Belgrade and flown back to UNPROFOR HQ in Zagreb.²⁰³⁸⁹

e. Conclusion

5937. The Chamber finds that on 25 and 26 May 1995, following the NATO air strikes on Bosnian Serb military targets, over 200 UNPROFOR and UNMO personnel in BiH were detained by Bosnian Serb Forces and taken to various locations throughout BiH.²⁰³⁹⁰ Some of the UN personnel were taken from their locations and driven to locations of military significance for the VRS, such as the Mount Jahorina radar station, the Banja Luka barracks, Pale barracks, Lukavica barracks, Bijeljina barracks, Višegrad barracks, Jahorinski Potok, and Koran barracks. Others were simply detained at their locations, including OPs and WCPs. Threats were made by the VRS against the UN personnel, that they would be killed if NATO launched further air strikes and these threats were communicated to the UN.

2. Legal findings on crimes

a. Chapeau requirements for Article 3

5938. In relation to the Hostages component of the case, the Accused is charged with one count of violations of the laws or customs of war under Article 3 of the Statute, namely the taking of hostages. The Chamber recalls that before entering findings on counts under Article 3 of the Statute, the Chamber must first be satisfied that a number of general requirements are met.

5939. The Chamber found that there was an armed conflict in BiH throughout the period relevant to the crimes alleged in the Indictment. The Chamber further finds that the taking of hostages, as analysed above, is closely related to the armed conflict. In relation to the four so called “Tadić Conditions”,²⁰³⁹¹ the Chamber refers to the applicable law section of this Judgement, which expanded on the legal basis for each of the crimes charged in the Indictment under Article 3 of the Statute.²⁰³⁹² In relation to the taking of hostages, the prohibition stems from Common Article 3 which is deemed to be part of customary international law.²⁰³⁹³ Further, the Appeals Chamber has ²⁰³⁹⁰ While paragraph 86 of the Indictment alleges that over 200 UNPROFOR and UNMOs were detained, the evidence reflects that the total number of UNPROFOR personnel detained was more than 300. See P2173 (UNPROFOR report, 28 May 1995); P2270 (UNPROFOR report, 29 May 1995); P5024 (Annex A to UNPROFOR report re UN hostages, 2 June 1995); P5022 (Letter from Yasushi Akashi to Radovan Karadžić, 3 June 1995).

confirmed that violations of the provisions of Common Article 3 entail individual criminal responsibility.²⁰³⁹⁴

5940. The Chamber is therefore satisfied that the four Tadić Conditions are met, and consequently that the chapeau requirements for Article 3 of the Statute are fulfilled, in relation to the crime of taking hostages.

b. Crime of hostage-taking: Count 11

i. Actus reus of hostage-taking

5941. The Chamber refers to its findings above that on 25 and 26 May 1995, following the NATO air strikes on Bosnian Serb military targets, over 200 UNPROFOR and UNMO personnel in BiH were detained by Bosnian Serb Forces and taken to various locations in BiH. Some of the UN personnel were taken to locations of military significance for the VRS, such as the Banja Luka barracks, Mount Jahorina radar station, Pale barracks, Lukavica barracks, Bijeljina barracks, Višegrad barracks, Jahorinski Potok, and Koran barracks. Others were simply detained at their locations, including OPs and WCPs.

5942. The Accused has argued throughout the case, that the status of the UN personnel at the time of the alleged hostage taking was determinative for a finding on the existence of the crime. He argued that due to the NATO air strikes, the UN personnel were transformed into persons taking active part in the hostilities and thus not entitled to the protections of Common Article 3.²⁰³⁹⁵

5943. The Chamber finds the Accused's argument in this regard to be unconvincing. As a preliminary matter, the Chamber recalls that the UN and its associated peacekeeping forces were not a party to the conflict. UNPROFOR was established and deployed pursuant to Security Council Resolution 743 as "an interim arrangement to create the conditions of peace and security required for the negotiation of an overall settlement of the Yugoslav crisis".²⁰³⁹⁶ While the details of its operations were enlarged and strengthened over the course of the conflict in order to preserve the security of its personnel and enable the implementation of its mandate, it remained a peacekeeping force.²⁰³⁹⁷ Accordingly, at the time the UN personnel were detained on 25 and 26 May 1995, they were persons taking no active part in the hostilities and, as such, were afforded the protection of Common Article 3. The NATO air strikes of 25 and 26 May 1995 did not transform the status of all of the UN personnel in BiH into that of persons taking active part in the hostilities. However, even if the UN personnel had been combatants prior to their detention, as the Accused argues, they were in any event rendered hors de combat by virtue of their detention and thus were also entitled to the minimum protections guaranteed by Common Article 3.²⁰³⁹⁸ As confirmed by the Appeals Chamber in this case, Common Article 3 applies to the detained UN personnel irrespective of their status prior to detention.²⁰³⁹⁹ Therefore, the Chamber finds that all UN personnel who were detained by the Bosnian Serb Forces were entitled to the protections under Common Article 3, including the prohibition against hostage-taking.

5944. While the UNPROFOR and UNMO personnel were detained, Bosnian Serb Forces threatened to kill, injure, or continue to detain them unless NATO ceased its air strikes. These threats were communicated by the Bosnian Serb Forces to the detained UN personnel and to UNMO and UNPROFOR headquarters.²⁰⁴⁰⁰

5945. The Chamber therefore finds that between 25 May and 18 June 1995, UNPROFOR and UNMO personnel were detained by Bosnian Serb Forces and threats were used against them in order to obtain a concession, namely that NATO cease its air strikes against Bosnian Serb military targets in BiH.

ii. Mens rea of hostage-taking

5946. The Chamber finds that the detention of the UNPROFOR and UNMO personnel by Bosnian Serb Forces was intentionally carried out to compel NATO to refrain from conducting further air

²⁰³⁹⁷ See P981 (UNSC Resolution 758, 8 June 1992); P985 (UNSC Resolution 836, 4 June 1993) (authorising UNPROFOR, in carrying out its mandate, acting in self-defence, to take the necessary measures, including the use of force, in reply to bombardments against the safe areas by any of the parties or to armed incursion into them or in the event of any deliberate obstruction in or around those areas to the freedom of movement of UNPROFOR or of protected humanitarian convoys); UNSC Resolution 914 (1994), S/RES/914, 27 April 1994; UNSC Resolution 982 (1995), S/RES/982, 31 March 1995 (extending UNPROFOR's mandate until 30 November 1995 and paying tribute to all UNPROFOR personnel, especially those who have given their lives for the cause of peace); UNSC Resolution 947 (1994), S/RES/947, 30 September 1994 (stressing that UNPROFOR plays an essential role in preventing and containing hostilities and thus creating the conditions for achieving an overall political settlement); P5014 (UNSC Resolution 998, 16 June 1995) (authorising the increase in the number of UNPROFOR personnel in order to carry out its mandate).

²⁰³⁹⁸ See Appeal Decision on Count 11, para. 21 (holding that "Common Article 3's prohibition on hostage-taking applies to all detained individuals, irrespective of whether their detention is explicitly sought in order to use them as hostages and irrespective of their prior status as combatants" and that the Chamber did not err in making this finding).

strikes on Bosnian Serb military targets. In reaching this conclusion, the Chamber has had regard to orders and reports from the VRS, threats made to the UN personnel and communicated to UNMO and UNPROFOR headquarters, and statements made by the Accused, Mladić, Zametica, and Krajišnik.²⁰⁴⁰¹ 5947. In addition, the Chamber finds that members of the Bosnian Serb Forces knew or should have been aware that when the crime of hostage-taking was committed, the detained UN personnel were taking no active part in the hostilities.

iii. Special defence: reprisals

5948. The Accused submits that even if the Chamber finds that the elements of hostage-taking are met, the conduct of the Bosnian Serbs was justified by the defence of reprisals.²⁰⁴⁰² The Prosecution submits that detainees may never be subjected to reprisals and therefore, the unlawful act of threatening detainees so as to obtain a concession cannot be justified as a reprisal.²⁰⁴⁰³

5949. In the law of armed conflict, a belligerent reprisal is an act that would otherwise be unlawful but, in exceptional circumstances and if strict conditions are met, is considered lawful when it is used as an enforcement measure in reaction to unlawful acts of an adversary.²⁰⁴⁰⁴ However, the prohibition of reprisals against protected persons is absolute and can therefore not be used as a defence for the crime of taking protected persons hostage.²⁰⁴⁰⁵

5950. Therefore, the Chamber finds that the taking of UN personnel hostage cannot be justified as a lawful reprisal and the Accused's argument in this regard is dismissed.

²⁰⁴⁰¹ See paras. 5857, 5859–5861, 5871–5872, 5874–5876, 5880, 5890, 5894–5895, 5899, 5902, 5914–5915, 5917, 5958–5961.

iv. Conclusion

5951. The Chamber therefore finds that the detention of UN personnel by the Bosnian Serb Forces in order to compel NATO to cease its air strikes against Bosnian Serb military targets constitutes the crime of taking hostages, as a violation of the laws or customs of war.

3. Hostages JCE and the Accused's responsibility

a. Submissions of the Parties

5952. The Prosecution charges the Accused with having participated in a JCE during May and June 1995, the objective of which was to take UN personnel hostage in order to compel NATO to abstain from conducting air strikes against Bosnian Serb military targets.²⁰⁴⁰⁶ It alleges that this objective involved the commission of the crime of taking hostages.²⁰⁴⁰⁷

5953. The Prosecution further alleges that the Accused shared the intent for the commission of this crime with other members of the JCE, including Mladić.²⁰⁴⁰⁸ The Prosecution identifies the other members of the JCE as members of the Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs; and commanders, assistant commanders, senior officers, and chiefs of the VRS and MUP.²⁰⁴⁰⁹ It alleges that each member of the JCE implemented its objective by personally committing crimes, and/or through and by using members of the VRS and MUP to carry out the crimes committed in furtherance of the objective.²⁰⁴¹⁰ Alternatively, the Prosecution alleges that some or all of these individuals were not members of the JCE but were used by members of the JCE to carry out the crimes committed in furtherance of its objective.²⁰⁴¹¹

5954. The Prosecution alleges that the Accused significantly contributed to achieving the objective of taking hostages and that he was a central participant at every stage of the implementation of the common purpose.²⁰⁴¹²

5955. The Prosecution submits that following the NATO air strikes on Bosnian Serb military targets on 25 and 26 May 1995, Bosnian Serb Forces took over 200 UN personnel hostage and informed the UN that the hostages would be killed or injured if the NATO air strikes continued.²⁰⁴¹³ It argues that these acts were part of a JCE to compel NATO to abstain from conducting further air strikes and that the Accused, with others, intended that the UN personnel be taken hostage and that the Accused ordered subordinates in the VRS and the MUP to seize them and use them as human shields.²⁰⁴¹⁴

5956. In relation to his responsibility under Count 11, the Accused submits that the Prosecution has failed to prove his mens rea for an essential element of the offence.²⁰⁴¹⁵ The Accused argues that while he did agree that UN personnel should be detained following the NATO air strikes, he never agreed or contemplated that threats should be made against them.²⁰⁴¹⁶ He also argues that there is no evidence that the plan to detain the UN personnel included the issuance of threats against them.²⁰⁴¹⁷ He further argues that the threats that were made to the detained UN personnel were “not part of orders coming down the chain of command” and that while there were VRS orders to place the UN personnel in areas where air strikes may occur, he also ordered that the UN personnel be “treated properly with military respect”.²⁰⁴¹⁸ The Accused submits that the crime of taking hostages requires an essential element, namely that the perpetrator threatened to kill, injure, or continue to detain such person or persons and since he never agreed to this element, he cannot be found guilty of this crime under the basic form of JCE.²⁰⁴¹⁹

b. Findings on the common purpose and plurality of persons

5957. The Chamber found that following the NATO air strikes on 25 and 26 May 1995, the Bosnian Serb Forces detained UN personnel in various locations throughout BiH.²⁰⁴²⁰ The Accused had warned UNPROFOR that he would “treat UN soldiers as enemies” if NATO air strikes were conducted and UNPROFOR had expressed its own concerns about UN personnel being targeted by the VRS.²⁰⁴²¹ Immediately after the air strikes, the Accused ordered Milovanović to “activate” a decision made the previous year to “arrest everything foreign in RS territory and to ²⁰⁴¹⁵ Defence Final Brief, para. 3352. In relation to the third form of JCE, the Accused argues that there is no evidence that he should have foreseen the making of such threats to the detained UN personnel. He argues that since the threats were not foreseeable, he cannot be found guilty of hostage taking under the third form of JCE. Defence Final Brief, paras. 3366–3368. The Chamber notes that for the Hostages component of the case, the Prosecution does not charge the Accused with criminal responsibility through the third form of JCE, therefore the Chamber will not address the Accused’s argument with respect to this form of responsibility.

treat military personnel as prisoners of war and hold them as hostages till the end of the war”.²⁰⁴²² Members of the Bosnian Serb Forces, including Mladić, Milovanović, Dragomir Milošević, and Živanović, carried out an operation with swift efficiency resulting in the detention of over 200 UN personnel throughout BiH during the few days immediately following the NATO air strikes.²⁰⁴²³ Some of the UN personnel were taken to locations of military significance to the VRS, while others were detained at their OPs or WCPs.²⁰⁴²⁴

5958. Once it was clear that NATO air strikes would cease, the negotiations for the release of the hostages were successful.²⁰⁴²⁵ On 2 June 1995, the Accused issued an order to the Main Staff and the MUP that 120 detained UNPROFOR personnel should be released.²⁰⁴²⁶ Also on this day, Krajišnik, in a private telephone conversation, stated that the Bosnian Serbs were very pleased with the things they had achieved and that the hostages were the Bosnian Serbs’ “trump card” and were used to avert the danger of NATO bombing their positions.²⁰⁴²⁷ The following day, Krajišnik stated that “we let some go and we captured some others” but that the Bosnian Serbs were holding on to some of the hostages, as “an excellent method” and they always had “an ace up our sleeve”.²⁰⁴²⁸

5959. On 4 June 1995, Janvier met with Mladić to discuss the remaining detained UN personnel.²⁰⁴²⁹ Janvier stated that the situation was unacceptable and demanded that the Bosnian Serbs release all detained UN personnel with all of their material and equipment.²⁰⁴³⁰ Mladić stated that the intention of the Bosnian Serbs in detaining UN personnel was that air strikes would never be repeated in the future and that the release of the UN personnel was dependent on this guarantee by the UN.²⁰⁴³¹ Mladić proposed an agreement that he, as the VRS Commander, and Janvier, as the Commander of UNPROFOR, state the following:

- (1) The VRS will no longer threaten the life and the security of members of UNPROFOR by the use of force;
- (2) UNPROFOR will not engage any of its forces or air strikes against Bosnian Serb objectives or territory; and
- (3) the signing of this agreement immediately engages the liberation of all prisoners of war.²⁰⁴³²

5960. On 15 June 1995, Krajišnik, in a private conversation, stated that the hostage situation was the “biggest deal and quite a lucrative one, I am not saying we could have gotten more out of it”.²⁰⁴³³

5961. In addition to the detention, the Chamber found that threats to kill and harm were used against the detained UN personnel in order to obtain a concession, namely that NATO cease its air strikes, including by the Accused.²⁰⁴³⁴ Mladić, Indić, Zametica, Ribić, and members of the Bosnian Serb Forces communicated these threats directly to the detained UN personnel, Smith, and UNPROFOR.²⁰⁴³⁵ These threats were made in order to stop the NATO air strikes.²⁰⁴³⁶ Further, both Krajišnik and Zametica issued public statements following the NATO air strikes, that the Bosnian Serbs would treat the UN as their enemy.²⁰⁴³⁷ The Accused publicly warned against the

Patrick Rechner, T. 11113–11114 (2 February 2011). Milenko Indić stated that he never told Smith that UNPROFOR personnel would be killed or harmed. D2774 (Witness statement of Milenko Indić dated 19 January 2013), para. 171. The Chamber notes that the evidence shows that repeated threats were made to harm and kill the UN personnel, these threats were communicated to Smith, among others, by Indić, and the UN personnel were placed in locations of strategic and military importance to the VRS, placing them at great risk of being harmed or killed in the event of a NATO air strike.

Krajišnik testified that detaining UN personnel was a “desperate attempt” on the part of the VRS to prevent further NATO air strikes but it was in no way done to harm the actual UN personnel who were shown on television. He further testified that the intent of the Bosnian Serb leadership was to deter the air strikes and that is why the detained UN personnel were shown on television but that “we had no wish to destroy these use of military intervention to free the hostages, stating that it would end in “catastrophe” and “a slaughter”.²⁰⁴³⁸ He threatened to escalate retaliation by the Bosnian Serbs if the UN ordered more NATO air strikes.²⁰⁴³⁹

5962. The Chamber is therefore satisfied beyond reasonable doubt that between 25 May and June 1995, there existed a JCE, the common purpose of which was to take UN personnel hostage in order to compel NATO to abstain from conducting further air strikes against Bosnian Serb targets. This common purpose came to fruition following the NATO air strikes on 25 and 26 May 1995 and involved a plurality of persons. These members of the JCE, including the Accused,²⁰⁴⁴⁰ Mladić, Krajišnik, and Milovanović, shared the intent for the crime of hostage-taking. Members of the JCE implemented the common purpose themselves and/or by using members of the VRS and the MUP to act in furtherance of the common purpose. In doing so, orders were issued to take UN personnel hostage, the orders were implemented, and information was reported about the hostages taken. The common purpose lasted until the last of the UN personnel was released on 18 June 1995.

c. Findings on the Accused’s intent: whether the Accused shared the common purpose of the JCE 5963. The Accused argues that, while he did agree that UN personnel should be detained, he never agreed or contemplated that threats should be made against them and that there is no evidence that the plan to detain the UN personnel included the issuance of threats.²⁰⁴⁴¹ In contrast, the Prosecution submits that the Accused was a central participant at every stage of the hostage taking.²⁰⁴⁴² Given the importance placed by the Accused on whether he shared the intent that threats be issued against the detained UN personnel, the Chamber will examine this element in detail below.

5964. Prior to the hostage-taking events, the Accused warned UNPROFOR that he would treat UN soldiers as enemies if NATO air strikes were conducted.²⁰⁴⁴³ UNPROFOR had expressed its young people”. Momčilo Krajišnik, T. 43339–43340 (12 November 2013). The Chamber notes that whether or not the Bosnian Serb leadership intended to actually harm the hostages is not an element of the crime of hostage taking. The accepted evidence discussed in this section of the Judgement shows that the Bosnian Serb political leadership was involved in the detention of the UN personnel at locations which placed them at a high risk of being harmed and this amounted to threatening to harm the UN personnel.

own concerns about UN personnel being targeted by the VRS.²⁰⁴⁴⁴ During a meeting with Smith on 9 May 1995, the Accused informed Smith that anyone who attacked the Bosnian Serbs was “their enemy” and made it clear that if NATO were to conduct air strikes against Bosnian Serb targets, then the UN forces would be attacked in retaliation or at least be “detained”.²⁰⁴⁴⁵ The Accused again warned that the UN and NATO would be treated as enemies of the Bosnian Serbs.²⁰⁴⁴⁶

5965. On 25 May 1995, after a warning issued by Smith prior to the NATO air strikes, the Accused, who was in Banja Luka at the time, again stated in a press interview that if the UN and NATO were to conduct air strikes, that he would “treat UN soldiers as ‘enemies’”.²⁰⁴⁴⁷ On the same day, the Accused ordered Milovanović to activate the decision made the previous year ordering the VRS to arrest everything foreign in RS territory and to treat military personnel as prisoners of war and “hold them as hostages” till the end of the war.²⁰⁴⁴⁸

5966. On 27 May 1995, the Accused approved an order issued by Milovanović to the commanders of the VRS corps to “place the captured UNPROFOR staff, as well as staff of the other international humanitarian organisations” at the “warehouses, in the areas of command posts, firing positions and other potential targets that may come under the air strike”.²⁰⁴⁴⁹

5967. On 1 June 1995, the Accused gave an interview to the Bosnian Serb television station in Pale stating that any attempt to liberate the detained UN personnel would “end in catastrophe” and it would “be a slaughter”.²⁰⁴⁵⁰ He stated that the detained UN personnel were prisoners of war but he threatened to escalate the Bosnian Serb response if the UN ordered more NATO air strikes.²⁰⁴⁵¹

5968. On 21 June 1995, the Accused gave an interview to the BBC, in which he discussed the detention of the UN personnel.²⁰⁴⁵² He admitted that the detention of the UN personnel was a mistake but that “one drastic move causes another drastic reaction”, referring to the NATO air strikes as the first drastic move and the detention as the drastic reaction.²⁰⁴⁵³ He stated that he needed to do something very drastic “in order to prevent further attacks [from NATO]”.²⁰⁴⁵⁴ The Accused called the detainees “UN war prisoners” and stated that he had ordered their release.²⁰⁴⁵⁵ He stated that he was responsible for the actions of the VRS soldiers on the ground, stating that “we [he and the VRS] function as a State and I am Commander-in-Chief, Supreme Commander and everything that my Army do, I do back”.²⁰⁴⁵⁶

5969. The Chamber is of the view that the statements, acts, and conduct of the Accused, as described above, are tantamount to having issued threats to injure, kill, or continue to detain the UN personnel and that he deliberately used the detained UN personnel as a bargaining tool to stop NATO air strikes. It is also clear from the Accused’s statements and actions that he envisaged using the UN personnel as hostages. The only reasonable inference the Chamber can draw from this evidence is that the Accused intended not only to detain the UN personnel but also to issue threats while they were detained in order to achieve his objective of stopping further NATO air strikes of Bosnian Serb targets.

5970. Further, Mladić, Indić, Zametica, Ribić, and members of the Bosnian Serb Forces communicated threats directly to UNPROFOR.²⁰⁴⁵⁷ In particular, the evidence shows that Accused’s close subordinates who the Chamber finds were the members of the JCE, were involved in issuing threats. When proposing an agreement to Janvier, Mladić stated that the VRS would no longer threaten the life and the security of members of UNPROFOR by the use of force. The only reasonable inference that can be drawn from this is that Mladić was aware of the threats and that he was involved in issuing threats. In addition, public statements were issued by Krajišnik and Zametica and media coverage at that time showed videos of UN personnel being threatened, handcuffed, and detained in locations of potential NATO air strikes.²⁰⁴⁵⁸

5971. On 26 May 1995, at 12 a.m., Zametica gave a statement to Bosnian Serb Radio in response to the NATO air strikes.²⁰⁴⁵⁹ Zametica reiterated that the Bosnian Serbs had always maintained that if there were air strikes against them, the Bosnian Serbs would treat UNPROFOR personnel as their “enemies” and that the UN had “hired an assassin” in the form of NATO to execute its tasks.²⁰⁴⁶⁰ He stated that if the NATO air strikes continued, the Bosnian Serbs would respond in the same manner but that they were also ready to negotiate.²⁰⁴⁶¹ On the same day, he visited Jahorinski Potok where UN personnel were detained.²⁰⁴⁶² The Chamber notes that as the Accused’s personal advisor, Zametica was privy to “everything that was important” in the Presidency and would also communicate with the international community on behalf of the Accused.²⁰⁴⁶³

5972. Given his relationship with Mladić, Krajišnik, and Zametica the only reasonable inference that can be drawn is that the Accused knew that threats were issued and that he approved of these threats. Moreover, as will be described below in relation to the Accused’s contribution to the JCE, the Accused was closely involved at every stage of these events.

5973. Therefore, in light of the foregoing, the Chamber finds that the Accused intended for the threats to be issued in order to compel NATO to cease its air strikes and that he shared the common purpose and the intent for the crime of hostage taking, along with other members of the JCE.

d. Findings on the Accused’s contribution to the JCE

i. The Accused involvement in the lead up to NATO air strikes

5974. On 5 April 1995, the Accused met with Smith at a hotel near Pale.²⁰⁴⁶⁴ Smith expressed serious concerns to the Accused about the recent attacks on the safe areas, the breaches of the TEZ, the direct targeting of UNPROFOR personnel, and the disruption of humanitarian aid convoys.²⁰⁴⁶⁵ Smith told the Accused that eventually UNPROFOR would be forced to respond with NATO air strikes.²⁰⁴⁶⁶ The Accused responded that he thought the UN was assisting the Bosnian Muslims and that the VRS was going to start a counter-offensive.²⁰⁴⁶⁷ The Accused wanted the UN to withdraw from all areas of confrontation.²⁰⁴⁶⁸ Smith responded that as the UN commander, he needed to ensure that the UN's mandate to protect the safe areas was respected and that he could use NATO airpower if the safe areas were attacked.²⁰⁴⁶⁹

5975. On 1 May 1995, the Accused, Krajišnik, Subotica, and Zametica met with Akashi and Smith in Pale to discuss an extension of the COHA.²⁰⁴⁷⁰ The Accused told Akashi that the UN could count on the goodwill of the Bosnian Serbs but if the situation deteriorated (referring to the armed conflict in Croatia), so too would the relationship between the UN and the Bosnian Serbs.²⁰⁴⁷¹ Following this meeting, the UNPROFOR assessment was that the Bosnian Serbs would strike against their "international enemy" by targeting the UN and taking UN personnel hostage.²⁰⁴⁷² The assessment further stated that they [the Bosnian Serbs] will seek to bring NATO into play at the earliest opportunity so as to gain Serbian sympathy and to have the excuse to seize hostages and possibly 'punish' the UN by fire; methods that have always neutralized NATO in the past. We [UN] should expect more provocation for NATO and possibly the denial of convoy clearances to or from the enclaves; leave [sic] convoys would be an attractive choice for hostage taking.²⁰⁴⁷³

5976. On 9 May 1995, the Accused and Zametica had another meeting with Smith.²⁰⁴⁷⁴ Smith explained to the Accused that he had recommended NATO air strikes against VRS military targets in response to the VRS mortar and artillery attacks in Sarajevo on 7 and 8 May 1995 against the civilian population.²⁰⁴⁷⁵ The Accused informed Smith that anyone who attacked the Bosnian Serbs was "their enemy" and made it clear that if NATO were to conduct air strikes against Bosnian Serb targets, then the UN forces would be attacked in retaliation or at least be “detained”.²⁰⁴⁷⁶ Furthermore, the Accused stated that the UN and NATO would be treated as enemies of the Bosnian Serbs.²⁰⁴⁷⁷ The Accused told Smith that he would instruct Mladić to speak to Smith soon because he himself would be away for a few days in Banja Luka.²⁰⁴⁷⁸

5977. On 21 May 1995, the Accused had a meeting with Smith near Pale to discuss, inter alia, the mandate of the UNPROFOR in BiH.²⁰⁴⁷⁹ Smith expressed his concern to the Accused about the “increasing targeting of UN personnel” and the debilitating effect of the denial of supplies and movement to the eastern enclaves.²⁰⁴⁸⁰ The Accused told Smith that he had “no belief in the impartiality, efficiency or credibility of the UN”.²⁰⁴⁸¹

5978. As discussed above, on 24 May 1995, Smith called Mladić to express his concern about the situation in and around Sarajevo and issued a warning that if the heavy weapons taken by the Bosnian Serbs were not returned to the WCPs by 12 p.m. on 25 May 1995, then NATO air strikes would commence.²⁰⁴⁸² The following day, Akashi spoke to the Accused and informed him that the VRS needed to return the four missing heavy weapons taken from the WCP earlier.²⁰⁴⁸³ The Accused spoke to Milovanović about the deadline and told him that Akashi “had been after” him all day although the Accused did not want to talk to him and that he told Akashi that the Bosnian Serbs would treat the UN as enemies if they called in the NATO air strikes.²⁰⁴⁸⁴ The Accused stated in a

Later, in June 1995, the Accused stated to the Bosnian Serb Assembly that the Bosnian Serb leadership had decided to heat up the conflict and “take whatever we can, create a fiery atmosphere and dramatize, threaten an escalation, etc.” and the Bosnian Serbs did that around Sarajevo by taking the four artillery pieces”. ii. The Accused’s involvement in hostage taking

5979. Following the NATO air strikes, the Accused ordered that the UN personnel be detained and kept in detention until assurances were made that there would be no further NATO air-strikes. On 25 May 1995, the Accused ordered Milovanović to activate the decision made the previous year ordering the VRS to “arrest everything foreign in RS territory and to treat military personnel as prisoners of war and hold them as hostages till the end of the war”.²⁰⁴⁸⁶ Consequently, Živanović issued an order to all units of the Drina Corps that “NATO aircrafts, which are a part of UNPROFOR, conducted operations against” the VRS and the VRS should respond by conducting operations against selected targets.²⁰⁴⁸⁷ It stated that “if UNPROFOR continues its operations against our military and civilian targets, all units of the Corps must be on stand-by for action against UNPROFOR checkpoints and bases”.²⁰⁴⁸⁸ It further ordered the prevention of all movement of “UNPROFOR vehicles and of all other international organisations” in the area and to fire on UNPROFOR if fired upon.²⁰⁴⁸⁹ The following day, Dragomir Milošević issued an order to all units of the SRK to immediately establish a full blockade of UN forces at check-points and on all roads in the “entire zone of the Corps” and to “use additional forces if the blockade is detected by the UN forces”.²⁰⁴⁹⁰

5980. On 26 May 1995, Akashi sent a letter to the Accused expressing serious concerns about the situation in BiH and his wish that the UN and the Bosnian Serbs could resume a constructive working relationship.²⁰⁴⁹¹ Akashi warned that the deliberate harming of UNPROFOR personnel would result in pressure from the international community for additional military action, including further air strikes.²⁰⁴⁹²

5981. On 27 May 1995, the Accused approved an order issued by Milovanović to the commanders of the VRS corps to “place the captured UNPROFOR staff, as well as staff of the other international humanitarian organisations” at the “warehouses, in the areas of command posts, firing positions and other potential targets that may come under the air strike”.²⁰⁴⁹³ The purpose of this order was to prevent NATO from carrying out further air strikes.²⁰⁴⁹⁴ The “commanders of the units” were “personally responsible” to Milovanović for the execution of the order and were required to inform him in writing by the following day.²⁰⁴⁹⁵ Following this order, on the same day, Lieutenant Colonel Jovica Karanović of the Main Staff Intelligence and Security Sector, issued an order to the Intelligence and Security Departments of the 1st Krajina Corps, 2nd Krajina Corps, Airforce and Anti-Aircraft Defence, the SRK, the Eastern Bosnia Corps, and the Herzegovina Corps stating that he had information that the NATO air strikes would continue against VRS military positions and that all commanders should familiarise themselves with this information.²⁰⁴⁹⁶ He recommended that the captured UN personnel be placed in areas of possible NATO air strikes.²⁰⁴⁹⁷ Similarly, on this day, Dragomir Milošević ordered all SRK units to include in their regular combat reports for that day the following: (i) the numbers of UN personnel who were “taken prisoner” and what country they were from; (ii) the numbers of UN personnel who were “under blockade” and their locations; and (iii) the number of equipment and ammunition seized from the UN personnel.²⁰⁴⁹⁸ He also ordered all SRK units to deploy stronger forces at the check-points that were “taken from UNPROFOR” and not to allow any recapturing of these check-points from UNPROFOR or “enemy forces”.²⁰⁴⁹⁹ Also implementing the order, Živanović issued an order to all commands of the Drina Corps to capture, disarm, and relocate UN personnel to locations such as depots and forward command posts.²⁰⁵⁰⁰

5982. On 28 May 1995, Milovanović sent a report to the Accused and various VRS units stating that the 1st Krajina Corps Command took approximately 57 UNPROFOR soldiers from the Eastern Bosnia Corps, including 43 UkrBat and 14 FreBat members.²⁰⁵⁰¹ The Herzegovina Corps Command held over 18 UNPROFOR soldiers.²⁰⁵⁰² In addition, the Accused was informed that the Drina Corps had captured 27 members of the BritBat Team.²⁰⁵⁰³

5983. On 28 May 1995, at a meeting of the Supreme Command in Pale, attended by, inter alios, the Accused and Mladić, the detention of UN personnel was discussed.²⁰⁵⁰⁴ The Supreme Command decided to further restrict the movement of UN forces in the enclaves, including in Sarajevo, and that the detained UN personnel should be treated as prisoners of war.²⁰⁵⁰⁵

5984. On 29 May 1995, the Accused and Krajišnik spoke with an individual in contact with the British Ministry of Defence about the hostage situation.²⁰⁵⁰⁶ The Accused demanded, as a condition for the release of the UN personnel, that NATO air strikes would cease and “they [UN] need to make a decision at the Security Council about abolishing the use of force. That is very important; that abolishing the use of force and then we’ll see. The solution is the more important because then negotiations follow”.²⁰⁵⁰⁷ On the same day, the Accused sent a letter to Akashi demanding a guarantee that the use of force by the UN and NATO was no longer an option.²⁰⁵⁰⁸ The Bosnian Serbs issued a press release stating that at a session of the VRS Supreme Command chaired by the Accused and attended by Mladić, the VRS declared “all UN Security Council resolutions, all NATO ultimatums, and all agreements with the United Nations that have been abused are hereby declared null and void”.²⁰⁵⁰⁹

5985. On 30 May 1995, the Accused, the RS representative in Moscow at that time, Todor Dutina, and Krajišnik discussed the hostage situation.²⁰⁵¹⁰ Dutina told the Accused, “let me tell you, Radovan, we made a move and now we should wait for a move of the other side”.²⁰⁵¹¹ The Accused was informed that an intermediary from France was going to try to negotiate with the Bosnian Serbs.²⁰⁵¹² The Accused replied, “we are not interested in letting them [the detained UN personnel] go as much as they are interested in us letting them go”.²⁰⁵¹³ He further stated that he thought of the UN as opponents and that the UN would not be able to rescue all the UN personnel, “but let them come; how can they come by aircrafts when we keep them [the detained UN personnel] at three hundred places? They can’t liberate that, maybe one or none”.²⁰⁵¹⁴ Krajišnik testified that the detention of the UN personnel was a “desperate attempt” by the Bosnian Serbs to prevent further air strikes.²⁰⁵¹⁵

iii. The Accused’s involvement in the release of UN hostages

5986. Once it became clear that NATO would no longer be conducting air strikes against Bosnian Serb military targets, the Accused ordered the release of the UN hostages. On 2 June 1995, the Accused issued an order to the Main Staff and the MUP that 120 detained UNPROFOR personnel should be released.²⁰⁵¹⁶ The Accused also ordered that a detailed report be submitted to him upon completion of this order.²⁰⁵¹⁷ On the same day, Mladić implemented the order to the 1st Krajina Corps, 2nd Krajina Corps, Airforce and Anti-Aircraft Defence, the SRK, the Eastern Bosnia Corps, the Herzegovina Corps, and the Drina Corps to release 120 UNPROFOR personnel who were “taken prisoner” in the Pale area and turned them over to the MUP who would organise their transport to the FRY.²⁰⁵¹⁸

5987. On 6 June 1995, the Accused issued an order to release 95 more UNPROFOR soldiers and to hand them over to the MUP in the garrisons of Bijeljina and Višegrad on 7 June 1995.²⁰⁵¹⁹ Again, Mladić implemented this order but all other UNPROFOR soldiers who were still detained were to remain until further instructions.²⁰⁵²⁰ Approximately 150 UN personnel remained detained by the VRS.²⁰⁵²¹

5988. On 13 June 1995, the Accused issued an order to the Commander and Assistant Commander for Intelligence and Security of the Main Staff, directing them to release all captured UN soldiers at 11 a.m. that day and to hand them over to Jovica Stanišić.²⁰⁵²² 15 UNMOs were to remain in VRS custody near Pale and be released on 18 June 1995.²⁰⁵²³ The following day, the Accused made a statement to the Belgrade media stating that 15 UN personnel would be released later due to “technical reasons”.²⁰⁵²⁴ The Accused stated: “[W]e regret what we had to do”; however, the Bosnian Serbs were attacked, they needed to defend themselves by all means.²⁰⁵²⁵

5989. On 15 June 1995, at the 51st Session of the RS Assembly, the Accused recalled the escalation of hostilities, that he “decided to opt for an aggravation of the situation”, and that they [Bosnian Serbs] had to “heat up the situation”, the Accused stated:

We ordered the arrest, we didn't go into detail as to when they would be tied up, but it had a good effect, it was very shocking for the world, now it's easy, when they ask us if that was a nice gesture, I ask if it's a nice gesture to bomb the Serbian rear and frighten our children and old people. [...] we couldn't let them all go at once, but in proportions, we even left 15 until the end of this week so we could keep the weapons we have in Sarajevo, knowing about the offensive and planning to do something in Sarajevo. Now any return of weapons is out of the question because of this offensive, so that, in a way, we even somewhat benefited from this whole crisis.²⁰⁵²⁶

5990. The Accused further stated that after assessing the situation and noting that the media was describing the UN personnel as hostages, the Bosnian Serbs realised they may have a “spoil” in their hands which would result in a negative effect and “a justification for a possible military intervention” where they would lose their state.²⁰⁵²⁷ They therefore initiated a “cool down process” and “at the same time considered who to give those hostages back to”.²⁰⁵²⁸

5991. On 16 June 1995, the Security Council passed Resolution 998 condemning the attacks on the UNPROFOR personnel and demanding that the VRS immediately and unconditionally release all detained UNPROFOR personnel.²⁰⁵²⁹ On 17 June 1995, the Accused issued an order to the Main Staff that all UN personnel in VRS custody be released by 2 p.m. on 18 June 1995.²⁰⁵³⁰ The order was implemented by Mladić, who issued it to the commanders of the 1st Krajina Corps, 2nd Krajina Corps, Eastern Bosnia Corps, Drina Corps, SRK, Herzegovina Corps, Air Force and Air Defence but ordering that 26 UN personnel be handed over to the MUP by 18 June 1995 only after UNPROFOR releases four captured VRS soldiers.²⁰⁵³¹ By 18 June 1995, UNPROFOR reported that all remaining UN personnel had been released and UNPROFOR had also released the four VRS soldiers.²⁰⁵³²

iv. Conclusion

5992. The Chamber is satisfied beyond reasonable doubt that the Accused significantly contributed to the common purpose to take UN personnel hostage in order to deter NATO from engaging in further air-strikes. The Accused was the driving force behind the hostage taking and an active participant in every aspect of the events. He directly participated in the operation to take UN personnel hostage as evidenced by his involvement in: (i) formulating and implementing the hostage taking plan, (ii) the statements he made prior to the NATO air strikes to attack and/or detain UN personnel, (iii) directing others to detain the UN personnel and place them in locations of military significance to the VRS after the NATO air strikes, (iv) monitoring the hostage taking operation, (v) receiving reports about the hostages, and vi) placing conditions on the release of the hostages.²⁰⁵³³ The Accused issued statements that the UN personnel would not be released unless NATO ceased the air strikes.²⁰⁵³⁴ Once the UN conceded to his demands that NATO air strikes would cease, the Accused issued orders for the release of the UN personnel.²⁰⁵³⁵

e. Count 11: Conclusion

5993. The Chamber therefore finds that the Accused is criminally responsible, as a member of the Hostages JCE, under Article 7(1) of the Statute for the crime of taking hostages pursuant to Count 11 of the Indictment.

5994. In addition to the Accused's liability through participation in a JCE, the Prosecution also alleges that the Accused is individually criminally responsible for planning, instigating, ordering, and/or aiding and abetting the crime of taking hostages through certain acts and omissions.²⁰⁵³⁶ It also charges the Accused with individual criminal responsibility pursuant to Article 7(3) of the Statute.²⁰⁵³⁷ However, having considered all of the evidence and in light of the findings made above, the Chamber finds that commission through JCE pursuant to Article 7(1) most accurately and appropriately reflects the Accused's responsibility for the crime of hostage taking as charged in the Indictment. The Chamber will therefore not analyse the Accused's responsibility under the other modes alleged by the Prosecution in the Indictment.

E. SUMMARY OF FINDINGS

5995. In the previous sections of the Judgement, the Chamber has made findings on the charges related to each of the four components of this case and on the Accused's responsibility in relation thereto. The Chamber will now summarise these findings, first in relation to each of the alleged JCEs and second with regard to each of the Counts of the Indictment.

a. Summary of findings on the four alleged JCEs

5996. In relation to the Municipalities component, the Chamber found that the Overarching JCE came into existence in October 1991 and continued until 30 November 1995. Its common purpose was to permanently remove Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb claimed territory and was shared by the Accused, Momčilo Krajišnik, Nikola Koljević, Biljana Plavšić, Ratko Mladić, Mićo Stanišić, Momčilo Mandić, Željko Ražnatović (Arkan), and Vojislav Šešelj. The common plan of the Overarching JCE involved the commission of the crimes of deportation, inhumane acts (forcible transfer), and persecution (through forcible transfer, deportation, unlawful detention and imposition of discriminatory measures). The Chamber found that the Accused shared the intent for these crimes and, by virtue of his actions and omissions, significantly contributed to the furtherance of the common purpose of the Overarching JCE. In addition, the Chamber found that the Accused acted in furtherance of the common purpose of the Overarching JCE with the awareness of the possibility that the crimes of murder, extermination, and persecution (through killings, cruel or inhumane treatment, forced labour at the frontline, the use of non-Serbs as human shields, the appropriation or plunder of property, and the wanton destruction of private property, including cultural and sacred sites) might be committed either by members of the Overarching JCE or Serb Forces who were used by him or other members of the Overarching JCE to carry out the common plan, and that he willingly took that risk.

5997. In relation to the Sarajevo component, the Chamber found that the Sarajevo JCE came into existence in late May 1992 and continued until October 1995. The Chamber also found that the common plan of the Sarajevo JCE was to establish a campaign of sniping and shelling, the primary purpose of which was to spread terror among the civilian population of Sarajevo. The common purpose of the Sarajevo JCE was shared by the Accused, Ratko Mladić, Momčilo Krajišnik, Nikola Koljević, Biljana Plavšić, Stanislav Galić, and Dragomir Milošević. The common plan of the Sarajevo JCE involved the commission of murder, unlawful attacks on civilians, and terror. The Chamber found that the Accused shared the intent to commit these crimes and that, by virtue of his actions and omissions, the Accused significantly contributed to the furtherance of the common purpose of the Sarajevo JCE.

5998. In relation to the Srebrenica component, the Chamber found that the Srebrenica JCE came into existence as Srebrenica fell in July 1995. Its common purpose was to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica—first through the forcible removal of the women, children, and the elderly, and later through the killing of the men and boys—and was shared by the Accused, Ratko Mladić, Ljubiša Beara, and Vujadin Popović. The Chamber found that the original scope of the common plan involved the commission of inhumane acts (forcible transfer) and persecution, and that the expanded scope of the common plan also involved the commission of murder and extermination. The Chamber also found that the Accused shared the intent for these crimes and that he agreed with the expanded common purpose, i.e., the killing of the men and boys, on the evening of 13 July 1995. The Chamber further found that the members of the Srebrenica JCE intended to kill every able-bodied Bosnian Muslim male from Srebrenica while forcibly removing women, children and the elderly, and that such intent amounted to the intent to destroy the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica. Therefore, the Chamber is satisfied that genocide was within the scope of the expanded common purpose. The Chamber finally found that, by virtue of his actions and omissions, the Accused significantly contributed to the furtherance of the common purpose of the Srebrenica JCE. In addition, the Chamber found that the Accused, as a superior exercising effective control over his subordinates, failed to punish the killings and the related acts of persecution that occurred prior to the evening of 13 July 1995, which he either knew or had reason to know.

5999. The Chamber found that the Hostages JCE existed between 25 May and June 1995 and that its common purpose was to take UN personnel hostage in order to compel NATO to abstain from conducting further air strikes against Bosnian Serb targets. The Chamber found that this common purpose came to fruition following the NATO air strikes on 25 and 26 May 1995 and involved a plurality of persons, including the Accused, Ratko Mladić, Momčilo Krajišnik, and Manojlo Milovanović, who all shared the intent for the crime of hostage-taking. The Chamber further found that Accused significantly contributed to the furtherance of the common purpose the Hostages JCE.

b. Summary of findings on the Counts of the Indictment

i. Count 1 (genocide)

6000. In relation to Count 1, genocide in the Count 1 Municipalities, the Chamber found that it was not satisfied beyond reasonable doubt that the acts under Article 4(2) of the Statute in the Count 1 Municipalities were committed with genocidal intent. Further, the Chamber was not satisfied that the only reasonable inference to be drawn from the evidence was that named members of the alleged Overarching JCE, including the Accused, other Bosnian Serbs not named as alleged members of the Overarching JCE, or physical perpetrators possessed such intent to destroy the Bosnian Muslim and/or Bosnian Croat groups in the Count 1 Municipalities as such. Therefore, the Accused bears no individual criminal responsibility in relation to Count 1.

ii. Count 2 (genocide)

6001. In relation to Count 2, genocide in Srebrenica, the Chamber found that the Accused bears individual criminal responsibility pursuant to Articles 7(1) and 7(3) of the Statute. However, since the Chamber already found the Accused responsible for genocide on the basis of his participation in the Srebrenica JCE, the Chamber will not enter a conviction pursuant to Article 7(3) of the Statute in relation to Count 2.

iii. Count 3 (persecution, a crime against humanity)

6002. In relation to the Municipalities component, the Chamber found that the Accused bears individual criminal responsibility pursuant to Article 7(1) on the basis of his participation in the Overarching JCE. For the Srebrenica component, the Chamber found that the Accused bears responsibility pursuant to Article 7(1), on the basis of his participation in the Srebrenica JCE,²⁰⁵³⁸ and pursuant to Article 7(3) for having failed to punish the killings committed by his subordinates prior to the evening of 13 July 1995 and the related acts of persecution.

iv. Count 4 (extermination, a crime against humanity)

6003. In relation to the Municipalities component, the Chamber found that the Accused bears individual criminal responsibility pursuant to Article 7(1) on the basis of his participation in the Overarching JCE. For the Srebrenica component, the Chamber found that the Accused bears responsibility pursuant to Article 7(1), on the basis of his participation in the Srebrenica JCE,²⁰⁵³⁹ and pursuant to Article 7(3) for having failed to punish the killings committed by his subordinates prior to the evening of 13 July 1995.

v. Count 5 (murder, a crime against humanity)

6004. In relation to the Municipalities and Sarajevo components, the Chamber found that the Accused bears individual criminal responsibility pursuant to Article 7(1) with regard to his participation in the Overarching JCE and the Sarajevo JCE. For the Srebrenica component, the Chamber found that the Accused bears responsibility pursuant to Article 7(1), on the basis of his participation in the Srebrenica JCE,²⁰⁵⁴⁰ and pursuant to Article 7(3) for having failed to punish the killings committed by his subordinates prior to the evening of 13 July 1995.

²⁰⁵³⁸ The Chamber has held that the Accused cannot be held responsible through his participation in the Srebrenica JCE for the killings and related acts of persecution which occurred prior to the evening of 13 July 1995.

²⁰⁵³⁹ The Chamber has held that the Accused cannot be held responsible through his participation in the Srebrenica JCE for the killings and related acts of persecution which occurred prior to the evening of 13 July 1995.

²⁰⁵⁴⁰ The Chamber has held that the Accused cannot be held responsible through his participation in the Srebrenica JCE for the killings and related acts of persecution which occurred prior to the evening of 13 July 1995.

vi. Count 6 (murder, a violation of the laws or customs of war)

6005. In relation to the Municipalities and Sarajevo components, the Chamber found that the Accused bears individual criminal responsibility pursuant to Article 7(1) on the basis of his participation in the Overarching JCE and the Sarajevo JCE. For the Srebrenica component, the Chamber found that the Accused bears responsibility pursuant to Article 7(1), on the basis of his participation in the Srebrenica JCE,²⁰⁵⁴¹ and pursuant to Article 7(3) for having failed to punish the killings committed by his subordinates prior to the evening of 13 July 1995.

vii. Count 7 (deportation, a crime against humanity)

viii. Count 8 (inhumane acts-forcible transfer, a crime against humanity)

6007. The Chamber found that the Accused bears individual criminal responsibility pursuant to Article 7(1) on the basis of his participation in the Overarching JCE and the Srebrenica JCE.

ix. Count 9 (terror, a violation of the laws or customs of war)

6008. In relation to Count 9, terror, a violation of the laws or customs of war, the Chamber found that the Accused bears individual criminal responsibility pursuant to Article 7(1) on the basis of his participation in the Sarajevo JCE.

x. Count 10 (unlawful attacks on civilians, a violation of the laws or customs of war)

6009. The Chamber found that the Accused bears individual criminal responsibility pursuant to Article 7(1) on the basis of his participation in the Sarajevo JCE.

xi. Count 11 (hostage taking, a violation of the laws or customs of war)

6010. The Chamber found that the Accused bears individual criminal responsibility pursuant to Article 7(1) on the basis of his participation in the Hostages JCE.

²⁰⁵⁴¹ The Chamber has held that the Accused cannot be held responsible through his participation in the Srebrenica JCE for the killings and related acts of persecution which occurred prior to the evening of 13 July 1995.

F. CUMULATIVE CONVICTIONS

1. Law on cumulative convictions and specific charges in this case

6011. The Chamber can enter multiple convictions under different provisions of the Statute for the same conduct only if each statutory provision involved has a materially distinct element not contained in the other. An element is materially distinct from another if it requires proof of a fact not required by the other.²⁰⁵⁴² If this test is not met, only a conviction under the more specific provision should be entered because the more specific offence subsumes the less specific one.²⁰⁵⁴³ The purpose of the cumulative conviction test is therefore to ensure that an accused “is convicted only for distinct offences, and at the same time, ensuring that convictions entered fully reflect his criminality”.²⁰⁵⁴⁴

6012. In applying the cumulative convictions test, a Chamber must compare in the abstract all the general requirements of the statutory crimes in question, as well as the elements of the charged offences, to determine whether each crime requires, as a matter of law, proof of an element that the others do not.²⁰⁵⁴⁵ The focus of the test is, however, on the legal elements of each crime that may be subject to cumulative conviction rather than the underlying conduct of an accused.²⁰⁵⁴⁶

a. Cumulative convictions under Articles 3 and 5 of the Statute

6013. In the Indictment, murder is the only offence charged both as a violation of the laws or customs of war punishable under Article 3 of the Statute and as a crime against humanity under Article 5 of the Statute.²⁰⁵⁴⁷

6014. Cumulative convictions for the same conduct under Article 3 and Article 5 of the Statute are permissible given that crimes against humanity constitute crimes distinct from violations of the laws or customs of war because each contains an element not present in the other.²⁰⁵⁴⁸ Specifically, Article 3 requires a close link between the acts of an accused and the armed conflict, which is not required for crimes charged under Article 5; in contrast, Article 5 requires proof that the act occurred as part of a widespread or systematic attack against a civilian population, which is not required for crimes charged under Article 3.²⁰⁵⁴⁹ On this basis, the Appeals Chamber has held that cumulative convictions for murder under Article 3 as a violation of the laws or customs of war and murder as a crime against humanity under Article 5 are permissible given that “each Article has an element requiring proof of a fact not required by the other”.²⁰⁵⁵⁰

b. Cumulative convictions for terror and unlawful attacks on civilians under Article 3 of the Statute 6015. Under Count 9 of the Indictment, the Accused is alleged to be criminally responsible for acts of violence the primary purpose of which was to spread terror among the civilian population.²⁰⁵⁵¹ The Accused is also alleged to be criminally responsible for unlawful attacks on civilians, under Count 10 of the Indictment.²⁰⁵⁵² Both offences are punishable as violations of the laws or customs of war under Article 3 of the Statute.

6016. The Appeals Chamber has clarified, that despite the similarities between the elements of terror and unlawful attacks on civilians, the two are separate and distinct offences as each requires proof of a fact not required by the other.²⁰⁵⁵³ Unlawful attacks on civilians require proof of death or serious injury to body or health which is not required for terror.²⁰⁵⁵⁴ Conversely, terror requires proof of a specific intent to spread terror among the civilian population which is not an element of unlawful attacks on civilians.²⁰⁵⁵⁵ Accordingly, the Chamber can enter cumulative convictions for these two offences, even when they are based on the same conduct.²⁰⁵⁵⁶

c. Cumulative convictions for intra Article 5 convictions

6017. Under Article 5 of the Statute, the Accused is alleged to be criminally responsible for murder, extermination, deportation, other inhumane acts (forcible transfer), and persecution as crimes against humanity.²⁰⁵⁵⁷ With respect to persecution under Article 5(h), the alleged underlying acts of this crime specifically identified in the Indictment include, inter alia, killings,²⁰⁵⁵⁸ forcible transfer,²⁰⁵⁵⁹ and deportation.²⁰⁵⁶⁰

6018. The Appeals Chamber has held that convictions for persecution as a crime against humanity are permissibly cumulative with other crimes against humanity because each has a materially distinct element not contained in the other.²⁰⁵⁶¹ Following this reasoning, it is possible for convictions to be entered for persecution as a crime against humanity under Article 5(h) on the one hand and murder under Article 5(a) of the Statute on the other.²⁰⁵⁶²

6019. It has also been held that cumulative convictions for persecution and other inhumane acts are permissible given that other inhumane acts require proof that the accused caused serious bodily or mental harm to the victim(s) regardless of whether the act or omission causing the harm discriminates in fact or was specifically intended as discriminatory which is required by persecutions.²⁰⁵⁶³ It has been held by the Appeals Chamber that it is thus possible to enter cumulative convictions for persecution, deportation and other inhumane acts (forcible transfer).²⁰⁵⁶⁴ Similarly, it has been held that cumulative convictions for the crime of extermination under Article 5(b) of the Statute and persecution as a crime against humanity under Article 5(h) of the Statute are permissible.²⁰⁵⁶⁵

6020. In contrast, the crime of murder does not require any material elements to be proven over and above those required for extermination; therefore, where the elements of murder under Article 5(a) of the Statute and extermination under Article 5(b) of the Statute are established on the basis of the same underlying facts, extermination is the more specific crime, and cumulative convictions under Articles 5(a) and 5(b) are impermissible.²⁰⁵⁶⁶

d. Cumulative convictions with respect to genocide

6021. The Appeals Chamber has held that cumulative convictions for genocide and crimes against humanity are permissible on the basis of the same acts, given that each has a materially distinct element from the other.²⁰⁵⁶⁷ For example, cumulative convictions for extermination under Article 5(b) and for genocide under Article 4 are permissible.²⁰⁵⁶⁸ The same principle applies to convictions for genocide, which requires, inter alia, the intent to destroy, in whole or in part, a national, ethnical, racial or religious group as such, and persecution as a crime against humanity, which must have been committed as part of a widespread or systematic attack on a civilian population²⁰⁵⁶⁹ and with the intention to discriminate on political, racial, or religious grounds.²⁰⁵⁷⁰

2. Findings

6022. The Chamber found that the Accused's individual criminal responsibility has been established pursuant to Articles 7(1) and/or 7(3)²⁰⁵⁷¹ of the Statute for the following Counts:

- Count 2: Genocide (Article 4(3)(a));
- Count 3: Persecution, a crime against humanity (Article 5(h));
- Count 4: Extermination, a crime against humanity (Article 5(b));
- Count 5: Murder, a crime against humanity (Article 5(a));
- Count 6: Murder, a violation of the laws or customs of war (Article 3);
- Count 7: Deportation, a crime against humanity (Article 5(d));
- Count 8: Inhumane Acts (forcible transfer), a crime against humanity (Article 5(i));
- Count 9: Acts of violence the primary purpose of which is to spread terror among the civilian population, a violation of the laws and customs of war (Article 3);
- Count 10: Unlawful attacks on civilians, a violation of the laws or customs of war (Article 3); and ²⁰⁵⁷¹ See paras. 5849–5850 (identifying crimes in Srebrenica for which convictions have been entered pursuant to Article 7(3)). All remaining convictions will be entered pursuant to Article 7(1).

- Count 11: Taking of hostages, a violation of the laws or customs of war (Article 3).

6023. In the present case, the only crimes which are impermissibly cumulative are extermination and murder as crimes against humanity, charged pursuant to Counts 4 and 5 of the Indictment, respectively. Extermination has been found to be the more specific crime because it contains a material element—“that the killings occur on a mass scale and the perpetrator intended by his acts this result”—that murder does not.²⁰⁵⁷² Accordingly, the Chamber will not enter a conviction for murder as a crime against humanity with respect to specific killing incidents which the Chamber found also amounted to extermination.²⁰⁵⁷³

6024. For these overlapping incidents, murder as a crime against humanity is considered to be subsumed under extermination and no conviction with regard to these incidents will be entered under Count 5.²⁰⁵⁷⁴ For all remaining established killing incidents, the Chamber will enter a conviction for murder as a crime against humanity.²⁰⁵⁷⁵ This does not impact the conviction for murder as a violation of the laws or customs of war under Article 3 of the Statute, which is not impermissibly cumulative with murder or extermination as crimes against humanity.²⁰⁵⁷⁶

V. SENTENCING

A. PURPOSES OF SENTENCING

6025. According to the Tribunal’s case-law, retribution and deterrence are the primary objectives of sentencing.²⁰⁵⁷⁷ The Appeals Chamber has held that “a sentence proportional to the gravity of ²⁰⁵⁷² Krajišnik Trial Judgement, para. 716 (not challenged on appeal) (relying on Ntakirutimana and Ntakirutimana Appeal Judgement, paras. 522, 542; Stakić Appeal Judgement, para. 260). See also Stakić Appeal Judgement, para. 366.

²⁰⁵⁷³ See paras. 2446–2464, 5607–5621. The Chamber notes that no allegation of extermination was made by the Prosecution with regard to the killing incidents alleged in the Sarajevo JCE. See Indictment, paras. 61–66.

²⁰⁵⁷⁴ Specifically, the Chamber found that extermination as a crime against humanity was committed with respect to the following incidents of the Overarching JCE: Bijeljina, Scheduled Incident A.1.1; Bratunac, Scheduled Incidents A.3.2, B.4.1; Brčko, Scheduled Incident B.5.1; Foča, Scheduled Incident B.8.1; Ključ, Scheduled Incidents A.7.2, A.7.3, B.10.1; Novi Grad, Scheduled Incident B.12.2 (Judge Morrison dissenting on the issue of the perpetrators of this Scheduled Incident, see Dissenting opinion of Judge Morrison, paras. 6074–6080); Prijedor, Scheduled Incidents A.10.1, A.10.6, A.10.7, A.10.9, B.15.1, B.15.2, B.15.3, B.15.4, B.15.6; Sokolac, Scheduled Incident A.13.1; Višegrad, Scheduled Incident A.14.2; Vlasenica, Scheduled Incidents A.15.2, B.18.2; Zvornik, Scheduled Incidents A.16.3, B.20.1, B.20.2, B.20.3. Additionally, the Chamber found that extermination as a crime against humanity was committed with respect to all Schedule E killing incidents within the Srebrenica JCE, except Scheduled Incident E.2.1, which was found not to have been established. See paras. 5221–5222, 5607; Indictment, Schedule E.

the criminal conduct will necessarily provide sufficient retribution and deterrence”.²⁰⁵⁷⁸ Other factors, such as rehabilitation, are relevant to be considered in sentencing but should not play a predominant role.²⁰⁵⁷⁹

6026. Retribution is not to be interpreted as desire for revenge or vengeance but as an expression of the outrage of the international community at the crimes committed; retribution, unlike vengeance, requires the imposition of a “just and appropriate punishment, and nothing more”.²⁰⁵⁸⁰ In relation to deterrence, the penalty imposed by a Chamber should be adequate to dissuade a convicted person from re-offending (individual deterrence) and should also ensure that other potential perpetrators are dissuaded from committing the same or similar crimes (general deterrence).²⁰⁵⁸¹

B. SENTENCING PRINCIPLES

1. Applicable law

6027. Sentencing is governed by Articles 23 and 24 of the Statute, as well as Rules 87(C) and 100 to 106 of the Rules. In determining an appropriate sentence, the Chamber is required to take into account “such factors as the gravity of the offence and the individual circumstances of the convicted person”.²⁰⁵⁸² The Chamber should also take into account, inter alia, any aggravating and mitigating circumstances,²⁰⁵⁸³ the general practice regarding prison sentences in the courts of the former Yugoslavia,²⁰⁵⁸⁴ and the extent to which any penalty imposed by a court of any State on the convicted person for the same act has already been served, as referred to in Article 10(3) of the Statute.²⁰⁵⁸⁵ The Chamber should also give credit to the convicted person for any time spent in detention pending surrender to the Tribunal or pending trial or appeal.²⁰⁵⁸⁶ While the Chamber should consider the factors listed in the Statute and Rules, it retains broad discretion to determine the appropriate sentence to fit the circumstances of the convicted person and the gravity of the crime.²⁰⁵⁸⁷

6028. A convicted person may be sentenced for a term up to and including life imprisonment.²⁰⁵⁸⁸ In addition to imprisonment, the Chamber may order restitution of any property and proceeds acquired by criminal conduct to their rightful owners.²⁰⁵⁸⁹

6029. Previous sentencing decisions in other cases before this Tribunal may provide guidance if they relate to the same offences committed in substantially similar circumstances;²⁰⁵⁹⁰ however, previous sentencing practice is only one factor among a number of others to be considered, and the Chamber will not be bound by it when determining the appropriate sentence in accordance with the gravity of the offence and the individual circumstances of the convicted person.²⁰⁵⁹¹

2. Gravity of the offence

6030. It is clearly established in the jurisprudence of the Tribunal that the primary consideration in determining an appropriate sentence is the gravity of the offence.²⁰⁵⁹²

6031. When assessing the gravity of the offence, the Chamber must take into consideration the particular circumstances surrounding the case and the form and degree of the Accused's participation in the crime,²⁰⁵⁹³ as well as the scale and brutality of the crimes,²⁰⁵⁹⁴ the vulnerability of the victims,²⁰⁵⁹⁵ the consequences and the effect or impact of the crime upon the victims and their relatives including the “long-term physical, psychological, and emotional suffering of the immediate victims”,²⁰⁵⁹⁶ and the convicted person’s position of authority.²⁰⁵⁹⁷

6032. The gravity of an offence for which an accused is held responsible pursuant to Article 7(3) is assessed by reference to two factors: (i) the gravity of the crimes committed by the accused’s subordinate, and (ii) the gravity of the accused’s own conduct in failing to prevent or punish the underlying offences committed by the subordinate.²⁰⁵⁹⁸

6033. Further, the Appeals Chamber has established that there is no hierarchy of crimes. Crimes against humanity are therefore not to be sentenced more harshly than violations of the laws or customs of war, in respect of the same acts or vice versa.²⁰⁵⁹⁹

3. Aggravating and mitigating circumstances

6034. Given that neither the Statute nor the Rules exhaustively define factors which may constitute aggravating or mitigating circumstances,²⁰⁶⁰⁰ the Chamber has the discretion to determine which factors to take into account and the weight to be attributed to them.²⁰⁶⁰¹

6035. Aggravating circumstances must be directly related to the commission of the offence charged,²⁰⁶⁰² and the burden of proof falls on the Prosecution to show the existence of such circumstances beyond reasonable doubt.²⁰⁶⁰³ The right of an accused to remain silent and not to testify,²⁰⁶⁰⁴ or the absence of a mitigating factor,²⁰⁶⁰⁵ does not constitute aggravating circumstances. Examples of aggravating circumstances identified in the jurisprudence of the Tribunal have included: (i) the accused’s abuse of his position of authority;²⁰⁶⁰⁶ (ii) the length of time during victims;²⁰⁶²¹ and (xii) age.²⁰⁶²² Determining whether a fact amounts to a mitigating circumstance will be reached “on a balance of probabilities”.²⁰⁶²³

6037. Factors taken into account in assessing the gravity of an offence must not be considered again as separate aggravating circumstances, and vice versa.²⁰⁶²⁴ Evaluating both gravity and aggravating circumstances under the same heading is permissible when the Chamber clearly shows that it did not engage in double-counting, and classified each circumstance as either part of the gravity assessment or as an aggravating factor.²⁰⁶²⁵ For example for the purposes of convictions under Article 7(3) of the Statute, the Chamber must not, double-count the convicted person’s “position of authority as both an element of the offence and an aggravating factor”.²⁰⁶²⁶

4. General practice regarding prison sentences in the courts of the former Yugoslavia

6038. Under Article 24(1) of the Statute, the Chamber shall have “recourse to the general practice regarding prison sentences in the courts of the former Yugoslavia.”²⁰⁶²⁷ In conducting this assessment, a Trial Chamber is entitled to consider, in addition to the SFRY law in force at the time of the commission of the relevant crimes, how that law evolved subsequently.²⁰⁶²⁸ While the Statute requires the Chamber to take into account the general practice regarding prison sentences in the courts of the former Yugoslavia, “such practices only provide guidance and are not binding”.²⁰⁶²⁹ However, where a Trial Chamber is to depart from the sentencing practices in the former Yugoslavia, it must give reasons for such departure and must go beyond merely reciting the relevant code provisions.²⁰⁶³⁰

6039. If a Trial Chamber imposes a sentence in excess of the practice of the courts in the former Yugoslavia, this does not violate the principle of nulla poena sine lege, because the Trial Chamber is bound to apply the law of the Tribunal and not of the former Yugoslavia,²⁰⁶³¹ and the accused must have been aware that the crimes for which he is indicted are the most serious violations of international humanitarian law, punishable by the most severe of penalties.²⁰⁶³²

6040. The sentencing law in BiH was regulated during the period of the Indictment by the Criminal Code of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (“SFRY Criminal Code”), adopted by the Federal Assembly on 28 September 1976, and in force since 1 July 1977, and by the Criminal Code of the Socialist Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina (“SRBH Criminal Code”) of 10 June 1977. The SFRY Criminal Code regulated general aspects of criminal law and some specific offences, including genocide and war crimes, while the SRBH Criminal Code regulated specific offences and matters not addressed by the SFRY Criminal Code.²⁰⁶³³

6041. Under the SFRY Criminal Code, the range of penalties included fines, confiscation of property, imprisonment, and capital punishment.²⁰⁶³⁴ In his final brief, the Accused refers to the fact that before the adoption of the Statute of the Tribunal on 25 May 1993, the maximum penalty that could be imposed pursuant to the SFRY Criminal Code was 20 years.²⁰⁶³⁵ Indeed, Article 38(1) and (2) of the SFRY Criminal Code provided for a maximum sentence of imprisonment of 15 years, except for offences punishable with the death penalty, in which case the maximum term of imprisonment was extended to 20 years.²⁰⁶³⁶ In 1998, BiH abolished the death penalty.²⁰⁶³⁷ The maximum sentence that may currently be imposed in BiH and in the RS is 45 years for “the gravest forms of serious criminal offences perpetrated with intent”.²⁰⁶³⁸

6042. Chapter 16 of the SFRY Criminal Code outlined criminal offences against humanity and international law. Specifically, Article 141 of the SFRY Criminal Code prohibited genocide, Article 142 prohibited war crimes against the civilian population, Article 143 prohibited war crimes against the wounded and sick, and Article 144 prohibited war crimes against prisoners of war.²⁰⁶³⁹

The offences under Articles 141, 142, 143 and 144 of the SFRY Criminal Code were punishable by imprisonment for not less than five years or by the death penalty.²⁰⁶⁴⁰ The punishments for specific offences, such as murder, rape, and grievous bodily harm were regulated by the SRBH Criminal Code.²⁰⁶⁴¹

5. Credit for time spent in prison

6043. Pursuant to Rule 101(C), an accused is entitled to credit for the time spent in detention pending surrender to the Tribunal or pending trial.

6. Determination of sentence

6044. Under Rule 87(C), the Chamber may impose either a sentence for each finding of guilt, to be served either consecutively or concurrently, or a single sentence reflecting the totality of the criminal conduct of the accused.²⁰⁶⁴² Due consideration must be given to each particular offence so that the gravity of an accused's conduct may be properly assessed and the single sentence, if imposed, must reflect the totality of the criminal conduct in question.²⁰⁶⁴³

C. DISCUSSION

1. Gravity of the offence

a. Submissions

6045. In the present case, in relation to the gravity of the offence, the Prosecution identifies the scale and nature of the crimes, their systematic pattern and continuous repetition, the number of victims, and the effect of the crimes upon them.²⁰⁶⁴⁴ It submits:

Under his command and oversight, [the Accused]'s subordinates and those cooperating with them expelled, killed, tortured and otherwise mistreated hundreds of thousands of Muslims and Croats; they bombarded Sarajevo with shells and bullets, killing, maiming, and terrorising its civilian population for over three and a half years. The scale and scope of these criminal campaigns is vast. [The Accused] played a key role throughout each of them. The persistence with which [the Accused] pursued his goal of a 'clean' Drina in the face of immense international pressure, culminating in arguably the biggest single

b. Findings

6046. The Accused has been found responsible for having committed, through his participation in four different joint criminal enterprises, a wide range of criminal acts throughout the entire period of the conflict in BiH. He has also been found responsible for having failed to punish certain crimes committed by his subordinates in the Srebrenica component. The Chamber finds that the crimes committed in this case, particularly with respect to the Municipalities, Sarajevo, and Srebrenica components, are among the most egregious of crimes in international criminal law and include extermination as a crime against humanity and genocide. The sheer scale of the crimes for which the Accused has been found responsible as well their systematic cruelty and their continued impact on the victims who have survived are evident. As described above, the Accused had a central role and made a significant contribution to the commission of these crimes. In determining the adequate sentence to be imposed on the Accused, the Chamber has given particular regard to these factors.

6047. More specifically, in the Municipalities component of the case, the Accused has been found responsible for having significantly contributed to a joint criminal enterprise the purpose of which was to permanently remove the Bosnian Muslims and Bosnian Croats from Bosnian Serb claimed territory. The Chamber found that the Accused, together with the members of the Overarching JCE, intended that this objective would be achieved through the commission of the crimes of deportation, inhumane acts (forcible transfer), and persecution (through the underlying acts of unlawful detention and the imposition and maintenance of restrictive and discriminatory measures) as crimes against humanity. This common plan resulted in the uprooting of the overwhelming majority of the non-Serb population in the Municipalities and fundamentally changed the ethnic distribution in these territories. The Bosnian Muslim and Bosnian Croat populations of BiH were also subjected to atrocious crimes which the Chamber found were foreseeable to the Accused in carrying out the common plan of the Overarching JCE. Thousands of civilians were the victims of persecution, murder, and extermination and continue to suffer from the impact of these crimes to this day. These crimes were committed during or following the take-over of the Municipalities by Serb Forces and in the dozens of detentions facilities in which non-Serbs were unlawfully detained. The Chamber further found that as RS President and Supreme Commander of the VRS, the Accused was at the apex of power and played an integral role in this enterprise by promoting an ideology of ethnic separation, using a rhetoric that amplified historical ethnic grievances and promoting propaganda to that effect. He also established the institutions used to carry out the objective of the common plan, and created a climate of impunity for criminal acts committed against non-Serbs.

6048. In the Sarajevo component, the Accused has been found responsible for having significantly contributed to a joint criminal enterprise of sniping and shelling, the purpose of which was to spread terror among the civilian population of Sarajevo. For three and a half years, the civilians of Sarajevo lived in the extreme fear of being targeted by sniper and mortar fire and the Chamber found that this in fact subjected them to terror. The Chamber also found that shelling occurred on an almost daily basis throughout the duration of the siege. No place in the city was safe for the civilian population, including their own homes. The civilians of Sarajevo were shot while fetching water, walking in the city, and when using public transport. Children were sniped while playing in front of their houses, walking with their parents or walking home from school, and even when cycling. Hospitals were not spared; civilians were the subject of sniper and mortar fire while receiving treatment and medical staff exposed themselves to the same danger in order to provide medical care to the citizens of Sarajevo. The Chamber found that terror was used intentionally as the SRK wanted to show to the civilian residents of Sarajevo that nobody was safe and that they were helpless. The shelling and sniping campaign ultimately resulted in a large number of civilian casualties. The Chamber found that the Accused's contribution to the Sarajevo JCE was so instrumental that without his support the SRK attacks on civilians could not have in fact occurred.

6049. In the Srebrenica component, the Chamber found the Accused responsible for having significantly contributed to a joint criminal enterprise to eliminate the Bosnian Muslims in Srebrenica by forcibly removing the women, children, and elderly men and killing the men and boys. In this component of the case, the Chamber found the Accused responsible for forcible transfer, persecution, murder, extermination, and genocide. The implementation of the common plan of the Srebrenica JCE resulted in the killing of at least 5,115 Bosnian Muslim men and the forcible transfer of 30,000 Bosnian Muslim women, children, and elderly men, from Srebrenica to Bosnian Muslim-held territory. The Accused was also found responsible as a superior for having failed to punish the killings which occurred prior to the evening of 13 July 1995. In earlier sections of this Judgement, the Chamber described in harrowing detail the systematic brutality with which these men and boys were killed as well as the mental and physical suffering they endured in the period leading up to their execution. As for the women, children, and elderly men who were the subject of the forcible transfer operation, in addition to them being uprooted, the Chamber stressed the serious mental trauma caused by their sudden separation at Potočari from their male relatives who were taken away to await an unknown fate. In relation to the gravity of the Accused's conduct in relation to the killings after 13 July, the Chamber found that he was the sole person in the RS with the power to prevent the Bosnian Serb Forces from moving the Bosnian Muslim males to Zvornik to be killed. Instead, he ordered their transfer to Zvornik, where they were ultimately killed. In doing so, the Accused agreed to and enabled the implementation of a systematic, organised, and large scale murder operation.

6050. In the Hostages component, the Chamber found the Accused responsible for having significantly contributed to the common purpose to take UN personnel hostage. The Chamber recalls that the mandate of the UN peace-keepers and monitors who were subjected to the crime of hostage-taking for which the Accused was found responsible was to establish and preserve peace between the parties to the conflict and provide assistance to the civilian population. As such, and in order to fulfil their mandate, the UNPROFOR and UNMOs should have been afforded the highest protection. Instead, they were used as a bargaining tool to obtain the cessation of NATO air-strikes, and the Accused was the driving force behind this enterprise.

2. Aggravating circumstances

6051. In addition to the factors identified as relevant to assessing the gravity of the offences for which the Accused is found responsible, the Prosecution submits that abuse of authority may be considered as an aggravating circumstance.²⁰⁶⁴⁶ As an example of such alleged sustained and massive abuse, the Prosecution refers to the fact that while the Accused was more able than any other individual in the RS to stop the course of his subordinates' violent actions, he did not stop them but instead provided strategic supervision and issued specific directives in furtherance of these actions, rewarded perpetrators, lied to internationals, and covered up crimes.²⁰⁶⁴⁷

6052. In its findings on the Accused's responsibility in relation to each of the components of the case, the Chamber gave particular regard to the Accused's unique position at the apex of power in the RS and his de jure authority over the VRS, MUP and other political organs, which he exercised in fact. The essential role the Accused played in the commission of the crimes in each of the components was a reflection of his position and the manner in which he used that position to further his objectives. The Chamber recalls that it also found the Accused responsible as a superior for having failed to punish the killings which took place before the evening of 13 July 1995 in Srebrenica. These factors have been abundantly discussed in the Chamber's findings on the

²⁰⁶⁴⁷ Prosecution Final Brief, para. 1120.

Accused's responsibility and taken into consideration in relation to the gravity of the crimes for which he has been found responsible. The Chamber shall therefore not assess them further as a separate aggravating circumstance.

3. Mitigating circumstances

a. Submissions

6053. The Accused refers to the following mitigating circumstances: (i) the agreement which the Accused submits he entered into with Richard Holbrooke in July 1996 according to which he would not be prosecuted if he resigned from public office;²⁰⁶⁴⁸ (ii) the unprecedented number of disclosure violations by the Prosecution;²⁰⁶⁴⁹ (iii) his conduct during the war, including through the provision of assistance to victims or detainees and his prevention of the commission of crimes;²⁰⁶⁵⁰ (iv) his lack of training and preparation for war and the difficulties he faced in exercising command;²⁰⁶⁵¹ (v) his personal and family circumstances, including his marital status; character, lack of prior criminal conviction, and age;²⁰⁶⁵² (vi) his conduct at the Tribunal, including his good behaviour during the proceedings and at the UNDU, his expression of regret or sympathy to the victims of the crimes charged in the Indictment;²⁰⁶⁵³ and (vii) the length of his detention during the proceedings.²⁰⁶⁵⁴

b. Findings

i. The Holbrooke Agreement

6054. The Chamber first turns to the evidence presented by the Accused with regard to an agreement he claims to have entered into with Richard Holbrooke in July 1996 whereby he resigned from public and party office and withdrew from public life with the understanding that he would not be prosecuted at the Tribunal ("Holbrooke Agreement").

²⁰⁶⁴⁸ Defence Final Brief, paras. 3379–3406 (contending that this agreement pertains to both his character and acts and conduct subsequent to the conflict as well as to a remedy for a violation of his rights).

²⁰⁶⁵⁰ Defence Final Brief, paras. 3412–3416.

²⁰⁶⁵¹ Defence Final Brief, para. 3417.

²⁰⁶⁵² Defence Final Brief, paras. 3419–3423.

²⁰⁶⁵³ Defence Final Brief, paras. 3424–3425, 3427–3428.

²⁰⁶⁵⁴ Defence Final Brief, para. 3426.

6055. Witnesses testified that they were present at a meeting between the Accused and Holbrooke when such an agreement was entered into.²⁰⁶⁵⁵ The Chamber admitted additional evidence tendered by the Accused in support of the existence of this agreement.²⁰⁶⁵⁶

6056. The Chamber admitted a one-page statement signed by the Accused, Krajišnik, Plavšić, and Aleksa Buha, reaffirming their commitment to fulfill the Dayton Agreement; in the statement, reference is made to the fact that “on July 19, 1996, Dr. Radovan Karadžić has relinquished the office of President of the [RS] and has relinquished all powers associated therewith”. The statement further provides that the Accused “states that he shall withdraw immediately and permanently from all political activities. He will not appear in public, or on radio or television or other media or means of communication, or participate in any way in the elections.” Finally, as of 19 July 1996, the Accused “relinquishes the office of President of the SDS and all the functions, powers and responsibilities of the President of the SDS shall be frozen until the SDS chooses a new President”.²⁰⁶⁵⁷ Defence witnesses testified that the part of the agreement which contained the undertaking by Holbrooke that the Accused would not be prosecuted by the Tribunal was made orally and not put in writing.²⁰⁶⁵⁸

6057. For the purpose of sentencing, the Chamber is only concerned with the established fact that the Accused indeed resigned from all public and party offices as of 19 July 1996 and that he refrained from making public appearances from then on. The reason, or reasons, behind his decision to step down and withdraw from public life are not relevant. What is relevant is the fact that his decision had a positive influence on the establishment of peace and stability in BiH and the region in the wake of the Dayton Agreement. The Chamber therefore considers the Accused’s decision to resign from public and party offices in July 1996 to be a mitigating factor in determining the sentence to be imposed.

ii. The Accused's conduct during the proceedings and at the UNDU

6058. The Chamber notes the Accused's good conduct both during the proceedings before the Chamber and during the course of his detention at the UNDU.²⁰⁶⁵⁹ As such, the Chamber has considered this factor in its determination of the appropriate sentence.

6059. With regard to the Accused's submission that his expression of regret or sympathy to the victims of the crimes charged in the Indictment should have a mitigating effect on the sentence to be imposed, the Chamber notes that in a few instances, the Accused expressed his regret to a witness on the stand for the crimes the witness had suffered.²⁰⁶⁶⁰ In his Final Brief, the Accused stated the following:

President Karadžić expresses his deep regret and sympathy to the victims of the crimes charged in his indictment and to their families. Regardless of the issue of his individual criminal responsibility for those crimes, he understands that as President of Republika Srpska, he bears moral responsibility for any crimes committed by citizens and forces of Republika Srpska. He knows that any expression of regret or sympathy is inadequate to compensate for the suffering that took place during the war. Nevertheless, he offers his heartfelt expression of regret and sympathy to the victims and their families.²⁰⁶⁶¹ 6060. The Chamber recalls that although sympathy for the victims of the crimes does not amount to remorse as such, it may nonetheless be considered a mitigating factor.²⁰⁶⁶² The Chamber has given due consideration to these expressions of regret in determining the appropriate sentence to be imposed.

iii. The Accused's personal circumstances

6061. The Accused was born on 19 June 1945 and is therefore 70 years old at the time of issuance of this Judgement. The Chamber has given due regard to the Accused's age in determining the appropriate sentence.

6062. The Chamber has also had regard to the Accused's lack of prior criminal conviction.

iv. Other mitigating circumstances identified by the Accused

6063. The Chamber does not consider the number of disclosure violations by the Prosecution to be a mitigating circumstance. The Prosecution's disclosure practice does not have any bearing on the appropriate sentence to be imposed to the Accused in light of the gravity of the crimes and his involvement in their commission. Furthermore, the Chamber took all measures to protect the Accused's fair trial rights and suspended proceedings on multiple occasions, to allow him to review and incorporate large batches of newly disclosed material into his preparations. While the Prosecution's disclosure violations continued, to a great extent, the Chamber found that while the violations reflected badly on the Prosecution, the Accused did not suffer any prejudice.

²⁰⁶⁵⁹ D4422 (UNDU behaviour report of Radovan Karadžić, 21 January 2014).

²⁰⁶⁶⁰ Hearing, T. 8757 (1 November 2010); Hearing, T. 12097 (17 February 2011).

²⁰⁶⁶² See Strugar Appeal Judgement, para. 366.

6064. In light of all of the Chamber's findings as to the gravity of the crimes for which the Accused has been found responsible and the Accused's central involvement in these crimes, the Chamber does not consider his conduct during the war to be mitigating in any way. Similarly, in light of the Chamber's findings as to the Accused's authority over the Bosnian Serb Forces and Bosnian Serb Political and Governmental Organs, the Chamber does not consider that the Accused's alleged lack of training and preparation for war is mitigating.

6065. The Chamber recalls that Rule 101(C) of the Rules entitles an accused to credit for the time spent in detention pending surrender to the Tribunal or pending trial. As such, the length of the Accused's detention is not a mitigating factor; rather, time already spent in detention will be duly deducted from the sentence to be imposed by the Chamber.

4. Sentences in related cases at the Tribunal

6066. The Accused argues that the Chamber should take into consideration the imposition of sentences in related cases to ensure consistency in its judgements and refers specifically to the sentence of 11 years imposed on Plavšić and the sentence of 20 years imposed on Krajišnik.²⁰⁶⁶³

6067. With regard to Plavšić, the Chamber notes that her sentence was imposed following her guilty plea and the dismissal of the remaining counts by the Prosecution. As such, the sentence imposed on Plavšić is of no guidance to the Chamber. The Chamber notes, in relation to Krajišnik, that the case against him was similar to that against the Accused in so far as it pertained to the Municipalities component of this case. It did not involve any of the charges related to the Srebrenica, Sarajevo, and Hostages components of this case. The guidance provided by the sentence imposed on Krajišnik in determining the sentence against the Accused is therefore limited to the Municipalities component of the case.

²⁰⁶⁶³ Defence Final Brief, para. 3429.

5. General practice regarding prison sentences in the courts of the former Yugoslavia

6068. In determining the appropriate sentence for the Accused, and pursuant to Article 24(1) of the Statute, the Chamber has taken into account the general practice regarding prison sentences in the courts of BiH at the time of the commission of the crimes in relation to which the Accused was found responsible, and the manner in which it has developed.

6. Credit for time spent in prison

6069. The Chamber notes that the Accused was arrested on 21 July 2008 and taken into the custody of the Tribunal on 30 July 2008. Accordingly, he has been in custody for 2,804 days. Pursuant to Rule to Rule 101(C), he is entitled to credit for that period.

D. CONCLUSION

6070. Therefore, for all of the foregoing reasons, in particular given the scope and scale of the serious crimes for which the Accused was found responsible and his central involvement in the commission of these crimes, the Chamber decides that the imposition of a single sentence of 40 years is warranted.

VI. DISPOSITION

6071. For all of the foregoing reasons, pursuant to Articles 23, 24, and 27 of the Tribunal's Statute and Rules 98 ter, 101, 102, and 103 of the Tribunal's Rules of Procedure and Evidence, the Chamber finds the Accused, Radovan Karadžić:

- NOT GUILTY of COUNT 1: genocide.
- GUILTY of the following counts:

COUNT 2: genocide;

COUNT 3: persecution, a crime against humanity;

COUNT 4: extermination, a crime against humanity;

COUNT 5: murder, a crime against humanity;

COUNT 6: murder, a violation of the laws or customs of war;

COUNT 7: deportation, a crime against humanity;

COUNT 8: inhumane acts—forcible transfer, a crime against humanity;

COUNT 9: terror, a violation of the laws or customs of war;

COUNT 10: unlawful attacks on civilians, a violation of the laws or customs of war;
and

COUNT 11: hostage-taking, a violation of the laws or customs of war.

6072. The Chamber hereby sentences the Accused, Radovan Karadžić, to a single sentence of 40 years of imprisonment. The Accused has been in custody since 21 July 2008; and, pursuant to Rule 101(C) of the Rules, he is entitled to credit for time spent in detention thus far.

6073. Pursuant to Rule 103(C) of the Rules, the Accused shall remain in the custody of the Tribunal pending the finalisation of arrangements for his transfer to the state where he shall serve his sentence.

VII. DISSENTING OPINIONS

A. DISSENTING OPINION OF JUDGE MORRISON

6074. In relation to Schedule Incident B.12.2 in Novi Grad municipality, the Majority found that it was satisfied beyond reasonable doubt that on 14 June 1992, Bosnian Serb Forces, including Žuti, other guards, and paramilitaries, attacked a bus filled with Bosnian Muslim male detainees with grenades and automatic weapons, and killed 47 Bosnian Muslim men.²⁰⁶⁶⁴ I agree with the Majority that there was indeed an attack on the bus on 14 June 1992 during which 47 Bosnian Muslim men were killed. However, I have not been able to reach a determinative conclusion as to the identity of the perpetrators. Therefore, I respectfully disagree with the Majority's finding on this Schedule Incident for the following reasons.

6075. First, there is conflicting evidence on the issue of the identity of the alleged perpetrators of the killings. While there is evidence indicating that Serb Forces conducted the attack, the evidence is not consistent in identifying which unit among these forces was responsible. For example, KDZ041 testified that he heard that the main organisers of the attack on the bus were Boro Radić,²⁰⁶⁶⁵ Dragan Ikanović, and Ratko Adžić.²⁰⁶⁶⁶ Further, Eset Muračević, a Bosnian Muslim who was imprisoned in Vogošća municipality in the second half of 1992, stated that he had heard from a fellow detainee that a Serb prison guard by the name Predrag Žarković, alias Božur, was “[a]mong the group of Chetniks” who carried out the attack on the bus.²⁰⁶⁶⁷ For his part, KDZ601, [REDACTED], testified [REDACTED], he heard [REDACTED] that Branislav Gavrilović from Vučija Luka and his unit had attacked the bus with Zoljas.²⁰⁶⁶⁸

6076. There is also evidence suggesting that Muslim forces carried out the attack on the bus by mistake. In a conversation intercepted on 15 June 1992—one day after the attack on the bus—

²⁰⁶⁶⁵ According to KDZ020, Boro Radić was a common criminal from Vogošća who had the support of the SDS and was eventually integrated into the VRS and given the rank of colonel. P2344 (Witness statement of KDZ020 dated 17 February 2011), para. 72 (under seal); KDZ020, T. 12524 (28 February 2011).

There is evidence that Branislav Gavrilović was known and referred to by the municipal authorities of Ilidža as the commander of all SAO Romanija volunteer units. P2302 (Approval of the War Board of Commissioners of Ilidža Municipality, 9 July 1992); Nedeljko Prstojević, T. 12988 (8 March 2011). Witness Velimir Dunjić stated that the unit of Branislav Gavrilović was in the zone of responsibility of the Igman Brigade and that after a while, it put itself under the Igman Brigade command. D2451 (Witness statement of Velimir Dunjić dated 12 November 2012), para. 13.

Mirko Krajišnik informed his brother, Momčilo Krajišnik, that Muslims had intercepted the bus, and mistaking its occupants for Serbs, opened fire on it, killing all the prisoners and heavily wounding two Serb guards.²⁰⁶⁶⁹ The Majority agrees with this.²⁰⁶⁷⁰ I also take note that six days prior to the attack on the bus, Momčilo Krajišnik repeatedly instructed two persons in Rajlovac, a certain Mijatović and Ljubiša Vladušić, the future president of the RS Refugee and Humanitarian Aid Committee,²⁰⁶⁷¹ not to do anything to the “captured men”.²⁰⁶⁷² Again, the Majority agrees with this.²⁰⁶⁷³

6077. I have found no direct evidence that Žuti and the other guards attacked the bus as alleged by the Prosecution. KDZ041 for instance testified that he was unable to actually see what was taking place outside of the bus or who was attacking it.²⁰⁶⁷⁴ The Majority found that “notwithstanding his inability to see during and immediately after the attack, KDZ041 heard what was happening around him”.²⁰⁶⁷⁵ In the circumstances, I cannot agree with this assessment and find it difficult to accept KDZ041’s evidence that he heard the escort cars drive off after the attack on the bus had ended. In this regard, I note that the attack on the bus lasted 15 minutes, involved the use of machineguns, hand grenades, and Zoljas, and resulted in KDZ041 himself being wounded in the arm. In these extremely traumatic circumstances, it would have been difficult for KDZ041 to accurately interpret what was happening outside of the bus.

6078. I also find it peculiar that Žuti and the other guards decided to kill the detainees by attacking the bus on or near the confrontation line, thereby risking a number of survivors²⁰⁶⁷⁶ and also injuring themselves.²⁰⁶⁷⁷ In other words, if their intention was to kill the detainees as alleged by the Prosecution, then Žuti and the guards could have easily done so by executing them in a secluded area, where they could also make sure that they themselves were not injured and that there were no

²⁰⁶⁶⁹ D1088 (Intercept of conversation between Momčilo Krajišnik and Mirko Krajišnik, 15 June 1992), pp. 1, 5–6. I note that in an intercepted conversation on 20 June 1992, Mirko Krajišnik informed two Bosnian Muslims, Ćamil and Šemso, that 284 prisoners from the cisterns near the Rajlovac Barracks had been exchanged whereas 50 additional prisoners had been sent home. During the same conversation, Mirko Krajišnik referred to the group of 50 prisoners and told Šemso “[y]ou heard that there were some casualties among them” to which Šemso replied “Yes, I did.” D1089 (Intercept of conversation between Ćamil and Mirko Krajišnik, 20 June 1992), pp. 1–2.

²⁰⁶⁷¹ Soniboj Škiljević, T. 36957 (10 April 2013);

²⁰⁶⁷² P2334 (Intercept of conversation between Momčilo Krajišnik, Mijatović and Ljubiša Vladušić, 8 June 1992), pp. 1–4.

²⁰⁶⁷³ See para. 2221.

²⁰⁶⁷⁴ See P2310 (Witness statement of KDZ041 dated 14 February 2011), para. 53 (under seal); KDZ041, T. 12074, 12118 (17 February 2011).

²⁰⁶⁷⁵ See para. 2228.

²⁰⁶⁷⁶ I note the high number of survivors in this incident; 10 men survived the original attack on the bus, although two of them succumbed to their injuries later.

²⁰⁶⁷⁷ I note that according to the evidence, two Serb guards were wounded during the attack on the bus.

survivors. In addition, it seems unlikely that Serb Forces would deliberately and unnecessarily destroy one of their own vehicles. Many instances of executions have involved the victims being deliberately taken from vehicles and executed nearby. There appears to be no obvious reason why that procedure could not have been followed in this case.

6079. Further, immediately following the incident, the Bosnian Muslim TO appeared to be in control of the territory on which the bus was attacked.²⁰⁶⁷⁸ The Bosnian Muslim TO members not only removed all the bodies from the scene—which would have taken some time—but also filmed the bus. Finally, prior to this incident, Momčilo Krajišnik gave instructions to the Serbs in Rajlovac that nothing should happen to the Bosnian Muslim men detained there. Thus, bearing all those factors in mind, I consider it possible, as recounted by Mirko Krajišnik in the telephone conversation with his brother,²⁰⁶⁷⁹ that the bus strayed into the Bosnian Muslim side of the confrontation line and was mistakenly attacked by the Bosnian Muslim TO. While Mirko Krajišnik may have lied to his brother about the fate of the men on the bus because of his brother's earlier instructions not to harm them, I am unable—in light of the totality of the evidence before the Chamber—to affirmatively conclude that this was the case.

6080. I am therefore unable to conclude, beyond reasonable doubt, that Serb Forces attacked the bus on 14 June 1992 in the incident that resulted in the death of 47 Bosnian Muslim men, and I am therefore of the view that the Accused must be acquitted in this regard.

B. DISSENTING OPINION OF JUDGE BAIRD

6081. In this matter the majority was satisfied beyond reasonable doubt that the shell that struck the Markale market on 5 February 1994 was fired from SRK held territory by SRK soldiers. I respectfully disagree with this finding.

6082. In his Final brief at paragraph 2056, the Accused submitted that the UN investigators had stated that in extracting the tail fin assembly from the crater, the FreBat 4 team (unavoidably) disturbed the integrity of the crater for any purpose which followed. At paragraph 2069, the Accused stated that the UN Investigative Team collectively and officially concluded that by the time the team had conducted its analyses, six days had elapsed since the explosion: it was reasonable to suspect that the crater had been thoroughly excavated by the local authorities during that period, hence the angles measured on 11 February were not beyond suspicion. They concluded that the results measured on 11 February were not sufficiently accurate to be used as a basis for a finding. At paragraph 2073 the Accused stated that the UN Investigative Team concluded that there was insufficient physical evidence to prove that one party or another had fired the mortar bomb. And at paragraph 2075, the Accused demonstrated that the findings of the UN Investigative Team were endorsed by Colonel Gauthier as he testified as a Defence witness in 2012. As far as I am aware the accuracy of these submissions was never challenged, neither was it made the subject of negative comment by the Chamber. Indeed, in some instances, the pertinent evidence was actually received by the Chamber.

6083. As I see it, this is powerful language employed by the UN Investigative Team. They are in effect saying that there is reasonable doubt that the shell was fired by the Bosnian Serb Forces, and one must not lose sight of the fact that this is a report of Prosecution witnesses. The Prosecution witness Zečević however, was of opinion that the shell could only have been fired from the Bosnian Serb positions.

6084. What I was presented with therefore, was clear and indisputable conflict in the evidence of the Prosecution witnesses. And this conflict went to the root of the Prosecution case.

6085. In this situation I am of the view that the majority should have been driven to resolve this conflict in favour of the Accused.

6086. At paragraph 4247, the majority stated that while the Chamber heard evidence to the effect that measurements and estimates of the angle of descent were unreliable in this incident due to the crater having been disturbed, it was also struck by the fact that all but one of the estimated angle ranges were relatively close to each other and in fact overlapped.

6087. Defence witnesses apart, it is the witnesses for the Prosecution whose evidence the majority considered, and which evidence demonstrated that the measurements and estimates of the angle of descent were unreliable due to the disturbance of the crater. There is no clear indication from the majority whether they were accepting the evidence that the measurements and estimates of the angle of descent were unreliable, or whether they were rejecting the evidence on this question. To my mind there was consensus among the UN Investigators who attended the scene, that once the Frebat 4 battalion had removed the tail fin without taking measurements it was not possible to calculate the angle of descent.

6088. In the face of this evidence – evidence which I might add was pointedly favourable to the Accused – I am hard pressed to see why the majority should go on to be ‘struck’ by the relative closeness of the estimated angle ranges, bar one, and by their overlap.

6089. In a criminal matter where the burden is on the Prosecution to prove the guilt of the Accused beyond the reasonable doubt, this evidence should have been enough to cause reasonable doubt to intrude on the minds of the majority.

6090. Of some significance is the fact that the majority stated at paragraph 4248, that they could not be sure that the speed of the shell as determined by Zečević was ‘absolutely accurate’, particularly in light of Allsop’s evidence. Irrespective of the language used, the majority is rejecting the evidence of Zečević in this regard, in favour of that of Allsop.

6091. It should be noted that the evidence of Zečević was that any inaccuracy in the measurement of the depth of the crater would have affected the calculations of the impact velocity of the shell and that it was more likely that the depth of the crater was not measured properly in this case, given the disturbance to the crater during the investigations that took place on 5 and 6 February 1994.

6092. I come now to the question of the ‘common feature’ at paragraph 4248. The majority noticed a ‘common feature’ in the evidence of Zečević, Higgs, Allsop and Subotić, that is to say, that a mortar bomb fired at one of the higher charges would typically result in the stabiliser penetrating the ground and embedding therein. The majority noted that Higgs referred to ‘two highest charges in this respect’, Zečević to charges four, five and six, and Subotić to charge three or higher. The majority considered that in the case at hand, the stabiliser was found embedded in the ground with its top at a depth of around nine centimetres from the surface. In the final analysis, they concluded that the shell was fired on a charge higher than one or two and therefore from SRK positions.

6093. Without going into the validity or otherwise of their reasoning, my concern is that the Accused was never given an opportunity to address this question as a discrete issue. It was never presented to the Accused for him to comment one way or another thereon. As a result the question was never fully ventilated before the Chamber as a contentious issue. The majority however made a seminal conclusion based on this question, and this in turn, played a crucial role in their decision that the shell had been fired by the Bosnian Serb side. This was unfortunate. It must be borne in mind that we are not within the realm of exact science and it would have been only fair to the Accused for him to be put on notice so that some input from him could have been forthcoming. A decision given under these circumstances therefore, would be flawed as offending against a basic principle of natural justice.

6094. I will add that even if the mortar had been fired on the higher charges, the origin of fire could only have been determined if the proper angle of descent had been calculated and I ingeminate the evidence above quoted that all the Investigators who attended the scene were unanimous that it was not possible to properly calculate the angle of descent once the integrity of the crater had been disturbed.

6095. The majority noted at paragraph 4249, that while Gauthier suggested that the ABiH could have used mobile mortars, they were not convinced that it would have been possible for the ABiH to fire at the market area from a mobile mortar without being seen, given the densely populated area in the direction of fire and given the proximity of the residential area of Sedrenik to the ABiH positions in Grdonj. In this particular case, this was flagrant speculation, made in an evidential void, and could form no proper basis for the rejection of evidence that could have introduced reasonable doubt in the minds of the majority. The majority also considered that there was an absence of any evidence as to the sighting of mobile mortars on that date, or shell fire noise coming from within the city. I do not think that this is the proper case in which the absence of the evidence can contribute to the presence of proof beyond reasonable doubt.

1. KW586

6096. In paragraph 4252, the majority rejected the evidence of the witness that the Bosnian Muslim side had deliberately targeted Markale so as to achieve international condemnation of the Bosnian Serb and thus further its own political agenda, on the ground that the witness was lacking in credibility in relation to this evidence for a number of reasons. I will deal with these reasons seriatim.

6097. As a preface however, I must state that I do not think that the majority would dispute the fact that the witness answered the questions put to him under cross examination – which came from all directions – with a spontaneity and readiness that was quite impressive. Indeed, on occasions he actually corrected the Prosecution.

6098. The first reason identified in paragraph 4252 by the majority is that: “The majority found it unlikely that someone in KW586’s position would have been privy to such high level meetings where such sensitive matters were discussed”. This is speculation run riot. There is not an atom of evidence to support this conclusion. And this is not a matter of which the majority could properly have taken judicial notice. What is more, the witness gave an explanation that the Prosecution failed to contradict or neutralize. I see no good reason therefore, for the witness to be regarded as lacking in credibility.

6099. The second reason in paragraph 4252 is that: “KW586 exhibited a high degree of animosity towards the current political leadership in BiH, which obviously played a part in his coming forward with his evidence”. The witness did in fact, employ intemperate language in referring to the current political leadership in BiH. He explained that he came forward because after the war, he saw what he considered to be injustice – ‘if one who is liable is held to account, then another one should be held to account as well’.²⁰⁶⁸⁰ Whether there was merit in his reasoning or not, whether this was misguided reasoning or not, this was the reason he decided to come forward. And I cannot conceive how he could be regarded as lacking in credibility for his reasoning.

6100. The third reason listed in paragraph 4252 is: “There were also inconsistencies between his testimony in court and his witness statement, such as his evidence about the level of involvement of members of the Pakistani UNPROFOR contingent in the Markale incident and the involvement of Halilović, who the witness acknowledged had been removed from his position by Izetbegović at that time”.

6101. An examination of the evidence of the witness in this respect might be helpful.:

Q. Well, you said in your statement why they needed that UNPROFOR team. You said that they had some kind of agreements with them that they wouldn’t register the firing of missiles from our positions, so UNPROFOR was part of the conspiracy you’re alleging in your own words?

²⁰⁶⁸⁰ KW-586, T. 47206 (17 February 2014).

A. I never said that, and if it's written somewhere then it needs to be corrected. I never said that the UNPROFOR was part of the conspiracy; UNPROFOR wasn't. It's just that one crew, I don't know whether they were a bit careless or less attentive, but nobody ever said that UNPROFOR was part of the conspiracy.²⁰⁶⁸¹

6102. I can see no inconsistency in his reply. The Prosecutor began her question by stating that the witness had said in his statement why they needed the UNPROFOR 'team', but in ending the question she dropped the word 'team' and put to the witness: "[...] so UNPROFOR was part of the conspiracy you're alleging in your own words?" The witness then protested that he never said that UNPROFOR was part of the conspiracy; UNPROFOR was not, it was just that one 'crew'. He commented that the way the Prosecutor had put it, it sounded like the whole UNPROFOR conspired against the Bosnian Serbs. 'It was just one crew, two or three men',²⁰⁶⁸².

6103. I failed to see any inconsistency in this evidence. In paragraph 4252, the majority also considered the reference of the witness to Halilović as a reason for holding that the witness was inconsistent with his witness statement. The Prosecutor put to the witness that his evidence of conspiracy was fictional because at the time he said the discussions were going on, Halilovic had been ostracised and dismissed from the army. The witness admitted that Halilović had been ostracised and advanced reasons for his ostracism. He then went on to explain that although Itzetbegović had removed him 'under pressure'; he had not dismissed him from the army. And he would attend meetings whenever he was in Sarajevo. The Prosecutor did not specifically challenge this evidence and introduced no evidence to contradict the witness.²⁰⁶⁸³

6104. It cannot be fair to the witness therefore to say that he was inconsistent with his witness statement. I must also emphasize that in the course of cross examination, the Prosecutor sought to contradict the witness by referring to comments he made during an interview with the Prosecution a few days earlier.²⁰⁶⁸⁴ The Prosecutor however, failed to put in evidence any written material that tended to contradict what the witness had said in the interview or to call viva voce evidence to that effect. The Prosecutor therefore, was bound by the answers of the witness and the witness could not be considered to have been contradicted.

6105. The fourth reason identified by the majority in paragraph 4252 is: "Essentially, KW586's evidence implies a conspiracy of a large scale. However, in the majority's view, such conspiracy is not supported by any other evidence on the record". In this particular situation, I harbour the view that the fact that the evidence of conspiracy is not supported by any other evidence could not be a valid ground for the majority to hold that the witness lacked credibility. The evidence of conspiracy was presented by the Accused as a crucial and integral part of his case and the Defence is under no obligation to call corroborative evidence to support the evidence of any Defence witness. The fact therefore, that there is no other evidence supporting the evidence of conspiracy cannot be reason for the witness to be considered as lacking in credibility.

²⁰⁶⁸¹ KW586 T.47222 (17 February 2014).

²⁰⁶⁸² KW586 T.47224 (17 February 2014).

²⁰⁶⁸³ KW586, T. 47225–47226 (17 February 2014).

6106. The fifth reason identified by the majority is: “Finally, if true, it would have meant that the ABiH was able to make a successful hit on Markale market in only its second attempt. Recalling the evidence the Accused led on the low likelihood of such an intentional hit, the Chamber finds this to be impossible”. ‘Likelihood’ is synonymous with ‘probability’. And this is not, by any means, a proper instance in which ‘improbability’ could have been equated with ‘impossibility’. I can see no good reason therefore for deeming the witness to be lacking in credibility in this respect.

6107. In the final analysis I espouse the view that the reasoning the majority advanced for holding the witness to be lacking in credibility was itself deficient in substantiality and was unable to stand up to scrutiny.

6108. The majority also identified ‘other evidence’ which they considered indicated that the shell was fired from the SRK side. At paragraph 4249 they referred to the evidence that the SRK’s 7th battalion of the 1st Romanija Infantry Brigade had 120 mm mortars in the area of Mrkovići, which was north-northeast of Markale, whereas the evidence before the Chamber was consistent that the ABiH had no mortars in the area of Grdonj. They added that Gengo testified that the ABiH would open fire mostly from the area of Jajce Barracks and Koševo, rather than Grdonj. I experienced profound difficulty in seeing how this evidence could have convinced the majority to hold that beyond reasonable doubt the shell was fired from the Bosnian Serb side.

6109. Also at paragraph 4249, the majority seemed to have accepted the evidence of Gauthier that he could not recall any ABiH mortar positions in the established directions of fire. This could not possibly have amounted to proof beyond reasonable doubt. It is noteworthy that Gauthier, having given the above evidence, went on to state that the ABiH could have used mobile mortars. The majority however, rejected this evidence on what I considered to be speculative grounds (ante).

6110. At paragraph 4250, the majority referred to the evidence that the SRK would open fire on the area of Stari Grad from the SRK positions above Sedrenik. They also considered the testimony of Hamill regarding Cvetković’s admission that the SRK fired a large number of mortar rounds into ²⁰⁶⁸⁴ KW586, T. 47212–47213 (17 February 2014).

Stari Grad prior to the incident in Markale, and the UNMO's report on the morning of 5 February, prior to the Markale incident, that the city centre had been shelled on the night of 4 or 5 February.

6111. I experienced even greater difficulty in comprehending how the majority could have considered that this evidence established beyond reasonable doubt that the shell was fired from the Bosnian Serb side.

6112. I refer to an area of the evidence of KW570 which I consider apropos to the issue under consideration. The witness testified that at the meeting on 8 February between General Rose and the leadership of the Bosnian Muslim Military in Sarajevo, Rose stated that evidence was emerging that the market place shelling might have been carried out by their side. The witness testified that there was a complete silence after Rose's statement; thereafter, the Bosnian Military leadership claimed that they had taped a conversation involving the Bosnian Serbs to the effect that they had confessed to the 'atrocities'.²⁰⁶⁸⁵ The witness further stated that the Bosnian government never produced any such tape or evidence to demonstrate that the Bosnian Serbs had fired the mortar.²⁰⁶⁸⁶ The production of this alleged tape would have put a firm and definitive end to this matter and would have been incontrovertible attestation to the guilt of the Bosnian Serb side. The tape however, was never produced and nothing further was said about it. This left one with the abiding impression that their story was an egregious lie. This conduct on the part of the Bosnian Military Leadership led inexorably to the conclusion that, at the least, there was reasonable doubt that the shell had been fired by the Bosnian Serb side.

6113. To all appearances, the majority made no specific comment on this area of the evidence of this witness. What they did say at paragraph 4252 was that while they accept the 'general evidence' given by KDZ185, KW570 and Milovanović that the Bosnian Muslim side tried to gain sympathy from the international community and would provoke attacks by the SRK with that goal in mind, it was of 'general nature' and did not, as such, cast doubt on the majority's finding that the shell came from SRK positions.

6114. In uno flatu therefore, the majority seemed to be saying that they accepted the evidence of KW570 but dismissed it as being 'of general nature'. And because it was of 'general nature' (as such) it did not cast doubt on their finding that the shell came from the SRK positions.

²⁰⁶⁸⁵ D2770 (Witness statement of KW570 dated 21 November 2012) (under seal), para. 11.

²⁰⁶⁸⁶ D2770 (Witness statement of KW570 dated 21 November 2012) (under seal), para. 12.

6115. The majority failed to clarify what they meant by 'general nature'. And this was vital because it was due to the fact that the evidence was consigned to the category of 'general nature' that it did not succeed in casting doubt on their finding.

6116. Further, it is reasonable to assume that when the majority accepted the evidence of KW570, they accepted his narrative of the taped conversation. In this situation it would have been extremely helpful for the majority to give full reasons why in the face of accepting the evidence of the taped conversation, they were not prepared to address it but were merely disposed to gather it under the amorphous heading of 'general nature'. It is not insignificant that KW570 was a member of UNPROFOR at the time of the incident and he was also a Defence witness. The evidence he gave had the potential for casting doubt that the Bosnian Serb side was responsible for firing the shell. And this evidence formed an integral part of the Defence case.

6117. The Accused was therefore, entitled to some exposure to the minds of the majority for their dismissal of this evidence, other than the cryptic 'of general nature'.

3. Conclusion

6118. I am therefore, of the view that when all the factors I have identified above are collocated, the resulting edifice is of such, that I can hold that there is reasonable doubt that the Bosnian Muslim side fired the mortar bomb on the Markale Market.

6119. In the circumstances I am of opinion that the Accused must be acquitted of this charge.

VIII. ANNEXES

A. PROCEDURAL HISTORY

1. Pre-trial proceedings

a. From confirmation of the Indictment to the Accused's plea

6120. On 25 July 1995, an indictment was confirmed against the Accused and Ratko Mladić, charging them for crimes allegedly committed in BiH between April 1992 and July 1995.²⁰⁶⁸⁷ On 16 November 1995, a second indictment against these accused, charging them for crimes alleged to have taken place in Srebrenica in July 1995, was also confirmed.²⁰⁶⁸⁸

6121. Due to the failure to execute their warrants of arrest and to serve the indictments upon them,²⁰⁶⁸⁹ a hearing was subsequently held under Rule 61 of the Rules, and the two indictments were joined on 11 July 1996.²⁰⁶⁹⁰

6122. In 2000, the Prosecution sought to amend the joined indictment insofar as it pertained to the Accused, which was then confirmed.²⁰⁶⁹¹ In 2002, a similar process was undertaken with regard to Mladić.²⁰⁶⁹² The cases against the two accused were ultimately severed in 2009.²⁰⁶⁹³

6123. The Accused was arrested on 21 July 2008 in Belgrade and transferred to The Hague on 30 July 2008. His initial appearance was held the following day.²⁰⁶⁹⁴ Shortly thereafter, the Prosecution requested leave to make certain amendments to the indictment.²⁰⁶⁹⁵ On 16 February 2009, the Chamber issued a decision granting the Prosecution's motion in large part,²⁰⁶⁹⁶ and, on 27 February 2009, the Prosecution filed its Third Amended Indictment, which remains the operative "Indictment".²⁰⁶⁹⁷

²⁰⁶⁹⁷ Third Amended Indictment, 27 February 2009.

6124. On 3 March 2009, during the Accused's further initial appearance, and upon his failure to enter a plea, the pre-trial Judge entered pleas of not guilty to all eleven counts of the Indictment on behalf of the Accused, pursuant to Rule 62(iv) of the Rules.²⁰⁶⁹⁸

b. Self-representation

6125. From his transfer to The Hague, the Accused decided to represent himself at all stages of the proceedings. The Registry provided financial support for the assignment of a set number of support staff, ultimately assigning the Accused a team of four legal associates, two case managers, and two investigators.²⁰⁶⁹⁹ Furthermore, as discussed in detail below, after the Accused's refusal to appear before the Chamber for the commencement of trial, an appointed counsel was selected to prepare to represent the Accused's interests, should the Chamber order counsel to do so.²⁰⁷⁰⁰

c. Language

6126. The Accused initially maintained that his level of English was not sufficient to understand complex legal proceedings and requested that all documents be presented to him in BCS. In a 25 September 2008 decision, the Chamber denied the Accused's requests that all court transcripts be translated into BCS.²⁰⁷⁰¹ On 26 March 2009, the Chamber granted a Prosecution motion for a determination that the Accused understands English for the purpose of the Rules.²⁰⁷⁰²

d. Challenges to jurisdiction and to the form of the Indictment 6127. From the beginning, the Accused maintained that the Tribunal lacked the authority to prosecute him due to the alleged agreement that he entered into with U.S. Ambassador Richard Holbrooke in July 1996, who promised him immunity in return for his withdrawal from public life in BiH ("Holbrooke Agreement").²⁰⁷⁰³ Throughout the pre-trial phase of the case, the Chamber issued a number of decisions in connection thereto.²⁰⁷⁰⁴ On 8 July 2009, the Chamber denied the Accused's motion seeking dismissal of the Indictment for lack of personal jurisdiction on the basis of the Holbrooke Agreement.²⁰⁷⁰⁵

6128. The Chamber issued a decision disposing of six preliminary motions filed by the Accused—which he characterised as challenges to jurisdiction—, granting one of them in part.²⁰⁷⁰⁶ The Accused filed a direct appeal against the Chamber's decision that three of his motions did not raise genuine issues of jurisdiction; the Chamber also granted both the Accused and the Prosecution leave to appeal its decision insofar as it related, respectively, to the crime of hostage-taking, and to the correct mens rea standard for the third form of JCE liability; the Appeals Chamber ultimately confirmed the Chamber's findings appealed by the Accused and found that the Chamber had erred in law in relation to the portion appealed by the Prosecution.²⁰⁷⁰⁷ The Chamber also issued a decision denying two motions filed by the Accused challenging the form of the Indictment.²⁰⁷⁰⁸

After the close of his Defence case, the Chamber denied a motion by the Accused in which he argued that parts of the Indictment were vague and defective and failed to properly inform him of the nature and scope of the charges against him and requested an order precluding considerations of those allegations by the Chamber in its deliberations or, in the alternative, that the Indictment be amended and that he be allowed to re-open his case to defend against the newly specified allegations. Decision on Accused's Motion for Relief from Defects in the Indictment, 30 September 2014.

e. Motions to disqualify

6129. In May 2009, the Accused filed a motion requesting that Judge Picard be disqualified from these proceedings because of her former position as President of the Human Rights Chamber of BiH, and other related factors.²⁰⁷⁰⁹ Four months later, following the re-composition of the pre-trial bench,²⁰⁷¹⁰ the Accused filed a motion seeking the disqualification of Judge Baird, on the basis of the provisions of Article 13 of the Statute.²⁰⁷¹¹ Both motions were denied by the panels of three judges ultimately appointed to determine each of them.²⁰⁷¹²

f. Applications under Rule 73 bis of the Rules

On 31 July 2014, the Chamber denied the Accused's "Motion to Disqualify Judges Kwon, Morrison, Baird & Lattanzi" filed on 17 July 2014 in which he argued that the Judges of the Chamber should be disqualified as their four-year terms of office had expired and they had not been re-elected by the General Assembly. The Chamber found that the motion raised an issue of jurisdiction rather than disqualification under Rule 15 of the Rules and held on the contrary that the terms of office of the Judges of the Chamber had been appropriately extended. Decision on Accused's Motion to Disqualify Judges Kwon, Morrison, Baird, and Lattanzi, 31 July 2014.

2. Trial proceedings

a. Delay of commencement of trial proceedings

6131. The pre-trial Judge declared the case ready for trial during a status conference held on 20 August 2009. During a further status conference held on 9 September 2009, and following a submission by the Accused requesting ten additional months to prepare his defence, the Chamber set the date for commencement of trial at 19 October 2009, and a pre-trial conference was held on 6 October 2009. The Accused appealed the Chamber's decision on the commencement of trial, and the Appeals Chamber subsequently determined that the trial should proceed with a delay of one week.²⁰⁷¹⁸ The Chamber subsequently issued an order setting the date for the commencement of trial at 26 October 2009.²⁰⁷¹⁹

6132. On 8 October 2009, the Chamber issued an order adopting a set of detailed guidelines on the manner in which it expected the trial proceedings to be conducted.²⁰⁷²⁰ The Chamber also issued a number of orders and decisions in anticipation of the imminent commencement of the case.²⁰⁷²¹

6133. The Chamber held its first hearing on 26 October 2009 in the absence of the Accused who maintained that he was inadequately prepared.²⁰⁷²² The Prosecution gave its opening statement on 27 October and 2 November 2009.²⁰⁷²³ After several warnings to the Accused, the Chamber issued a decision on 5 November 2009, ordering the Registrar to appoint counsel to begin preparing to represent the Accused at trial, should the Chamber order him to do so, and adjourning the trial until 1 March 2010 to allow the appointed counsel sufficient preparation time.²⁰⁷²⁴ On 19 November on 13 October 2014, in which it denied the Accused's motion requesting the Prosecution to withdraw the charges in relation to which it was instructed not to lead evidence as per the 8 October 2009 decision. After the close of the Defence case, the Prosecution notified the Chamber that it would withdraw Scheduled Incident A.5.1 (Foča Municipality) and Scheduled Detention Facility C.25.4 (Vlasenica Municipality) from the Indictment. ²⁰⁷²⁰ Order on the Procedure for the Conduct of Trial, 8 October 2009. The Chamber issued a follow-up order following a request from the Prosecution seeking clarification on certain aspects of the guidelines. Order on Prosecution Request for Clarification and Proposal Concerning Guidelines for the Conduct of Trial, 20 October 2009.

²⁰⁷²¹ See inter alia Order on Prosecution's Notification of Order of Witnesses, 12 October 2009.

²⁰⁷²² During that hearing, the Presiding Judge read a letter sent by the Accused a few days earlier explaining his reasons for his refusal to appear in court. After hearing from the Prosecution on the Accused's absence, the Chamber adjourned the hearing until the following day. Hearing, T. 502–509 (26 October 2009).

²⁰⁷²⁴ Decision on Appointment of Counsel and Order on Further Trial Proceedings, 5 November 2009.

2009, the Registrar selected Richard Harvey as “counsel to prepare to represent the interests of the Accused at trial”.²⁰⁷²⁵

6134. On 1 February 2010, the Accused filed a motion requesting a further postponement of the trial.²⁰⁷²⁶ The Chamber denied the motion and ordered the Accused’s opening statement to be heard on 1 and 2 March 2010, following which the trial proceedings would continue on 3 March 2010 with the hearing of evidence.²⁰⁷²⁷ The Accused gave his opening statements on 1 and 2 March, as scheduled. However, on 1 March he filed a motion for certification to appeal the Chamber’s decision on the postponement of trial, which the Chamber granted.²⁰⁷²⁸ On 31 March, the Appeals Chamber issued a decision dismissing the Accused’s appeal in its entirety.²⁰⁷²⁹

6135. On 13 April 2010, the Chamber designated Harvey as standby counsel.²⁰⁷³⁰ On 15 April, through a follow-up written decision, the Chamber set out the specific functions to be carried out by the standby counsel during the proceedings.²⁰⁷³¹

b. Prosecution case

6136. Following the dismissal of the Accused’s appeal on the commencement of the trial, as discussed above, the Chamber ordered that the presentation of evidence in the case should begin on 13 April 2010.²⁰⁷³² The Prosecution’s first witness began his testimony on that day.²⁰⁷³³ During the Prosecution case, a total of 195 Prosecution witnesses and one Chamber’s witness testified.²⁰⁷³⁴

²⁰⁷²⁵ During the adjournment period, the Chamber denied the Accused’s motion opposing the Registrar’s appointment of Mr. Harvey, and granted his request to appeal the Chamber’s decision upholding such appointment (which was eventually upheld by the Appeals Chamber). ²⁰⁷³¹ Decision on Designation of Standby Counsel, 15 April 2010. On 21 June 2012, after the close of the Prosecution’s case, the Chamber issued a decision stating that the role of the standby counsel should remain unchanged during the Defence case. Decision on Continuation of Standby Counsel Assignment, 21 June 2012.

²⁰⁷³² Scheduling Order, 1 April 2010.

²⁰⁷³³ Ahmet Zulić, T. 1004 (13 April 2010).

²⁰⁷³⁴ The Chamber issued a subpoena ordering Momčilo Mandić to testify as a Prosecution witness. Mandić appeared before the Chamber on 30 June 2010; however, upon appearing before the Chamber he requested to testify as a Chamber’s witness and not as a witness for the Prosecution. The Chamber ultimately granted Mandić’s request. Hearing, T. 4403–4412 (30 June 2010). See Decision on Prosecution’s Urgent Motion to Subpoena Momčilo Mandić with Appendices A-D, confidential, 16 June 2010.

19 of these testified as viva voce witnesses and the remainder pursuant to Rule 92 ter of the Rules. The last Prosecution witness testified on 4 May 2012.²⁰⁷³⁵

6137. Additionally, the Chamber issued 16 decisions disposing of the Prosecution's motions for the admission of evidence of 232 witnesses pursuant to Rule 92 bis, and 22 witnesses pursuant to Rule 92 quater of the Rules.²⁰⁷³⁶ The Chamber ultimately admitted the written evidence of 142 witnesses pursuant to either of these two Rules.

6138. On 26 April 2012, the Chamber issued an order stating that the Prosecution case shall be considered closed on the day that the Chamber issues its decision on the last pending evidence-related motion filed by the Prosecution.²⁰⁷³⁷ The Prosecution case was thus closed on 25 May 2012, following the Chamber's decision on the last pending evidence-related motion filed by the Prosecution.²⁰⁷³⁸

c. Judgement of acquittal pursuant to Rule 98 bis

6139. Following the parties' Rule 98 bis oral submissions on 12 and 13 June 2012,²⁰⁷³⁹ on 28 June 2012, the Chamber delivered its oral ruling on the Accused's motion for a judgement of acquittal, pursuant to Rule 98 bis of the Rules. The Chamber dismissed the Accused's motion on ten counts of the Indictment but granted his motion in relation to Count 1.

6140. On 25 July 2012, the Accused filed an appeal in relation to Count 11 before the Appeals Chamber.²⁰⁷⁴⁰ On 11 December 2012, the Appeals Chamber issued its decision in relation to Count 11, dismissing the Accused's appeal.²⁰⁷⁴¹ On 24 September 2012, the Prosecution filed its appeal in relation to Count 1 before the Appeals Chamber.²⁰⁷⁴² On 11 July 2013, the Appeals Chamber reversed the Chamber's acquittal of the Accused for genocide under Count 1 and reinstated the charges against the Accused.²⁰⁷⁴³

d. Defence case

6141. On 26 April 2012, the Chamber ordered that the Accused shall make his opening statement on 16 October 2012, should he so wish, and call his first witness immediately thereafter.²⁰⁷⁴⁴ On 19 September 2012, the Chamber issued a decision pursuant to Rule 73(B) of the Rules granting the Accused 300 hours for the presentation of his case.²⁰⁷⁴⁵ The Accused made his opening statement on 16 October 2012.²⁰⁷⁴⁶ The first Defence witness began his testimony on that same date.²⁰⁷⁴⁷

6142. On 16 July 2013, following the issuance of the Appeal on Count 1, as explained above, the Accused filed a motion requesting the Chamber to order that Count 1 be severed from the Indictment pursuant to Rule 54 or, alternatively, direct the Prosecution to proceed on all counts of the Indictment except Count 1 pursuant to Rule 73 bis (E).²⁰⁷⁴⁸ On 24 July 2013, the Accused filed another motion requesting the Chamber to suspend the case for four months to enable him to prepare his defence for Count 1.²⁰⁷⁴⁹ On 2 August 2013, the Chamber disposed of the motions, denying the Accused's request for severance, but suspending the proceedings until 28 October 2013 in order to give the Accused time to adjust his preparations to include a defence on Count 1.²⁰⁷⁵⁰ On 7 August 2013, the Accused simultaneously filed an application before the Chamber for certification to appeal the Chamber's decision, as well as an appeal before the Appeals Chamber.²⁰⁷⁵¹ The Chamber issued a decision stating that certification was not required in the present case, but declaring nevertheless that the requirements for certification to appeal under Rule

73(C) were met.²⁰⁷⁵² On 12 September 2013, the Appeals Chamber issued a decision dismissing the Accused's appeal in its entirety.²⁰⁷⁵³

6143. On 28 August 2013, the Chamber issued a decision denying the Accused's request to dismiss the Indictment based on the fact that the Security Council did not have the authority to establish the MICT, that there is therefore no legal entity to which he could appeal in the event he is convicted, and thus his fundamental right to appeal had been abridged.²⁰⁷⁵⁴

6144. On 29 October 2013, in light of the Accused's request to recall witnesses to give testimony relevant to Count 1, and for additional time in which to present his case, the Chamber issued a decision granting the Accused 25 additional hours for the presentation of his case.²⁰⁷⁵⁵

6145. During the Defence case, a total of 238 witnesses testified for the Accused: 24 testified as viva voce witnesses and the remainder testified pursuant to Rule 92 ter of the Rules. The Accused informed the Chamber that he would testify as a witness in his own case in August 2012 and maintained this position for most of the Defence case.²⁰⁷⁵⁶ Subsequently, the Accused requested to testify in a narrative form, which the Chamber denied.²⁰⁷⁵⁷ By the end of the Defence case, the Accused, referring to his "dilemmas and quandaries", informed the Chamber that he had ultimately decided not to testify.²⁰⁷⁵⁸ The last Defence witness testified on 20 February 2014.²⁰⁷⁵⁹

6146. Additionally, the Chamber admitted the evidence of three Defence witnesses pursuant to Rule 92 bis of the Rules, and of seven witnesses pursuant to Rule 92 quater.²⁰⁷⁶⁰

f. Final briefs and closing arguments

6150. Having heard from the parties as to the time they would need to file their final trial briefs,²⁰⁷⁶⁵ the Chamber ordered them on 21 March 2014, to file their briefs by no later than 29 August 2014, adding that the briefs shall not exceed 300,000 words, including any appendices.²⁰⁷⁶⁶ On 29 August 2014, the parties filed their final briefs.²⁰⁷⁶⁷

6151. On 7 April 2014, the Chamber issued a decision setting the schedule for the presentation of closing arguments, and ordering that the presentation of closing arguments shall commence on 29 September 2014.²⁰⁷⁶⁸ The Chamber also granted the Prosecution and the Accused up to ten hours each to present their closing arguments, and 1.5 hours each to present their rebuttal and rejoinder arguments, respectively.²⁰⁷⁶⁹ The Chamber heard the parties' closing arguments between 29 September and 7 October 2014.

3. Various rulings

6152. Throughout the various phases of the case, the Chamber issued approximately 1,100 written decisions, orders and invitations, as well as more than 350 oral decisions. The summary below gives an illustration of some of the most significant issues the Chamber has dealt with during the course of these proceedings.

a. Disclosure

6153. Given the unprecedented size of the case, disclosure to the Accused has been voluminous throughout the case. The Chamber did its utmost to protect the Accused's fair trial rights. To ensure that the Accused's preparations for trial were not affected, the Chamber decided to suspend the proceedings on multiple occasions, for a total period of more than four months during the Prosecution case, to allow him time to review and incorporate large batches of newly disclosed

²⁰⁷⁶⁵ The Accused requested the Chamber to set a deadline for the filing of closing briefs 12 months after the testimony of the last Defence witness; Submission on Schedule for Filing of Closing Briefs, 26 February 2014, while the Prosecution requested the Chamber leave to submit a final brief not exceeding 375,000 words on or before 17 September 2014; Prosecution Motion for Variation of the Word Limit for its Final Trial Brief and Submission on Timing of Filing of Final Trial Briefs with Appendix A, 3 March 2014. See also Hearing, T. 47543 (20 February 2014).

material into his preparations.²⁰⁷⁷⁰ In addition to the suspension of proceedings, the testimony of some Prosecution witnesses had to be postponed or delayed when witness specific material was disclosed in violation of the Prosecution's disclosure obligations.²⁰⁷⁷¹

6154. During the Prosecution phase of the case, the Accused filed more than 70 motions requesting the Chamber to find the Prosecution in violation of its disclosure obligations under the Rules. The Chamber issued either written or oral decisions disposing of each of them²⁰⁷⁷² and found inter alia that, while the number of disclosure violations reflected badly on the Prosecution, the Accused had not been prejudiced.²⁰⁷⁷³ The Accused also filed a motion requesting a new trial based on the cumulative prejudice he had suffered from such violations. The Chamber issued its decision disposing of the motion in September 2012, and denying the Accused's request.²⁰⁷⁷⁴

6155. The Accused continued filing disclosure violation motions during the Defence case and the Chamber disposed, either orally or in writing, of all of them, finding, for the most part that the Prosecution had violated its disclosure obligations under the Rules with respect to the late disclosure of certain documents, but concluding that the Accused was not prejudiced by such violations having reviewed the underlying documents in light of other material available to the Accused and other evidence received in the case.²⁰⁷⁷⁵

6156. After the completion of the Defence case, the Accused continued to file disclosure violations and the Chamber disposed in writing of all of them, finding that the Prosecution had violated its disclosure obligations under the Rules with respect to the late disclosure of certain documents, but concluding for the most part that the Accused was not prejudiced by such violations, having reviewed the underlying documents in light of other material available to the Accused and other evidence received in the case.²⁰⁷⁷⁶ The Accused also filed a second motion requesting a new trial again based on the cumulative prejudice he had suffered from such violations. The Chamber issued its decision disposing of the motion in August 2014, and denying the Accused's request.²⁰⁷⁷⁷

6157. The Chamber also issued decisions disposing of Prosecution's motions alleging disclosure violations by the Accused due to his failure to provide adequate 65 ter summaries.²⁰⁷⁷⁸

b. Binding orders

6158. Throughout the proceedings, the Chamber issued more than 60 invitations in relation to the approximately 40 motions filed by the Accused requesting the Chamber to issue binding orders compelling the governments of various states and several international organisations to produce categories of documents that he intended to use during his trial.²⁰⁷⁷⁹

6160. The Accused's wish to challenge the conclusions reached by the ICMP and Prosecution witness Thomas Parsons, as to the identification through DNA analysis of Srebrenica victims, was the subject of considerable discussion throughout the pre-trial phase of the case, and involved ongoing communication between the Prosecution, the Accused's legal adviser, the Accused's expert, and the ICMP. Given the complexity of the topic, the discussion also required the involvement of the Chamber, which issued a number of decisions on the matter.²⁰⁷⁸⁵ In 2012, the Accused filed a binding order motion requesting that the Chamber issue an order compelling the ICMP to make available to him a number of DNA case files for testing by his DNA expert.²⁰⁷⁸⁶ The Chamber denied the binding order motion on 4 March 2013 after receiving additional information from the parties.²⁰⁷⁸⁷ On 16 April 2013, the Chamber denied a motion filed by the Accused requesting the Chamber to exclude all evidence of the results of DNA analysis entered into evidence on behalf of the Prosecution.²⁰⁷⁸⁸

c. Subpoenas

6161. Throughout the proceedings, the Accused filed a number of motions requesting the Chamber to issue subpoenas compelling various former or current state officials to be interviewed by his Defence team, and the Chamber issued various invitations to a number of the states involved in these matters.²⁰⁷⁸⁹ The Chamber granted the Accused's request on five occasions, issuing

6166. In early 2010, the Prosecution filed a motion pursuant to Rule 94(B), for the judicial notice of the authenticity of hundreds of documents that were admitted into evidence in previous trials, including a large number of intercepts, relating to the Sarajevo component of the case. In March 2010, the Chamber denied the Prosecution's motion with respect to a large number of documents tendered by the Prosecution, and denied without prejudice the admission of various intercepts.²⁰⁸¹⁰ In February 2011, the Chamber granted in part the motion filed by the Prosecution resubmitting its request to the Chamber to take judicial notice of the authenticity of various intercepts relating to the Sarajevo component of the case.²⁰⁸¹¹ The Accused applied for certification to appeal the Chamber's decision, but it was denied.²⁰⁸¹²

²⁰⁸¹² Decision on the Prosecution's Motion for Judicial Notice of Intercepts Related to the Sarajevo Component and Request for Leave to Add One Document to the Rule 65 ter Exhibit List, 4 February 2011. Following the amendment to Rule 94(B) of the Rules during the plenary session held on 8 December 2010, the Chamber focused its analysis in the decision on whether to take judicial notice of the authenticity of documentary evidence which had been admitted in prior proceedings, and not in the admission into evidence of the documents.

²⁰⁸¹² Decision on Accused's Motion for Certification to Appeal Decision on Judicial Notice of the Authenticity of Intercepts, 17 February 2011.

6167. On 21 January 2014, the Chamber issued a decision denying the Accused's motion requesting the Chamber to take judicial notice of 26 facts relating to Count 1, also pursuant to Rule 94(B) of the Rules.²⁰⁸¹³

e. Protective measures

6168. During 2008 and the first half of 2009, the Chamber issued a number of decisions on protective measures.²⁰⁸¹⁴ On 24 July 2009, the Chamber issued a confidential decision which included a chart setting out all the protective measures in place for witnesses appearing on the Prosecution's Rule 65 ter witness list at that date (totalling 161 of 541 witnesses).²⁰⁸¹⁵ Following further submissions from the parties, the chart was finalised and appended to an order issued on 14 August 2009.²⁰⁸¹⁶

6169. Throughout the case, the Chamber continued to issue a large number of decisions granting, varying, rescinding, augmenting, or noting protective measures for Prosecution witnesses.²⁰⁸¹⁷ As a result of the various decisions issued by the Chamber, and in order to keep the record of protective measures in place as accurate and up-to-date as possible, the Chamber produced and updated nine charts on protective measures in place for Prosecution witnesses.²⁰⁸¹⁸

refusal to comply with the subpoenas and appear before the Chamber, the Chamber ordered that the witnesses be prosecuted for contempt of the Tribunal, therefore issuing a warrant for arrest for each of them.²⁰⁸²⁸ Following the arrest and subsequent transfer of Zečević to the Tribunal, he decided to voluntarily testify before the Chamber as a Prosecution witness.²⁰⁸²⁹ However, Milan Tupajić continued to refuse to comply with the subpoena so the Chamber conducted contempt proceedings against him, finding him guilty of contempt and sentencing him to two months of imprisonment, which he served at the Tribunal's Detention Unit.²⁰⁸³⁰

6174. Following Radislav Krstić's continued refusal to testify as a Defence witness after being ordered by the Chamber to do so, and the preparation of a detailed medical report on the witness's health, the Chamber issued an order in lieu of indictment initiating contempt proceedings against him on 27 March 2013.²⁰⁸³¹ On 18 July 2013, the Chamber issued its Judgement and found by majority, Judge Kwon dissenting, that Krstić was not guilty of contempt.²⁰⁸³²

5. Site visits

6175. During the Prosecution phase of the case, the Chamber conducted two visits aimed at allowing the Chamber to become more familiar with the topography of certain key locations and thus assist its determination of the charges in the Indictment.
